The Liberty Loan Committee of New York desires to emphasize the fact that subscriptions in great number from small investors are absolutely essential to the success of the Liberty Loan. The large subscriptions are given prominence in the press, but twenty-five headline subscriptions of $10,000,000, one each day, during the balance of this campaign would total only $250,000,000. We must raise in this district a total of $1,500,000,000, or nearly $65,000,000 a day up until Oct. 27. We are nearly $100,000,000 behind this average at the present time. To reach the total desired by the Government, millions of small subscriptions are needed. Our objective of $1,500,000,000 calls for an average of approximately $200 from every grown man and woman in the Second Federal Reserve District. We earnestly request the co-operation of the press and public in emphasizing this fact.

$3,032,400 OLD BONDS SOLD.

J. P. Morgan Gives Bonus at Public Sale Here.

J. P. Morgan & Co., bought $3,032,400 par value of Liberty 3½ per cent. bonds yesterday at a public sale at the County Court House, bidding par for the issue plus $100. The bonds were offered by Thomas D. McCarthy, United States Marshal for the Southern District of New York, for the acount of the Equitable Trust Company, which was trustee for an issue of Western Pacific Railroad bonds. The Morgan bid topped by $100 the next best bid, that of the Western Pacific Railroad Corporation. The Bankers Trust Company offered 99.85 for $1,000,000 and Newburger, Henderson & Loeb had a bid in for $100,000 at 99.87.

The proceeds of the sale will be impounded in favor of the Equitable Trust Company and the Western Pacific. The bonds were originally bought by the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad with funds which had been impounded by the court in behalf of the railroad and the Equitable Trust Company in a suit brought against the Denver & Rio Grande to recover a claim for the guarantee by the Denver & Rio Grande of an issue of bonds by the old Western Pacific Company.

The committee's official tabulation accompanying the statement covered only the first three days of the campaign, the subscriptions for that period totaling $12,536,000, based on returns from less than half the 1,073 banks in New England. # PUT LOYALTY TO TEST, MARSHALL APPEALS

Liberty Loan Offers Chance to Prove Sincerity of Demonstrative Patriotism, He Asserts.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Vice President Marshall, in a statement issued tonight on behalf of the Liberty Loan, said he wanted to see "every man and woman in America who has been waving the flag, singing 'The Star Spangled Banner,' and bragging about the glories of democracy, prove now by their works that they have a genuine faith in the American Republic."

"That proof," added the Vice President, "demands of us all that we take enough of the war obligations of this Government to make us feel some sort of sacrifice for the cause in which each of us professes to believe, and does believe.

"We have been running up the American flag at all the school houses, we have been rising with solemn countenances whenever 'The Star-Spangled Banner' is played, and we have been proclaiming to the world our never-ending allegiance to those great principles of democracy upon which the Republic was founded and is now supposed to rest.

"Now we have reached the point where our faith is being put to the touchstone of our works, and we are soon to find whether this love which we profess for our institutions, our country, and our flag, is but as sounding brass and tinkling cymbal, or whether it is a great and vital inspiration of individual and national life."

TAKE FULL-PAGE 'ADS' TO BOOST GERMAN LOAN

'Easy Terms, Allowing Time,' Is One of the Inducements Offered to Subscribers.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 4.—Germany's first great effort to make the new war loan a success takes the form of a full page in the leading German papers.

In part the notice says:

"Money needed for subscription. Easy terms, allowing time.

"You reckon what you can earn in the forthcoming weeks and months, deduct the cost of living, and then see what you can lend to the Fatherland."

'ANTIS' PLEDGE AID TO LOAN.

State Council Sends Messages to Wilson and McAdoo.

ALBANY, Oct 4.—Telegrams to President Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo pledging the earnest co-operation of the members of the State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage in making a success of the second Liberty Loan were sent today after the meeting of the State Council of the organization.

Campaign reports received from all parts of the State and from all branches of the association were said to be encouraging.

MANY ATHLETES AT UPTON.

Sports to Vary Monotony of Work in Seventy-seventh Division.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, YAPHANK, L. I., Oct. 4.—A comprehensive scheme of athletic training for the men of the Seventy-seventh Division was approved today by Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, and in all probability matches will be arranged during the Fall and Winter with teams from other cantonments.

Athletic equipment will be sent by the War Department's commission on training camp activities to be distributed in the temporary barracks of the unassigned men. Besides many of the barracks basket ball goals have been set up, and volunteers have cleared the courts of roots and stumps.

At the direction of General Bell a Divisional athletic council has been placed in charge of all athletic sports, headed by Brig. Gen. George W. Read.

A Lieutenant from each barracks will be appointed athletic officer for his command, and teams will be organized among the different companies and detachments. Football, basketball, indoor and outdoor baseball, handball, volleyball, cross country running, and basketball are among the sports to be introduced.

Among the officers at Camp Upton are many well-known athletes. Captain Scully of the Athletic Council won three letters at Dartmouth in football, baseball, and basket ball. Captain R. L. P. Storer of the 304th Artillery was Captain of the Harvard 1913 football team. First Lieut. J. S. Oneale, 306th Infantry, is a Columbia baseball Captain and tennis player. Captain Edward Grant is better known in New York as "Eddie" Grant, utility infielder of the Giants. Captain Crawford Blagdon was one of Harvard's football coaches. Second Lieut. Clarence J. Griffin once represented this country in the Davis Cup tennis matches, and Captain C. M. Bull, Jr., is another well-known tennis player. First Lieut. Douglas Bomiester, Yale, 1912, foot ball team, was an all-America end for his year.

A telegram to the military authorities here from Brig. Gen. H. P. McCain, Adjutant General of the Army, reads:

"Commanders of tactical divisions in the United States will at once institute an aggressive campaign through their commands to secure voluntary subscriptions to the second Liberty Loan, detail supervisory officers for the various units, stimulate competition, exact frequent reports, publish these, arrange for speakers, arouse enthusiasm and otherwise use utmost endeavors for pronounced success. Each tactical divisional commander will telegraph daily the total subscription of the previous day by his command, and also the final amount when subscription campaign closes, Oct. 27.

A memorandum quoting this telegram and calling upon the Seventy-seventh Division to exceed the contributions from any other division has been posted conspicuously in each barracks.

In accordance with the policy of the War Department to allow medical students drafted into service to continue their studies, providing they enlist in the Medical Reserve Corps, Walter Meeehie, 305th Infantry, was honorably discharged today from the national army to resume his internship at the Norwegian Hospital, Brooklyn.

NEW SHUBERT THEATRE.

The Apollo Is to be Built at Broadway and 47th Street.

Work will be begun within a few weeks, it was announced yesterday, on a theatre to be built on the southwest corner of Broadway and Forty-seventh Street. The new house will be constructed by the Shuberts and is to be called the Apollo.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Two $50 Liberty bonds will be given away by Klaw & Erlanger at each Wednesday and Saturday matinee of "The Riviera Girl," at the New Amsterdam Theatre. The winners will be selected by lot.

Hale Hamilton, Jane Cooper, and Virginia Hammond have been engaged for the new George V. Hobart farce, "What's Your Husband Doing?"

"Good Gracious Annabelle" will be performed at the Plattsburg camp on Sunday night, and "Hitchy-Koo" will be given there a week later.

The proceeds of tonight's performance of "The Eyes of Youth," at the Maxine Elliott, will be given to the American Defense Society.

A play, with music by Franz Schubert, entitled "The House of the Three Little Maids" will be produced by the German players at the Irving Place Theatre next Wednesday night. The piece deals with the life of Schubert, and the music has been arranged from the composer's works by Heinrich Berte. The prima donna will be Viola Graham, an American singer.

CZERNIN BLURTS IT OUT.

If MICHAELIS and KUEHLMANN continue to ink the waters with phrases, CZERNIN is open and candid enough in all conscience. The Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister's speech at Budapest blazes with frankness; it strips off the whole robe of pretense with which his German colleagues have been endeavoring to cover up their drive for conquest in the name of peace. The German and Austrian replies to the Pope both accepted his proposal for disarmament on land and joyously enlarged his suggestion of disarmament at sea. The Allies are not against disarmament, but they have no intention of negotiating for disarmament with two empires that would not carry out the agreement in good faith. Perhaps some guileless Americans have thought the Allies were too suspicious; but now comes the Austrian Foreign Minister with this frank statement:

> Probably the present generation will not live to see the completion of this great pacific movement (disarmament.)

Austria and Germany would have the Allies lay down their arms and enter into a treaty with them for a disarmament which "the present generation will not live to see." It is to be done gradually, of course, but how gradually? It is easy to picture the nations entering into such an agreement; a treaty for gradual and simultaneous disarmament, to be completed at some time when all the present generation are dead; the disarmament proceeding for a few years; the discovery that Germany was not executing the agreement; complaints, countercharges, a sudden onslaught by Germany, and the present war on again more bloodily than ever. Of course Germany and Austria are delighted with the idea of disarmament; it is something they can play with, something that will supply them with endless opportunities for trickery; and according to their own idea, thus blurted out by CZERNIN, they do not expect even the formal agreement for disarmament to contemplate its completion within "the present generation." Actually, of course, they do not contemplate its completion within ten centuries, or so long as Europe lasts; they would not put it forward if they did. This, then, is what they meant by disarmament; a soothing-syrup agreement made at a peace conference, to which they would subscribe with a wink.

Again, Count CZERNIN is recklessly candid in discussing the attitude of the Allies toward peace. He repeats the old ritual about how they sought the "annihilation" of Germany and Austria at the beginning of the war, but he adds that they have abandoned that mythical fury of theirs:

> They demand neither our life nor our right to decide our destinies as a State, but they demand more or less large frontier rectifications.

The Allies never did seek the "annihilation" of Germany, never did seek the "life" of Austria or its right to decide its destinies. But it is of no importance that the Minister repeats the stale old calumny, since he now definitely proclaims that the Allies entertain this savage wish no longer. He proclaims that, whatever may have been the case in the past, Germany and Austria are not now fighting for life; he obliterates, so far as Austria is concerned, the whole structure of humbug which has been erected to keep the German and Austrian peoples fighting for the Hohenzollerns and the Hapsburgs. It is not true that the Allies demand "frontier rectifications" as such; their demand is that Germany and Austria be prevented forcibly, if they will not yield voluntarily, from again assaulting the peace of the world, and they demand such frontier rectifications as will guarantee the inability of Germany and Austria to make such an assault. But that is not the point now; the point is that however Count CZERNIN may describe the subject of annexations, he admits that the lives of Austria and Germany and their right to decide their destinies are not in the least danger, and that the pretense to that effect by which their peoples have been led to the slaughter was a will-o'-the-wisp.

It is no wonder, when the Austrian Foreign Minister talks as frankly as this, that the Austrian people are impatient with the deceitful claptrap which still gushes in a steady stream from Berlin, that they cannot longer endure the masked phrases of KUEHLMANN and MICHAELIS. Thus the Vienna Arbeiter Zeitung angrily dismisses KUEHLMANN's speech as "poetical flummery," and declares that if MICHAELIS means what his mystic formulas seem to imply—annexation—then "all the chatter about honorable "peace would be a pure and simple "swindle." That is exactly what it is, and the Arbeiter Zeitung so understands it, for it adds, "It looks as if "all this peace talk were nothing "whatever but a convenient alibi intended to appease popular opinion "and pacify the Socialists."

With all this blunt frankness in Vienna and Budapest, how much longer do MICHAELIS and KUEHLMANN think they can continue to deceive the Austrian people with hugger-mugger and incantations? What avail all their skillful phrases, with CZERNIN at their side, consciously or unconsciously revealing their mendacity?

NEEDED AMENDMENTS.

It would be well for the Congress of the United States, instead of wasting its time and energies upon certain trivial matters which have had too much of its attention of late, to devote a few hours, or days, even at the expense of postponing adjournment, to the re-examination and amendment of the Revenue Act. It is admitted by the Postmaster General that the provisions of the Act relating to second-class postage will probably be revised before they go into effect next July. That is only one of many crudities; the sooner some of them are removed the better.

Section 209, imposing a tax of 8 per cent., in addition to the heavy income tax, upon all salaries, earnings, and gains above $6,000 of individuals engaged in trade, business, or professions, should be struck out without hesitation. It is futile for apologists of this tax to say that the intention of the Conference Committee to impose it was well understood on the floor of the Senate. We do not believe it. The section was written into the bill during the last stages of the conference and there was no opportunity for the general membership of either house to study it or to know of it. If this section was not the fruit of mere ignorance and blundering, it must certainly be credited to malice directed against persons guilty of earning more than $6,000 a year.

That, by the way, is the highest exemption figure in the bill. Was that figure selected on Mr. KITCHIN's theory that taxes must be so laid that they will be paid chiefly by the North and East? The country will not fail to take note of the fact that Congress specifically exempted its own members from the provision of this section, it may be inferred because of conscientious scruples against paying war taxes. But it is monstrous that Congress should lay a tax penalizing individual toil while exempting from this special levy the receivers of incomes from dividends, interest, or rents. The very heavy imposts of the income tax ought to have sufficed for even the most insatiate espouser of the Kitchin theory. But this tax on personal earnings is an addition to the individual income tax and to all other taxes. It was wedged into the bill in the secrecy of the Conference Committee room, passed by both houses without any opportunity for examination and debate and hurried to the President for his signature.

This section of the bill could never have passed the challenges of debate in the two houses, it could never have withstood the storm of protest from the country. It was put into the bill in secrecy and in darkness. It is in flagrant defiance of all decent principles of taxation. It should be stricken out before Congress adjourns.

STUDY, WORK, PLAY.

The swift growth of the population of this city has made it impossible to provide schooling accommodation for all the pupils all the school year. The school buildings, under the old system, were not used to their full capacity. While some rooms were in use, others were not used. The Study-Work-Play system, called here the Gary plan, insures that in the school buildings that have been adapted to it there shall be no waste of time or space. While half the pupils study, the other half are working or playing. When Mr. MITCHEL became Mayor there were 117,000 pupils on part time. The spending of the appropriations made for the purpose in his present term of office will bring the number of part-time pupils to 17,000.

To make 100,000 part-time pupils full-time pupils is a memorable service to public education. This economy of time and space, with an increase of facilities, is money economy also. New schoolhouses for 100,000 children would have cost $32,400,000. Such schoolhouses, built in accordance with the old plan, would have been wanting in the playgrounds, the shops and laboratories, the swimming pools, the apparatus of the Study-Work-Play system for a harmonious, balanced development of body and mind, head and hand. The remodeling of old buildings will cost $12,400,000. The city will have saved $20,000,000, and will have in each reconstructed plant something vastly better, more productive, of larger scope, and cheaper than the old.

Remember that work and play have not been allowed to encroach upon study. The school day has been made an hour longer, redistributed. There is more variety to it. There is less monotony and fatigue in it. Therewithal, the amount of time given to teaching by means of books is the same as in the unremodeled, old-fashioned existing schools. The path to the high school and the college runs "exactly in the ancient way." To the old instruction is added means of developing and rounding body and mind and character, the training of instinct, capabilities, and powers. The merits of the old plan of instruction are retained. They are supplemented, they are enhanced by other merits, other instruction.

Since there is the same amount of study in a new-type as in an old-type school, that part of the new system need not be considered. What is the play, the playtime of that system? What is the object of it? It is an attempt, a successful attempt, to make democratic, and in a sense communal, the play of the public-school children of New York, to give them, within the limits of their ages, something of that trained direction of play which the boys of the rich and the well-to-do get at Groton and Exeter and Andover and Lawrenceville, and so many other schools, which the daughters of the rich and well-to-do get, and rejoice in, and are envied for getting, at a hundred expensive schools and colleges. "Supervised play," "organized play": Go and ask WALTER CAMP or the immortal BRICKLEY whether it is a good thing or not. To give the boys and girls of New York their part in what is otherwise a prerogative of the fortunate few, to cultivate quickness of eye, ear, hand, and mind, self-mastery, self-subordination, the co-operative faculty, is a gain for democracy, a gain for the physical, mental, and moral makeup of the young.

But children can play by themselves. Not to the best advantage, in a school playground; and there are some poor children who don't know how to play. From counting-out rhymes to rowing in an eight there is no play that is not better played under skilled direction.

Children in this city have meagre opportunities, compared with their country cousins, for play, for observation of nature, for that sort of jack-at-all-trades familiarity with things that country boys have. Any help that can be given them in these directions is to be welcomed.

We come last, as most of us like to come, to work. Some 2 per cent. of a boy's school time is given to shopwork in the new system. How many men, "far seen in Greek, deep men o' letters," regret that they had not in their school days some shop training, regret the quickening of faculty, the deftness of hand, the growing sense of texture and material, the concentration, the pride of awakening skill, which it might have brought them. They feel themselves clumsy, ambisinistrous, incomplete, unreal. They have missed a great branch of education, and they know it. If they have money enough, they see that their sons shall not miss it. The shopwork of Study-Work-Play will make nobody a cabinetmaker or any other sort of a skilled artisan, nor will it interfere with anybody's place in any trade. It cannot and it doesn't seek to. It does seek to make the boy a "ready man," a "full man." A complete development, within its necessary limitations, is the aim of the system. It is a great democratic system, and it will prevail.

LOAN COMPARISONS.

The League of German Municipalities has issued a manifesto saying that the German loan, to which the subscription closes on Oct. 18, will "drown out completely the clamor "of unending protests to which his "[President WILSON's] reply to the "Pope has given stimulus." If German money "talks" like that, it gives added interest to hear what will be said by the Liberty Loan which closes on Oct. 27. Apparently we are summoned to an ordeal by loan, the Germans subscribing in paper and we in gold. The present indications are that our gold will outlast their paper, for the Germans will be too weak to print paper while we still are making excess profits for taxation in gold. We cannot evade this German challenge, and have the advantage in that our later closing will give us the cue and spur for a grand finish if there should be any necessity.

New York is surpassing its necessary daily average of $37,500,000, while there is no reason to doubt that the country will be found to have reached or passed its average of $62,500,000 when the returns are in. Certainly the message which the city sends to the country is inspiriting in high degree. Yesterday's news records that Aerial Coast Patrol Unit No. 3, having spent $100,000 of personal funds in fitting itself for duty, is now entering the Federal aviation service. Others are arming themselves by their subscriptions to the Liberty bonds. The average subscription of Company G, Three Hundred and Seventh Regiment, as announced yesterday, repays the cost of its rifles, and almost the cost of equipment in full. When the men in the ranks do so much, the asking of three or four billions from those who give no personal service amounts to a small sacrifice, comparatively.

In fact, the great sacrifice is that asked from the men who serve in the uniform. The billions asked from others are the source of the wages which the Government must pay through its contracts, which will sustain business activity. The Government will not keep the billions it asks for. All of it will be paid out among ourselves, and it is the biggest prosperity fund ever raised. It is reported this week that the Government is ordering $25,000,000 worth of machine tools. The amount of the order is less significant than the thought of the work and wages implied by the operation of such a vast addition to our productive capacity, and all the sources of materials needed for the working of the tools. Never were there greater supplies of the necessaries of life. The complaint of inability to pay the prices asked itself proves that prices are raised by the spending of such wages as never were before known.

If we under such conditions fail to make a suitable reply to Germany's challenge to trial by popular support of loan issues, we are mean spirited indeed and deserve the scorn we invite from them and from the men in uniforms who are doing so much more than any others. There is no sign of any such shame being invited, but no response can be too great for an answer to the League of German Municipalities at least as crushing as they say their loan will be to President WILSON.

ALL FOR TAMMANY.

Representative MURRAY HULBERT has unfortunately revealed himself as a Tammany partisan by forcing upon the House of Representatives his not very important views of the Mayoralty campaign in this city, a matter which does not concern the National Legislature at all. Mr. HULBERT, against the protest of some of the members, wasted time which could have been put to more profitable use in the late hours of the session. His strong opposition to Mayor MITCHEL was already well known, he has made no secret of it; before the selection of Mr. HYLAN, Mr. HULBERT had been talked of as a possible Tammany candidate for Mayor. His associates in Congress, therefore, needed no enlightenment as to where he stood in regard to the contest in this city for decent government. There is no reason to believe that any of them cares any more than the host of ardent supporters of Mayor MITCHEL here care. The city can be saved without the help of HULBERT and in spite of the fury of his opposition.

The bad taste shown in the discussion in the House of Representatives of a contest which has nothing to do with national polities, the misuse of his privilege as a member to gain Tammany popularity, are matters for public condemnation. The incident reveals Mr. HULBERT in a clear light as a politician to whom a Tammany renomination for Congress is of more importance than the favorable repute he has gained hitherto as the sponsor of one or two good measures.

PUNISHMENT FOR DODGERS.

Official figures of the number of drafted men who have thus far evaded the call to the colors are lacking. In this city and its neighborhood the number of dodgers is known to be relatively small, and here the draft has drawn upon an enormous population of young men of foreign birth, lately become citizens, and of foreign descent, who have inherited strong prejudice against conscription as it has been practiced in Europe. It is known, also, that in other cities, towns, and villages of the country there have been comparatively few draft dodgers. Perhaps in the more remote regions the proportion has been larger. The Federal Government has now issued a warning to all men who are trying to evade the draft and has offered a reward of $50 for the apprehension of any dodger. They still will have a chance to explain their delay, but unless the explanation is reasonable they will be imprisoned. None of them will escape military service.

It is not conceivable that any of them can remain in hiding. Getting out of the country is no easy matter these days, and the reward will make it hard for any dodger to escape arrest. The plight of such men when they get to the camps, in which nine hundred and ninety-nine in every thousand of the drafted men have taken to the routine of training with abundant enthusiasm, will not be enviable. They will scarcely be welcomed as comrades, and theirs will be a lonesome lot until they get well into training and show that they are the stuff from which good soldiers are made. Most men are, happily. There are few natural slackers. Such will never be tolerated in any army. These fellows have been influenced to defy the law by the pernicious pacifist and pro-German agitation, which neither the Federal nor the State Governments have hitherto been alert enough to suppress. If that sort of written and spoken disloyalty had been suppressed earlier, in view of this great national task of military preparation, there would be very few draft dodgers.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

No Matter If It Is Impossible.

A Boston genius bearing with a fine old New England air the name of GARABED T. K. GIRAGOSSIAN seems to have convinced the members of the House Committee on Patents that he has devised a means of moving ships, airplanes, railway trains—all sorts of machinery, in short—at any desired speed over any desired distances without the inconvenient expenditures for fuel that hitherto have been preliminary to the doing of such work. Perhaps "convinced" exaggerates a little the persuasive powers of Mr. GIRAGOSSIAN as applied to these committeemen, but there is apparently no doubt that they have been sufficiently impressed by his demonstrations—or was it by his claims?—to introduce and get passed by the House, 234 to 14, a bill in effect directing the Secretary of the Interior, with the assistance of five scientists, to investigate and report on this wonderful discovery with a view to its purchase by the Government.

It is evident, therefore, that these Congressmen see nothing incredible in an announcement of ability to run machinery at no cost for power, and that they are not as much puzzled as some other people will be by the one revelation as yet made by Mr. GIRAGOSSIAN as to the nature of his discovery, which is that the success of his engine is due to "the utilization of free energy." The phrase "free energy" is an articulate noise, but that is about the best that can be said for it, and people with long memories will be reminded by it of a certain once famous, and a little later notorious, motor that ran briskly on the vibrations of nothing in particular until some meddlesome reporters revealed that its "power" differed from other "power" only in that its familiar source had been rather deftly concealed from observation.

Such memories, however, are not entirely to be trusted; at any rate, they prove nothing in regard to Mr. GIRAGOSSIAN, his new prime mover, or the sophistication of the House Committee on Patents. Wise people, in these latter days, are cautiously slow about declaring anything impossible except "perpetual motion" in its old, barefaced form, and the more they know about the activities of molecules and atoms, and about the violent dances of ions, the more patiently are they likely to be in listening to talk about "free energy."

If Mr. GIRAGOSSIAN's machines will help to beat the Germans, he will get his reward, even if what he proposes does look a good deal like a miracle.

Convicted by His Defense.

Even of bad cases there is usually a best to be made. The bests get poorer and poorer, nowever, as the cases get worse and worse, and for the very worst of them nothing at all, or less, can be done by the ablest of advocates. Such is the unfortunate fate of the case—his own—which Professor CATTELL dealt with in the statement printed yesterday. It accomplished nothing except the repeating and the emphasizing of the offense for which he was extruded from the Columbia Faculty, and, instead of justifying his course in the past, it wakened legitimate apprehensions as to what his activities are likely to be in the future.

He had no difficulty, it is true, in proving that he has spoken and written with severity about the German war lord, but he was unable to refrain from again revealing that, in his opinion, participation in war for any reason whatever is wrong, and all who take part in it deserve the same condemnation as do those who make unprovoked attacks on their neighbors. Not content with condemning the "kleptocratic class" in Germany, he ascribed the fighting done by all the other European nations to the instigation or compulsion of their own like groups, and by necessary implication he joined ourselves with them, now that we, too, have entered the conflict.

That is characteristic of all pacifists, and all of them who are outside of Germany protest in vain that they are not pro-Germans, for Germany could have no better service than she gets from men or women who assert the absence of any moral difference between any of the belligerents. For that is exactly Germany's contention—now. Should it prevail, though she may not win the war, she will be able to enter the ultimate peace conference on a level with all the others present and claim that her losses are as pathetic and as worthy of indemnity as are those of France and England, or even those of Belgium or Serbia. To do this is her one hope, and Professor CATTELL and his kind are doing what they can to help her attain it.

Such work is intolerable in a teacher of American youth, and in the opinion of not a few it is intolerable in a man who is a citizen of, or lives in, the United States. Probably it is not treason, as technically defined, but in spirit and effect it certainly verges far in that direction. There is a difference between the Central Empires and the nations allied against them, and those who cannot see it are blind indeed.

Perhaps It Was a Grave Jest.

A more charitable view of "The Coming" than was recently presented in this column is possible. It may be that what Mr. SNAITH intended was not to present his village idiot as an exponent of the higher wisdom needed by the world in these troubled times, but to satirize by exaggeration the mysticism that is creeping into so much, and too much, of current reading and discussion.

This is a fairly plausible theory of his intention, for in his novel Mr. SNAITH describes so accurately a victim of paranoia in one of its most familiar forms that there is a good deal of reason for believing that he understood his John Smith perfectly, and well knew that John Smith's delusion was of no greater or different significance than it would have been had he imagined himself JULIUS CAESAR, Queen VICTORIA, or, for that matter, a teapot or a wheelbarrow. Instances of all these "reincarnations" and of many another are to be found in any large insane asylum, and any one of them is exactly as "spiritual" as any of the others.

There is at least a chance, therefore, that instead of criticising Mr. SNAITH as a mystic, he should be praised as a humorist, and that the discriminating will join him in laughing at the people who have taken his book as a serious exposition of his own opinions and aspirations.

Excess Profits of the South.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Much publicity is being given by Congress to the excess profits of corporations, but none to the excess profits of the Southern planters. When the munitions tax was passed, for some unexplained reason, cotton was exempted. In the bill for price fixing cotton was again exempted. And now while we are told of the millions made by this or that corporation, no mention is made of the fact that the excess profits on cotton and corn will probably be over $2,000,000,000.

ISHII'S ASSURANCES.

Professor G. B. Adams Sees Peace if They Are Adhered To.

There can be no doubt, I think, but that your editorial of this morning on Japan's policy in China fairly represents the impression which Viscount Ishii's mission has made on public opinion, at least in this part of the country. He has not merely succeeded, as no previous representative of Japan has done, in discovering and understanding the sensitive spots in American feeling about Japan's Chinese policy, but with great tact he has known how to say the things best adapted to quiet our apprehensions, and at the same time he has made us believe in his full frankness and sincerity. If he really represents Japan in what he says, if no future Government is going to explain away his pledges concerning her Asiatic policy, then we may hope, as you say, that all chance that difficulties might arise between the United States and Japan out of the development of her policy toward China has been permanently removed.

This is the vital question, and it is one which we cannot answer, and one which Viscount Ishii can hardly help us to answer. What has given the thoughtful student of foreign affairs so much doubt about Japan's intentions has not been any particular aggression on her part. It has rather been the fact that her acts and her diplomacy for the last twenty years have seemed to be in spirit, method and apparent purpose so nearly like Germany's colonial policy for the thirty or more years preceding the war, especially in regard to England. Her conduct has been a series of small aggressive acts, no one of any great importance, but all pointing in one direction and all tending to awaken disquiet and apprehension on our part. Her diplomacy has been constantly occupied in explaining these acts away, in trying to convince us that they mean nothing, and to create a belief that she has no ulterior designs. In the meantime there has come to us a continuous stream of rumors and more definite but unofficial statements of Japanese preparations, investigations, plans, and private, but sometimes organized, enterprises which all fall in with the line of our unavoidable suspicions. It is quite unnecessary to draw the parallel with the methods of Germany since 1880. This is clearly not the conduct of a Government which we have no right to suspect. England's interests in China have been during this period materially and morally, in everything except what arises from propinquity, as great as Japan's. French interests in Southern China have been large. Our own have not been small and we have sometimes perhaps thought them larger than they were. But in none of these cases has diplomacy been obliged to be constantly disavowing any design of large aggression or to exert its utmost to keep other parties in interest from too serious objection.

Even if the inferences from these facts were more certain than they can be, they would not necessarily point out the future. Change is always possible, but this is the ground of any doubt that may linger in our minds, and the future only can remove these doubts. All that we have to go upon at present is Viscount Ishii himself, and that would seem to be a good deal. His great strength with us is his air of perfect frankness and sincerity. This is what we have felt the need of from Japan, and let us hope, as you suggest, that this is what we are now in truth getting.

Before a Lincoln Statue.

If one would see a statue which will "make immortality safe for a democrat," I recommend a visit on a pleasant afternoon to the sedentary statue of Lincoln by Borglum before the Newark Court House. There is no finer school for democracy in any city than the bronze bench where, among the people, the bowed figure sits as if to rest awhile with them. Children love to cluster round him. One can rarely pass the spot when they are not sitting by his side looking with wonder akin to reverence into his great eyes, or nestling in his arms, standing on his huge knees, coiling their arms about his neck, and stroking the wearied face. They claim him as their own. They behave as if they knew their actions pleased him. It is one of the sights of the city.

One Sunday afternoon, when led almost to "tremble for my country" because of what my eyes had seen and my ears had heard, I saw one of our dark-haired aliens with his two children approach the statue. They gazed for a long time while the father listened to the children as they told him what they knew of Lincoln. At last, in response to their request, drawing nearer, the man lifted up each of them by turns. The boy stroked admiringly the great bronze face while his own face glowed as if the living Lincoln had spoken to him. The girl, in her turn, put her arms around his neck and gently kissed the cheek. With moistened eyes I passed on with a new confidence in my heart as I whispered to myself: "All is well; this is Lincoln's land."

Flemish Names, Not German.

I feel very sorry to observe the tendency of your paper to Germanize France. Your little map is covered with horrible German names.

New York, Sept. 26, 1917. READER.

THE GREAT GRAY SHIP AT HOBOKEN.

Call me not alien! I have breathed your air
Too long for that: I bear your colors, too,
And wear the fighting gray!
How long, O Lord,
How long, how long, must I lie idle here,
My giant form mocked at by puny craft
That puff and wheeze in childish impotence?
Use me, O Country that is now my own!
Fill my deep bosom with the nourishment
That starving children cry for, overseas!
I ache for action! Oh, to feel the waves
Again salute me with their foaming crests—
The wind, that long has whispered in my ear
With low, persuasive murmurs as I lay
Supine as Hercules at Omphale's knee,
A sudden changing to a comrade's voice,
Shouting a stormy welcome as I come!
Ah, might I thus vicariously atone
For wrongs committed by those war-mad men
Who formed me, launched me, sent me to your shores!
Where they have starved and beggared, let me bring
The saving grain, the stores of clothes and arms—
The ardent men who sail to save the world
From tyranny and torture and despair!
They cry, "More ships!" I hear them in my dreams!
I wear your colors, and the fighting gray;
The tide of Fate is rising—let me go!

NO EXCUSE FOR COAL RISE.

Fuel Administrator Says He Is Ready to Act Against Dealers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The Fuel Administration has taken the position that there is no excuse for an increase in coal prices to the consumer; in fact, that there should be a decrease under the tentative rules announced for the fixing of the margin between the retailer and the public.

Dr. M. A. Garfield, Fuel Administrator, today stated that the Government was prepared to take drastic action if it was shown to him that any dealers were guilty of frauds, and the Fuel Administration would welcome and investigate complaints which seemed legitimate ones.

Dealers refusing to obey the orders of the Fuel Administration, he said, would be prosecuted in the courts, as the food control law carries a penalty of $5,000 or imprisonment or both. Should the facts obtained warrant it, Dr. Garfield added, there would be no hesitation in taking over the business of such dealers and operating it under Federal auspices.

The Administration's order concerning the manner in which the retailer's margin should be arrived at became effective, Dr. Garfield said, on Oct. 1, with its publication in the Government's Official Bulletin. It provided that in no case should the margin be in excess of that charged in July, 1917, and Dr. Garfield said that he know of no sections of the country where the price of coal to the consuming public was higher at that time than it is today.

Dr. Garfield added that agents of the Federal Trade Commission were in New York City and other communities making investigations and watching the developments. One of these agents, he said, with the full power of the Federal Government behind him, might at any time drop into the offices of coal operators and inspect their books to determine whether the rules of the Fuel Administration were being put into effect. Later, when local committees were organized, Dr. Garfield said, complaints would be considered by them and thorough surveys made.

JOHN MITCHELL SWORN IN.

Food Chief Takes Office and Board Is to Organize Next Week.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 4.—John Mitchell, head of the new Food Control Commission, took the oath of office here today, and then, after a conference with Governor Whitman, announced that the commission would meet at the Capitol on Tuesday to perfect organization. The commission will have its headquarters here and branch offices in New York and some of the other cities in the State.

Mr. Mitchell declined to discuss the food situation or the program of the Food Control Board, saying that he had not studied the outlook nor met President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell University and former Commissioner of Agriculture Charles A. Wieting to talk over with them the work of the commission.

Mr. Mitchell said that an effort would be put on foot early to co-ordinate the activities of citizens and volunteer organizations directed toward food economy so as to render these truly co-operative agencies.

MAY NOT CUT COAL PRICES.

Spokesman of Dealers Declares Profit Margin Is Small.

The order issued by Dr. Garfield, the Fuel Controller, regulating the profits of retail coal dealers will not cut the cost of coal to consumers in this city, according to the present opinion of large dealers. Frank Burns of Burns Brothers said yesterday that his company had not yet been able to digest the order sufficiently to understand its effect on prices. Correspondence between the Coal Merchants Association, Inc., and the Washington authorities, it was hoped, would clear up complex points in the order.

Commissioner Arthur F. Rice of the Coal Merchants Association, whose opinion is that the Fuel Controller's order will have little or no effect on retail prices, said that the cost of coal to the retailer today was about $8 a ton and that the average profit was about 25 cents a ton. In a statement regarding the situation he said:

"There is a very general impression that retail profits are large, even as high as $1 or $2 per ton. As a matter of fact, I know of no business in which, considering the amount of capital and effort involved, the margin of profit is so small. No dealer, big or little, in this town has averaged in the last ten years to make as much as 25 cents per ton, and his profit has almost invariably been smaller than that.

"It is my conviction that a profit of 50 cents per ton on the domestic sizes and 25 cents on the steam sizes would be a fair one, and I believe any commission of business men would allow at least those margins. As that would be a higher return than the retailers are now enjoying, I see no reason why prices can be, or will be, any lower here than they are today. And in the face of the huge advances in the prices of everything entering into the household economy, and considering the fact that the retail coal prices are only about 15 per cent. higher than last year, I do not believe the public or the Government will find cause or inclination to criticise the retail dealers in New York, or the prices now prevailing here, provided the facts are made known."

GOVERNOR NAMES FRIEDSAM

President of B. Altman & Co. Becomes Quartermaster General.

Michael Friedsam, President of B. Altman & Co., received yesterday from Governor Whitman his commission as Quartermaster General of the National Guard of New York. Mr. Friedsam has long been interested in movements for civic and public betterment. As the New York merchants' representative of the National Food Administration, he recently started a movement here to organize the merchants of this State in the interest of food conservation. He was recently named Chairman of an educational committee of the Fusion forces to teach the public the virtues of the Gary system and what the Mitchel Administration has done to improve the public education of the city. Mr. Friedsam succeeds General Henry S. Sternberger, who is now in the national service.

"I have received my commission from the Governor," said Mr. Friedsam, "and I am much pleased because it will widen my field of opportunity for public service. I feel that I shall be able to use for the benefit of the State, as Quartermaster General, my experience as a merchant. At this time of national crisis every one has a duty to perform, and while all cannot go to the front, we can at least contribute a share to the public welfare. It is for this more than for any other reason that I am glad to accept the appointment.

"Every effort these days must be directed toward helping the country to win the war, for we have entered a contest which must be fought to a successful termination in the interest of democracy and humanity. All of us have a part to play, whether it is in the conservation of food or in making sacrifices to purchase Liberty Bonds. I shall take up my duties whenever the Governor instructs me to do so."

HOMES FOR WAR WORKMEN.

Government Plans to Improve Living Conditions Near Big Plants.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Crowded living conditions which are hampering war work in industrial centres were discussed today by the National Defense Council's Advisory Commission, with a view to formulating some policy by which quick relief might be afforded either through actual Government financing of community home building or aiding private enterprises.

The situation is particularly acute in Bridgeport, Conn., Akron, Ohio, Newport News, and Norfolk, Va., and in several New Jersey towns, the commission was told by Phillip Hiss, a New York architect, who is Chairman of the Council's Subcommittee on Housing, which has just visited Eastern and Mid-western industrial centres. Immediate relief is necessary if important war industries are to be properly expanded.

President Wilson's attention was called to the situation several weeks ago and he requested immediate investigation and recommendations.

SHERRILL APPEALS FOR NEW MILITIA

TO STOP GRAFT IN GUARD

Committee Appointed to Devise Effective Use of State Armories and Camps.

Brig.-Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, Adjutant-General of the State of New York, in appealing yesterday to the members of the Chamber of Commerce, in their regular monthly meeting, for co-operation in the work of creating public confidence in the work of the new National Guard which has been created to take the place of the men drafted into the national army, told them, as an incidental indication of the seriousness of the work being done, that last week alone the State troops, guarding the New York Aqueduct, were fired on five times on various posts.

"Governor Whitman asked me to come and see you and ask you to co-operate," said General Sherrill. "It is his desire to be a worthy successor of the other war Governors of our State, and he wanted me to tell you briefly what we are trying to do. We want to know whether our armories are being handled as business propositions, and if not, why not. For instance, we have had an offer of $650,000 for the State Arsenal at Thirty-fifth Street and Seventh Avenue, and we have to go to the business men to tell us whether it is a good offer or not.

"Over and above the work which other States have to do, we have the tremendous responsibility and problem of guarding the vast accumulations of goods to be shipped overseas to our own men and our allies. They come to this port from all parts of the country, and it is our business to guard these goods for the nation. It is a serious responsibility.

"Then we had to form a new guard to take the place of the men who went out on the President's call. It was a big task, but on the night of Oct. 1 we had our 10,000 men enlisted. Then there has been the very disagreeable work of conducting the operations of the draft law. As a business man, in view of the past record of draft laws in this country, I made my preparations for serious trouble, and it is a great tribute to the patriotism of New York State that we were disappointed. No higher proof of patriotism could be asked than the fact that there was not the slightest trouble all over the State in regard to the operation of this very trying law.

"Then we have superseded the system of two-week tours of duty in guarding the aqueduct, which put a trying responsibility upon business men who were needed at home, by forming two regiments and a provisional battalion to perform this duty permanently. We also weeded out all men with dependents from this duty, and sent them home.

"The newspapers have complained because some guard officers have been removed. Well, when I took charge one officer who was supposed to be drawing one salary of $3,500 a year was found to be drawing three separate salaries at once, aggregating $11,000 a year. I removed him, and I'll remove every man I find doing the same thing. The politicians may not like it, but I'm not a politician, and I don't care.

"But we cannot do the work we have to do; we cannot do all this guarding with only 10,000 men. We must have a greater force with us—the force of public confidence. It is to help us secure that that I have come to you gentlemen.

"We have, up the river, a fine camp site for manoeuvres and mobilization—Camp Whitman. Early this year the Federal Government telegraphed us and said they wanted this site for a mobilization camp. We expended $70,000 of the State's money making the camp site ready for them, and then when we told them it was ready we were told they didn't want it. Since then we have tendered it for an aviation training ground and they have considered it, and haven't taken it. It is before them now on a standing tender, but they haven't used it.

"Now there has been complaint about this; that Camp Whitman has been poorly managed, and the money not well expended. Well, if that is so; if the camp is not being run in businesslike fashion, we want to know about it, and we want to make it businesslike. Consequently I want to ask your Chamber to appoint a committee to investigate Camp Whitman and make recommendations. If I might suggest, we would like to have one engineer, one trained business man, and one man, if possible, who has served in the Guard and knows something about the conditions and needs. A committee like that can help immensely in securing public confidence in what we are doing."

A motion to authorize the President of the Chamber to appoint such a committee, and to authorize the committee to carry out General Sherrill's suggestions was unanimously adopted.

CHAMBER HONORS SELIGMAN.

Resolutions Tell of Public Services Rendered by Banker.

The Chamber of Commerce of New York yesterday, at its regular monthly meeting, unanimously adopted the following resolutions of respect for the memory of the late Isaac N. Seligman:

> The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York has lost in the death of Isaac N. Seligman, one of its most valued members. Mr. Seligman joined the Chamber in 1888, and from the very first took an active part in its affairs. He was always ready to act in any capacity and give liberally of his time and means. He had served on various committees and delegations and was, at the time of his death, Chairman of the Committee on State and Municipal Taxation and a member of the Executive Committee. He had given considerable time to the study of taxation and had prepared and presented a number of valuable reports on this important subject.
> Mr. Seligman, while occupying a prominent place in the financial and commercial world, did not confine his activities to business affairs. He was ever ready to take part in charitable, civic, and public matters, and gave to them the benefit of his wide experience and ripe judgment. He had great charm of manner and a pleasing and striking personality, and his friends were many.
> The Chamber of Commerce directs that there be entered upon the records of the Chamber its realization of the great loss sustained by the death of Mr. Seligman, who was for so long a period an active member, and always a sturdy upholder of its ideals and traditions. The Chamber directs further that a copy of this minute be sent to the family of Mr. Seligman.

Eulogies to Mr. Seligman's memory were delivered by Alfred E. Marling and R. Fulton Cutting, in seconding the adoption of the resolutions. "The business world has lost a banker of the highest probity and ability, the city has lost an intelligent and devoted citizen, and the members of the Chamber of Commerce have lost a loyal and valued friend," said Mr. Marling.

"He gave himself unreservedly to all movements for the benefit of the city," said Mr. Cutting. "Possibly there are very few men to whom this community is more indebted."

The Chamber also passed resolutions electing Levi P. Morton an honorary member, in recognition of his many years of public service and his long participation in its activities, to which he was elected in 1856, being the oldest living member.

RED CROSS PARADE CHEERED BY 300,000

WAR COUNCIL HEADS LINE

Women's Uniforms Range from Hospital White to Field Service Boots and Slickers.

New York's legion of Red Cross women, the largest body of war nurses ever gathered together in this country, paraded in Fifth Avenue yesterday and provided the most picturesque and splendid of the many great spectacles which this city has witnessed in recent weeks.

Three hundred thousand New Yorkers cheered the great army of women, while moved in blocks of dazzling white, made more dazzling by the contrast of occasional units wearing the Red Cross coat of navy blue with brilliant red lining.

Among them were units clad in rough and ready slickers and heavy boots—the garments they will wear in the emergency work of caring for the wounded men of Pershing's army in Europe. It was the first great Red Cross parade ever held in this country, and one of the most impressive demonstrations of the scale of American war preparation.

Cheered by 300,000.

The police estimated that more than 300,000 persons crowded the sidewalks of Fifth Avenue to cheer the nurses who are going overseas and those who are preparing to answer the call at later dates. Leading the great column of many colors was the famous United States Naval Band from the Great Lakes Training Station at Chicago, the leader of which is Lieutenant John Philip Sousa, who marched at their head. This band numbers 250 musicians, and in point of numbers is the largest in the world. The band was brought to New York on a special train, and received an ovation that started at Sixtieth Street and continued until it reached the disbanding point in Washington Square.

Fifth Avenue was a mass of red crosses. The great banners were everywhere. They fluttered from ropes stretched across the avenue, they were draped over the fronts of the buildings, and flew from hundreds of staffs erected for the occasion. And everybody who marched carried either the emblem of the Red Cross or the Stars and Stripes, while from the Liberty-capped columns behind the reviewing stand hung other giant flags.

The only mounted persons in the parade were the police, who cleared the way ahead, and Colonel William Hayward, the grand marshal. Everybody else walked except those who drove the ambulances which are soon to be in service in France, the women and girls on the only two floats in line, and the delegation of the Atlantic City Chapter, who rode in boardwalk chairs pushed by negroes, who were sent to New York for that purpose. It was the first procession of rolling chairs that ever traversed Fifth Avenue.

The parade was scheduled to start at noon, but it was forty-five minutes after that time when the occupants of the reviewing stand sighted the head of the column moving south at St. Patrick's Cathedral. The arrangements, as it soon developed, were perfect, and from start to finish there was not an unhappy incident. The women marched in splendid alignment, and the commanders of the units gave their commands "eyes right" always at the proper time, and generally with the correct military pitch.

The formation was of platoons, the women marching sixteen abreast. After the War Council officials came Miss Jane Delano, Miss Caroline Van Blarcom, and other national officials of the nursing service; after them the officials of the Atlantic Division, then the New York County Chapter, led by its Vice Chairman, Mrs. William Kinnicutt Draper. Next came the women everybody wanted most to see; those who are soon to cross the Atlantic to aid American soldiers and their allied comrades in France.

"Magnificent Women."

As they came swinging down the avenue Secretary Daniels remarked, "They are magnificent women," and that remark expressed the opinion of all the thousands who cheered and wished them good luck and a safe return after victory is won.

The women in each unit were dressed alike. In one they all wore the gray of the field service. Others showed the blue traveling uniform, and still others half hid their white dresses under long red lined capes, which gave perhaps the most pleasing effect in yesterday's picture.

There were units from Bellevue, the Presbyterian, St. Luke's, Mount Sinai, Beth Israel, the New York, the French, St. Vincent's, the Hahnemann, and the German Hospitals of Manhattan, the Kings County of Brooklyn, and St. Mary's of Hoboken, every unit made up of graduate nurses who are ready for the call whenever it comes. No unit received more generous applause than the nurses from the German Hospital.

There were more than fifty chapters of the Red Cross represented in the parade, among them the Brooklyn, the Bronx, the Richmond, the Southern, and the Northern of Suffolk County, Newark, Paterson, Edgewater, Jersey City, New Haven, Stamford, and a score of other cities and towns near New York.

The women of the National Surgical Dressings Committee, a Red Cross auxiliary, which to date has sent more than 18,000,000 dressings to the Allies in Europe, had a big float drawn by four white horses. On the float were six young women making the dressings, cutting them with the special machines used for the purpose.

Mrs. Josephus Daniels, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, led the Washington delegation, which marched in the second division, one of her aids being Mrs. J. Borden Harriman.

In the fifth and last division of the parade were the ambulances, the big supply motor trucks, a coffee wagon, which already has brewed more than 100,000 cups of the beverage for tired American soldiers, and the men and women of the canteen camp and sanitary services.

Two Red Cross dogs, one of them a famous veteran named Tristan, were also in line, and both these intelligent animals appeared to fully appreciate the part they are to play later on in the first line danger zone.

There were a score of bands, including three artillery and two infantry organizations of the regular army; the Marine Band from the Navy Yard, the Police Band, and the Letter Carrier Bands from New York and the Bronx.

One great banner carried in the parade announced that the membership of the Red Cross is now more than 4,000,000.

'PICKETS' MUTINY IN WORKHOUSE

SUPPRESSED BY NEGRESSES

Fierce Rough-and-Tumble Fight Attends Removal of Mrs. Johns to Asylum Hospital.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Militants of the Woman's Party serving time in the District of Columbia Workhouse for demonstrations before the White House were charged today with mutiny as a result of their rough-and-tumble fight yesterday with guards and negro women prisoners. The development furnishes a new phase for the investigation of conditions at the workhouse, undertaken by the Board of Charities on complaints of the militants.

The charge of mutinous conduct is made in a report by Alonzo Tweedale, auditor, in charge of the workhouse while the Superintendent is suspended pending outcome of the inquiry. A long story is told by the report of how the eighteen suffragists attacked the Acting Superintendent, the prison matron, and three male guards who had been called to the rescue when the officers sought to remove one of their number, Mrs. Margaret Johns, for medical treatment at the Washington Asylum Hospital.

It tells of negro women of the prison kitchen force rallying to the aid of their boss, the matron, when she was threatened with a blow on the head with a club, of a general wild scramble about the workhouse corridors and yard, and eventually of Mrs. Johns's departure for the hospital in a doctor's automobile after she and her guards had been much mauled and hauled about. The Acting Superintendent emphasizes the statement that extreme forbearance was shown the prisoners, the male guards obeying orders to handle them with every possible consideration in spite of all that happened.

Miss Alice Paul, head of the women's party, made a statement denying many of Mr. Tweedale's statements and declaring that the women interfered because they were not told where Mrs. Johns was to be taken, and feared that she was to be placed in confinement on bread and water. She also said Mrs. Johns was not removed for proper medical treatment when she really was ill, and that she had recovered when the authorities decided to take her to the hospital.

The workhouse is a big, unbarred structure on a farm near Washington. Its open doors made it easy for the suffragists, when they started on the warpath, to give their custodians a lively time.

J. F. RALPH RESIGNS AS ENGRAVING CHIEF

Noted Expert on the Manufacture of Currency to Join a New York Concern.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Joseph E. Ralph, for ten years director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, has resigned to become President of the United States Intaglio Surety Company, a new bank note corporation. It is supposed that he will be succeeded by Frank E. Ferguson, now Assistant Director, who has held that office during the entire incumbency of Mr. Ralph.

Mr. Ralph has brought the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to a high state of efficiency. The work of printing money, bonds and postage stamps has increased tremendously in recent years, but Mr. Ralph has met the additional tasks imposed upon him with a degree of energy and initiative that has frequently brought flattering comment from the high officials of the Treasury Department. As Director Mr. Ralph received a salary of $6,000. His salary as President of the new corporation will be $10,000, and in addition he will have large stock holdings. Representative Fitzgerald, Chairman of the House Committee on Appropriations, said recently that Mr. Ralph was "the foremost man in the manufacture of currency in the entire world."

"My resignation was given to Mr. McAdoo about a week ago," Mr. Ralph said tonight. "It has nothing whatever to do with the investigation which the departmental committee is conducting into the bureau's affairs, and has not been accepted, so far as I know. I am anxious to hear about what action has been taken, and assume that Secretary McAdoo will make a statement when he disposes of it."

The administration of the bureau has been under investigation for several months by a committee headed by Assistant Secretary Crosby, the investigation having originated from charges made by Representative Jeannette Rankin of Montana that Mr. Ralph was overworking the women employes there. A report made to Secretary McAdoo some time ago has not been made public.

DR. CARREL EXPLAINS CURES

Army and Navy Surgeons Throng Academy of Medicine.

Surgeons of the army and navy were largely represented in the lecture hall of the Academy of Medicine last night, where Dr. Alexis Carrel spoke on "Principles of the Treatment of Wounds." Long before Dr. Carrel's appearance on the platform the main hall was crowded and the audience had overflowed into and long filled a room at the left of the platform. Many found it impossible to get in and went away. Dr. Carrel, who is a Commander of the French Legion of Honor, wore the uniform of a Major in the French Army. At the end of an account of the irrigation method of treating wounds to prevent suppuration and the excellent results obtained, Dr. Carrel presented on a screen pictures of wounds and the audience had an opportunity to visualize the remarkable recoveries of which the surgeon had spoken.

The technique of the treatment had now been fully established, Dr. Carrell said, and he expressed the opinion that no surgical procedure which had been developed in recent years was of greater value. He believes it has lessened amputations by 50 per cent., and while the percentage of death due to infected wounds is impossible to estimate, practically every death could have been avoided if the case had been taken in hand soon enough. Even as it is the surgeons by the irrigation method of treatment have saved lives in cases where the wounded did not reach the hospitals from ten to thirty days.

Dr. Carrel laid particular stress on sterilization. From the moment the irrigation tubes are inserted in the wound the surgeons keep an exact day by day record, he said, and the lines on a chart mark the decrease in bacteria and follow the course to a complete cleansing of the wound. In the case of fractures, he said, the bacteria were higher and the strilization process took a longer time.

NAMES WHITE RATS REFEREE

Justice Mitchell Approves Inspection of Books of Union.

Upon charges that $200,000 of the funds of the White Rats Actors' Union has been misappropriated by the officers, Supreme Court Justice Mitchell approved yesterday the application by Goldie Pemberton, a member of the union, supported by affidavits of Harry De Veau, formerly an officer, and now head of the Actors' International Union, for the inspection of the books and papers of the organization. The plaintiff is suing for an accounting. The court appointed Lewis Schuldenfrei referee, to conduct the examination of the books.

The affidavit of De Veau stated that Harry Mountford, Secretary-Treasurer and executive officer of the organization, admitted that the misappropriation to the extent stated existed when President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor appointed a committee to investigate the affairs of the organization last November.

Hyams-Brentano Engagement.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Hyams of Brookline, Mass., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Isabelle Hyams, to Lowell Brentano, son of Mrs. Simon Brentano of Orange, N. J. Miss Hyams is a graduate of Radcliffe. She won the Wilby prize for most original work in English literature in 1916 and has received a degree of doctor of philosophy. Since that time she has been instructor in English at Wellesley College. Mr. Brentano expects to graduate from Harvard at the mid-year examinations.

MARKED IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN FRANCE

Army Conditions Good and Prospects Are For Less Suffering This Winter.

BY CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 4.—There has been an improvement all along the line in France in the last four months. It began about the time of Pershing's arrival, and I can see a marked change for the better in the past month.

The army conditions under Pétain are sound and solid and there is much less political weakness than early this Summer.

The Almeyreda, Turmel and Bolo cases have done good in opening sores and letting out pus. They have made any show of pacifism very unpopular in France and strengthened the will for victory.

Premier Painlevé has held his ground and gained more, and seems winning success in French politics by quiet good sense and steady courage minus pyrotechnics.

The Winter approaches with the prospect of less privation than last year, and there is nowhere any surface signs suggesting serious civilian unrest or discontent at bearing the direct brunt of German brute force. France has got her second wind.

MISS MONTGOMERY, BRIDE OF BANKER

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eglinton Montgomery Marries Rupert W. K. Anderson.

The wedding of Rupert Wentworth Kelsall Anderson of Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Marguerite Lynch Montgomery, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eglinton Montgomery of Rhinebeck, N. Y., was solemnized at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Church of the Incarnation. The bride's grandfather, the late Rev. Dr. Henry Eglinton Montgomery, was the first rector of this church on its present site. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Hugh E. Montgomery of Menlo Park, Cal., an uncle of the bride.

The bride wore a soft white chiffon frock over satin and a tulle veil. She carried white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Grace Sands Montgomery, in a yellow Georgette crêpe frock, with a large mushroom hat covered with matching crêpe, and her flowers were pale blue delphineum.

Alfred Fitz-Roy Anderson was his brother's best man, and the four ushers were Eglinton H. Montgomery, the bride's young brother; Robert Crane, Beverly M. Eyre, and Douglas C. Anderson. A small reception was held at the Gotham for relatives and intimate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will spend the Winter in New York.

G. P. DU PONT A SUICIDE; HAD BEEN ILL IN UTAH

Nephew of Powder Maker Shoots Himself While Motoring with Young Woman.

OGDEN, Utah, Oct. 4.—Gerald P. du Pont, 22 years old, son of Maurice du Pont of Boston and Nephew of Alfred du Pont of Wilmington, Del., committed suicide here today after leaving a hospital.

He had been suffering for several days from a nervous breakdown.

Du Pont shot himself on a State highway in a thickly populated part of the city while he was out riding with Miss Marian Browning, daughter of George E. Browning. Giving as an excuse that he desired to leave the automobile for a moment, he stepped out of the car, walked back a few paces and then drawing a pistol from his pocket, placed it to his head and fired. The bullet passed through his head.

The sound of the shot attracted the attention of women and children, and they rushed to the spot where the young man fell, arriving there at the same time as did Miss Browning. Du Pont was hurried to a local hospital, where he died about two hours later.

Du Pont came West for his health a short time ago, and went to the ranch of J. S. Turner at Lost Creek, a few miles east of Ogden. He said he wished to gain health preparatory to enlisting on an American submarine chaser.

JURY HEARS PRENDERGAST.

Testifies in Neponsit Inquiry—Mitchel to be Called.

Controller Prendergast went before the Grand Jury yesterday, at that body's request, to testify regarding the sale by the Neponsit Realty Company of Rockaway Point property to the city. He was on the witness stand for two hours, and will continue his testimony on Monday. It is understood that the Grand Jury will request Mayor Mitchel to appear before it after Controller Prendergast has completed his story.

Assistant District Attorney Black said yesterday that the first he had heard of the Controller's testifying was after Mr. Prendergast had been summoned by the Grand Jury. Mr. Black admitted that the District Attorney's office had been anxious to bring pressure to bear to compel Charles O'Malley, expert of the Finance Department, to waive immunity and testify. Mr. O'Malley hitherto has refused to waive immunity. Controller Prendergast refused to say anything about his testimony.

METHODISTS DISCUSS WAR.

Col. Roosevelt Is Chief Speaker Before Social Service Commission.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was the chief speaker yesterday afternoon at the third annual mid-year assembly of the Social Service Commission of the New York State Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in St. James's Church at Madison Avenue and 126th Street. Colonel Roosevelt allowed more than usual freedom to himself in his discussion of the war preparations of this country, because of an agreement that neither he nor any of the other speakers was to be quoted in the newspapers.

The general theme of the discussion was "The Work and Message of the Church in War Times." Other speakers were Dr. George E. Vincent, President of the Rockefeller Foundation; Ivy L. Lee, the Rev. Samuel S. Benson, the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, and George W. Perkins, who spoke on the churches in relation to the food situation.

23 MEN AND A WOMAN STARVE 9 DAYS IN BOAT

Captain's Wife Among the Survivors of Steamer Itaska, Sunk in Storm Off Bermuda.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Oct. 4.—Twenty-four survivors of the crew of the American steamer Itasca, picked up after being tossed about in an open boat nine days from the time the Itasca foundered, were brought here today by a steamer from Southern ports. The Itasca, bound from Bermuda to New York, sank in a tropical hurricane 250 miles off Bermuda. Captain W. Harold Bond of Rockland, Me., went down with his ship. His wife was among those saved.

The survivors, who were rescued about 250 miles off Nantucket, had suffered intensely from privation and exposure. Chief Engineer Elwell of Rockland, Me., died from exhaustion, and T. Smith of Bermuda, a fireman, who went insane and drank sea water when the fresh water supply in their boat ran out, died on the rescuing ship soon after he had been taken aboard.

The crew abandoned the Itasca in two boats, but later those in the smaller of the two boats were transferred to the larger one. Their only provisions were one and one-half casks of water and two tins of ship biscuit. During the last two days the supply of water, which had been carefully portioned out, became so low that the shipwrecked party could take turns only in wetting their lips, and the supply gave out entirely two hours before they were rescued. At that time there were only two of the biscuits left.

For the greater part of the nine days stormy weather prevailed and heavy seas swept the craft, drenching its occupants and making it necessary to bail frequently. When rescued Mrs. Bond was almost dead from exhaustion, and all the crew were on the verge of madness.

The Itasca, an iron steamship of 1,416 tons gross, was owned in Mobile, Ala. She was built in Wilmington, Del., in 1871.

TOKIO SPEEDS NEW MISSION.

Seeks Financial Ties Here—Wants to Co-operate in China.

TOKIO, Tuesday, Oct. 2, (Delayed.)—The America-Japan Society gave a dinner tonight in honor of the special financial commission which is to visit the United States. The speakers included Baron Tanetaro Megata, head of the mission; Viscount Motono, the Foreign Minister, and Viscount Kentaro Kaneko, Privy Councilor.

Baron Megata emphasized that Japan had succeeded in maintaining peaceful conditions on the Pacific and had contributed no less importantly in a financial way in support of the war. She should continue, he said, to equip herself and her allies for war work, and therefore it was necessary to study financial and economic measures for cooperation with the Allies, especially the United States.

Privy Councilor Kaneko said that only the joint efforts of America and Japan could exploit and develop the resources of China. In this connection, he said, Japan always would uphold the John Hay doctrine of equal opportunity and the open door.

Viscount Motono said he regarded with enthusiastic hopefulness the sending to America at this juncture of such a financial mission as that headed by Baron Megata, closely identified with the financial life of modern Japan. Recently, he continued, a clearer conception of Japan's aims and ideals had been replacing American misgivings. He was sure that this presaged a complete understanding, and cited as a signal evidence the hearty welcome given to the Japanese mission headed by Viscount Ishii. The Foreign Minister said he hoped the Megata mission would present to the American people frankly Japan's aims regarding China, born of the logic of necessity, and pave the way to successful co-operation there.

SAY DEALERS SOUGHT TO BOOST MILK PRICES

R. D. Cooper Asserts League Was Advised to 'Buy Short and Take Chance on Market.'

DR. EMERSON MAKES REPLY

Commissioner Declares He Refused Offer to Sell Direct to City Because of Lack of Power.

Excerpts from a circular letter said to have been written by the Secretary of the New York Milk Dealers' Conference Board to the members of that organization were given to the newspapers by R. D. Cooper, President of the Dairymen's League, yesterday, in an effort to prove that the big distributing companies of the city had conspired to curtail the available supply of milk so as to force an advance in the price. The letter, dated Sept. 27, 1917, and signed "I. Elkin Nathans, Secretary," stated that in view of the controversy with the farmers and the surplus of milk, "it would seem desirable" for the members of the Conference Board "to buy short and to take a chance on the market."

Mr. Cooper was angry over a statement made by Health Commissioner Emerson that between 300 and 400 more infants than in normal times had died last Summer of ailments resulting from the lack of a sufficient supply of milk, and he produced the circular letter to "counteract the intimation" conveyed by Dr. Emerson's statement that the Dairymen's League was indirectly responsible for this increase of mortality.

Not only had the Dairymen's League acted fairly with the distributors, Mr. Cooper said, but it had further demonstrated its desire to alleviate suffering among needy children of the city by offering to deliver milk directly for their use at a lower price than asked by the distributors. Mr. Cooper said that on last Tuesday he had told Dr. Emerson that the league would deliver 1,000 forty-quart cans, at 9 cents a quart, at any school house or hospital selected by the city, and had requested that the offer be conveyed to Mayor Mitchel, but that Dr. Emerson had notified Mr. Cooper on the following day that the city could not accept the offer. The price asked by the distributors for "loose" milk in cans is 10 cents a quart.

As additional evidence of the alleged "discriminatory" methods employed by the Health Department, Mr. Cooper cited alleged instances in which permits had been denied owners of dairies to distribute Grade A Milk, although their product, he said, was of better quality than the milk distributed by other companies who seemed to be in higher favor.

Finally, as his culminating charge for the day, Mr. Cooper asserted that a representative of Bailey B. Burritt, Director of the Society for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor, had informed him that if the league would contribute a certain quantity of milk daily to the society a great deal of favorable publicity would follow that would counteract the criticisms of the league because of the advancing price of milk. Mr. Cooper said he declined the offer.

"My attention was called to the fact that A. J. Milbank, one of the Directors of the Society for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor, was also a Director of the Borden's Condensed Milk Company," Mr. Cooper said, "and that the Borden Company had until recently been contributing 300 quarts of milk a day to the Society for the Improvement of the Condition of the Poor, and that it was now contributing 250 quarts a day."

Mr. Cooper met the reporters at the office of the Dairymen's League in West Fortieth Street after he and his associates had returned from the office of District Attorney Swann, where they had been ordered to appear with the records of their organization. They had been questioned at the District Attorney's office by Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, in direct charge of the milk inquiry. District Attorney Swann said later that additional information obtained removed all doubt that the case would go to the Grand Jury.

The District Attorney had also ordered the Borden Condensed Milk Company to produce its records, and these were brought to the office by S. J. Pearson, the Secretary of the milk company.

"The Dairymen's League has felt for some time that it was not receiving fair treatment from the city," Mr. Cooper said, leading up to his charges against Dr. Emerson and Mr. Burritt. "I visited Dr. Emerson in his office yesterday because of the statement that had been made by him in regard to the increased death rate among infants of the city, and the idea conveyed that the Dairymen's League was responsible for it.

"I told him I was prepared to deliver pasteurized Grade B milk in cans at 9 cents a quart in any place in the city designated by the Health Department for use at schoolhouses or at hospitals. I told Dr. Emerson some of the milk would be Grade A milk. After I had made the offer Dr. Emerson said he would have to confer with Mayor Mitchel to see how such an offer could be accepted and what arrangement could be made for delivering the milk to the people needing it; but today, when I talked to him on the telephone, he told me that the city could not accept the offer of the Dairymen's League. He said the city had no facilities for buying milk and then delivering it, and that the people affected by our offer would only save about $245 a year."

Dr. Emerson, upon being informed last night of Mr. Cooper's charges, said:

"It is true that Mr. Cooper came to my office and made a confidential statement that the Dairymen's League was willing to deliver milk in cans at nine cents a quart at any school house or hospital selected by the city. I told him that such an offer would have to be made to the Mayor and that if he desired a meeting I would arrange it. I also told him that before accepting such an offer the city would have to see if it had any facilities for carrying out the arrangement. After Mr. Cooper left my office I made inquiries and found out that the city was in no position to act as a purchaser of milk and that it had no facilities for making the deliveries that would be necessary under the offer of the Dairymen's League. So I called Mr. Cooper on the telephone and told him so today. Should Mr. Cooper desire to see the Mayor on the subject I shall be only too willing to try to make an appointment for him.

The Mayor's Milk Committee will start its hearing in the Assembly Room of the Department of Health at 10 o'clock this morning.

ORDERS AN INQUIRY INTO HEFLIN CHARGE

House Adopts Resolution to Investigate Statement Concerning German Influence.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The House with few dissenting votes adopted a resolution this afternoon calling for an investigation into the charges by Representative J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama that there are thirteen or fourteen members of Congress whose official conduct in connection with the war he regards as suspicious. This remark was made by Mr. Heflin on the floor on the day that Secretary Lansing made public the note which Count von Bernstorff wrote to the German Government, requesting authority to spend $50,000 to influence Congress.

A newspaper interview in which Mr. Heflin was quoted as saying that he had heard of a gambling room in Washington where peace-at-any-price members got their pay by extraordinary luck at cards, also is to be inquired into. Mr. Heflin has since denied that he ever made this statement. Two newspaper men who say he made the statement to them will be put on the stand by backers of the resolution to dispute Mr. Heflin's repudiation.

The author of the resolution, Representative Stephens of Mississippi, said that his purpose was to expel Mr. Heflin from the House unless he could substantiate the charges. Under the terms of the resolution the committee must report before the adjournment of Congress. Both houses today agreed to adjourn for the session on Saturday.

Speaker Clark appointed the following committee to conduct the inquiry: Barnhardt of Indiana, Chairman; Venable of Mississippi, Dewalt of Pennsylvania, Longworth of Ohio, and Walsh of Massachusetts. Longworth and Walsh are Republicans.

CIVIL RIGHTS BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Preparing for Stump, Members Go on Record for Protecting Fighters from Creditors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The Civil Rights bill, which exempts members of the military and naval forces of the United States from many sorts of legal actions against them, was passed this afternoon by the House. Although assured that the Senate had no intention of approving the bill, which that body regards as unconstitutional, the House decided to put itself on record before members began their stumping campaign to explain and popularize the war.

One provision of the bill is that, if suit is brought in any court for a judgment, the plaintiff must make an affidavit showing that the defendant is not in military service. If he is unable to do this, he cannot obtain a judgment unless the court makes a special order to that effect. Judgment by default in the absence of the defendant is forbidden. If it is doubtful if the defendant is in military service, the plaintiff must file a bond to protect the defendant's rights if it should develop he is in such service.

REWARD AFTER A CENTURY.

N. Y. U. Gets Half Million from Telegraph Invented in Its School.

By the receipt of one-third of the residuary estate of more than $1,500,000, bequeathed by Miss Kate Collins Brown, New York University becomes the beneficiary of its own invention, the telegraph, nearly a century after Samuel B. Morse invented the recording electric telegraph in the old university building at Washington Square. Perry McDonough Collins, the uncle from who Miss Brown inherited her fortune, conceived the idea of an overland European telegraph system in 1856, received the concessions, but never carried out his plan because of the successful laying of the Atlantic cable. But the sale of his concessions to the Western Union Telegraph Company was the making of the fortune, part of which now goes to New York University.

Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown of the university told the story yesterday. After conceiving the idea of wires to connect all the commercial units of the world, Mr. Collins studied the resources of the Pacific coast, especially in connection with the coast of Asia, opposite. He planned to extend his wires along the coast and to cross Siberia to Western Europe, thus making an all-land connection, except across Bering Strait and the English Channel. The Amur River was fixed by Mr. Collins to be the penetrating wedge by means of which American commerce was to open up Northern Asia. After conferring with President Pierce, Secretary Marcy, and the Russian Ambassador in Washington, Mr. Collins was appointed as commercial agent of the United States for the Amur River on March 24, 1856. But his ideas never materialized, because of Cyrus W. Field's completion of his Atlantic cable. However, Mr. Collins had valuable concessions, which were the nucleus of the fortune of Miss Brown.

In leaving the residuary estate jointly to New York University, Columbia University, and the Presbyterian Hospital Miss Brown carried out the provisions of an earlier will made by her uncle in which he willed his residuary estate in the same manner in case of his niece's death prior to his own.

Chancellor Brown announced yesterday that the income from the endowment would be used largely for scholarship funds.

OTTAWA PARLIAMENT ENDS ITS SESSIONS

Dissolved as Step Toward Election—Guthrie Takes Post of Solicitor General.

OTTAWA, Oct. 4.—Paving the way for an election, the Canadian Government today dissolved Parliament. The election is expected to take place about the middle of January.

Hugh Guthrie, Liberal member of Parliament for South Wellington, Ontario, was sworn in today as Solicitor General in the Borden Administration. The post does not give Cabinet rank, but it is understood that Mr. Guthrie will be made a Privy Council Lord immediately.

leader at the last session of Parliament as a supporter of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but broke with the Opposition Leader at the last session of Parliament over the question of conscription.

Sir George Perley, who has been acting High Commissioner for Canada since Lord Strathcona died in 1914, has accepted a permanent appointment to the position. In doing so he ceases to be Canadian Minister of Militia-Overseas. It is understood that Sir James Lougheed is to take the Overseas militia portfolio and will leave for London in the near future to resume the duties which Sir George has been carrying on for the last year.

A.G.WHEELER, JR., BANKRUPT

Several New Yorkers Among Creditors of Chicago Tunnel Builder's Son.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Albert G. Wheeler, Jr., a son of the late Albert G. Wheeler, the Chicago terminal builder, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy today scheduling liabilities of $546,785 and giving his assets as $4,578. Mr. Wheeler has been much in the public eye in connection with his matrimonial experiences. He was formerly a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Mr. Wheeler is a broker, and his counsel stated that the bankruptcy proceedings were caused by indebtedness incurred by indorsing notes for the elder Wheeler, who died about a month ago.

EXPORTERS SEE WAY OF BEATING GERMANY

National Foreign Trade Council Asks American Dealers to Aid War Policy.

TO HOLD NEUTRAL BUSINESS

Banks, Merchant Marine, and Shippers Represented in Convention at Hotel Biltmore.

Speakers at the annual convention of the National Foreign Trade Council, held at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday, exhorted American business men to do all they could to aid the Government in its war policy of exports control. At the same time the necessity was voiced for maintaining trade with neutrals at the highest point consonant with safety because of the necessity of maintaining a heavy gold reserve to back up the financing of the war against Germany. It was pointed out that heavy exports would be essential to the successful conduct of the war.

The Committee on Exports Control submitted a report covering the manner in which the National Foreign Trade Council has worked with the Administration in the development of the exports control law.

"It will be appreciated," said the report, "that the task of framing and carrying into effect the regulations which will accomplish the purposes sought to be attained is one of unusual difficulty, and that there must be at the outset a certain amount of interference with legitimate business and of failure to comprehend all of the possible effects of measures that might be taken.

"The paramount consideration, which we must constantly keep before us, is that of winning the war and of doing so in the shortest possible time, as unless we win the war, nothing else can be of any importance. In any criticism, therefore, of the methods employed in the administration of exports control, we must bear in mind the objects sought, and any suggestions we make should be such as will not interfere with or weaken in the slightest degree the efforts to attain those objects."

In the discussion which followed the presentation of the report, members of the committee strongly indorsed it.

The report on merchant marine, prepared by P. A. S. Franklin, head of the International Mercantile Marine, said:

"The task of American ships when peace is restored will no longer be the transportation of men and munitions of war to the battle grounds of Europe. It will be the transportation of American merchandise to all the ports of the world and the re-establishment of the flag of the United States as a familiar sight in all of the seven seas."

Lewis E. Pierson of the Irving National Bank said in his report on banking facilities in foreign trade "that whenever the Government requires the total possible production of any article, whether for war or peace, it must pay such prices for that article as will return a fair profit to the producer; otherwise, if that producer cannot secure a fair return upon his labor and investment he will not labor or invest and production necessarily is curtailed."

After the presentation of reports the convention heard the applications of different cities for the annual National Foreign Trade Convention, which will be held some time during the Winter. Invitations were received from Atlantic City, Buffalo, Chicago, Cincinnati, Hot Springs, Houston, San Antonio, New York, Providence, and San Francisco. Decision as to the convention city was left to the Executive Committee of the council, which will make its decision at an early date.

Pennsylvania Increases Efficiency.

Some operating figures made public yesterday by the Pennsylvania Railroad show that by better loading of freight cars in the month of July last the equivalent of 80,000 freight cars was saved on the lines east of Pittsburgh and Erie alone. This was accomplished by increasing the average load per car from 29.57 to 33.51 tons, or 13 per cent. better efficiency in the use of existing equipment. The company estimates that when the figures for August and September are available this saving will be found to have been increased.

McCreery Co. Increases Capital.

Notice was filed with the Secretary of State in Albany yesterday of an increase in the capitalization of James McCreery & Co., proprietors of department stores, from $100,000 to $4,100,000. Louis Stewart, Jr., Treasurer of the firm, said last night that the action did not mean an expansion of the business but was "a bookkeeping matter."

In extreme climates life is impossible

BUT the ideal existence is found in moderate climes where extremes are the exception—not the rule. Thus it is with Prohibition—being an extreme, its advocates seem to find it utterly impossible to understand that a mild Barley-Malt and Saazer Hop brew, such as BUDWEISER, is truly the drink of temperance.

For 60 solid years Anheuser-Busch have brewed BUDWEISER and each day they have worked to make it better. The common sense use of BUDWEISER cements the bond of friendship, inspires the flow of wit and laughter and makes old men forget for a little while that they are no longer one and twenty. ### Active Demand for Velvet Hats.

Retailers of this city report such an extensive demand for velvet hats for Fall and Winter wear that they are experiencing considerable difficulty in getting enough merchandise to meet their requirements. Velveteen also is said to be well taken, and in many cases velour and corduroy hats are proving popular. It is said among the trade that there was not so much buying of Winter hats during the latter part of the Summer this year as formerly was the case. Consequently the call is coming all at once, and it is proving no small problem to take care of it.

Good Sheeting Sales Were Made.

In addition to the printcloth business done in the local gray goods market yesterday, a nice volume of sheetings also was disposed of. The sales included several varieties of goods available for bag purposes, at higher prices than they recently brought. October business was put through on four-yard 48 squares at 12¼ cents, while five-yard goods for delivery in the last two months of this year and January, 1918, brought 10 cents. In other quarters of the market large advance business was done on all widths of twills and sateens for the clothing trade at increased prices.

May Urge British Wool Release.

With the prospect of the Government coming into the market for 20 and 22 ounce woolen fabrics for clothing the army for the Winter, authorities in the local trade are expressing no little concern over the shortage which they say would result in supplies of woolen and worsted yarns for civilian requirements. "The importance of getting Great Britain to release wool supplies for shipment to this country," says one authority in the trade, "is becoming more apparent every day, and with the advent of further Government purchases it is very likely that some such step will be urged immediately."

Silk and Woolen Jersey Favored.

The popularity of woolen jersey cloth for women's suits as well as for dresses becomes more pronounced, according to local manufacturers, as the season progresses. The weave for the Fall and Winter trade, being somewhat heavier, is fine and firm and makes a neat appearance, which is said to attract many buyers. Silk jersey, a more or less new development of the season, is reported as making tremendous strides in public favor, particularly in black and blue and a few of the lighter shades. Garments made of these materials, more especially in the higher price ranges, are said to be in great demand.

Putting a Strain on Them.

Coupled with the tightening of money as reflected by the rising rate on prime commercial paper, the higher cost of merchandise and the shortening of credits by many wholesalers are said in credit circles to be putting quite a strain on some of the shops which do business with very wealthy people and which have to wait the pleasure of these customers in getting their money for the goods sold. Single accounts in some of the shops in question are said to run as high as $20,000 to $25,000. They are further said to be something of a strain when they have to be carried for six months to a year, waiting, as one customer is asserted to have announced, "until the bill gets big enough to make it worth while drawing a check."

They Need Underwear, All Right.

If there is any one in knit goods circles who doubts reports that have been heard concerning the way the jobbers are endeavoring to get supplies of seasonable underwear, the following incident should convince him: One of the best-known mills in the country making ribbed cotton underwear for men recently found itself with a fair supply of seconds on hand. The local representatives of the mills were notified, and a circular letter was sent to a number of jobbers offering the goods at $5.75 a dozen. Almost immediately telegrams began to pour in asking for prompt shipments of various amounts at the figure named. The most interesting point of the whole incident is that the price of these goods in normal times would not have exceeded $3.12½ a dozen.

Japanese Silk Prices Disturbed.

The drop of 70 yen per picul at Yokohama, which, according to H. L. Gwalter & Co. of this city, ushered in the week in the raw silk markets, came as something of a shock to the local trade. The reason for it was said to be a rumor that had reached Japan of a possible embargo being placed on the importation of raw silk into this country. In spite of the total absence of buying, there has been no change in the price views of the reelers at Canton. At Shanghai the revision of lay-down costs, resulting from the drop in silver, still left prices on steam filatures and tsatlees above the parity of other silks, and business continues suspended. Tussahs have declined sharply, however, as a result of bearish reports concerning the new crop. Milan is unchanged. The local market is quiet. Prices here are more or less irregular, due to the fluctuations in the primary markets.

The Women Are Cutting In.

Reports from Canada indicate that the military authorities are quite disturbed at the way women in some of the larger cities of the Dominion, especially Toronto, have taken to wearing the forage cap that is a part of the uniform of the Royal Flying Corps. According to the report, steps have been taken by the authorities to see what can be done about healing the breach of military etiquette that has been made in this way. It appears, however, that there is not much hope of accomplishing any real results. That the vogue has already spread to this country, if it did not actually originate here, is indicated by a picture that was published in the Rotogravure Section of last Sunday's TIMES, which showed one of the "younger set" at the recent Piping Rock Horse Show wearing a cap of this kind. With things military very popular in local millinery circles, the chance is not remote of the vogue becoming general here.

Printcloth Buying Is Larger.

A number of the previous day's inquiries developed into business in the local gray goods market and, coupled with yesterday's new trade, resulted in a large yardage of printcloths being disposed of. Big sales of 39-inch 68-72s were made for this year's delivery at 11¾ cents. For early 1918 these goods could have been had at 11½ cents, but buyers did not appear keen about looking so far ahead. Large business for shipment through the rest of this year also was done on 38½-inch 64-60s at 10¾ cents, and these goods, with the 68-72s, are now getting scarce for this year at any price. Other important sales for the day included 39-inch 80 squares at 14½ cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 8¾ cents, both for delivery through this month and next. Mill prices on printcloths closed this way:

| | | | |

SNAP FASTENERS

$15,000 investment will secure a half interest in an up-to-date plant making high grade spring snap fasteners. The shop is fully equipped as machine and tool shop, and building its own machines, which can be inspected in operation. Raw materials on hand sufficient for some time to come.

The fasteners and trade mark are well known to the trade. The additional capital is required for building more machines in order to manufacture on a large scale. The profits are enormous.

Will also consider offers to sell outright, as our financial resources are too limited to operate on a large scale. Only responsible parties will be considered.

To American Business Men

The United States Government is to-day purchasing more supplies and expending more money than any government or any business organization ever expended in the world's history. These expenditures are fast running into the tens of billions of dollars—sums vaster than ever before gathered together. Practically every cent will be spent in the United States for the purchase of American goods, for the benefit of American manufacturers, producers, and business men.

Every business man and every business organization that invests money in Government bonds of the Second Liberty Loan of 1917 is helping finance these great expenditures and thus aiding the cause of business prosperity during the war.

Every dollar you subscribe to the War Loans of our Country is money invested to aid our Government, without whose protection business would be impossible. By purchasing Liberty Bonds you help to restore conditions when the orderly prosecution of legitimate business will no longer be subject to the burdens of militarism and the interruptions of war. This is a war to end war and make the world safe for democracy, for liberty, for life, and for business.

Patriotism and good business common sense alike urge you to invest your surplus funds in Liberty Bonds. They are the best investment in the market to-day. Their safety is the solemn pledge of the United States Government. They bear 4% interest. They are free of the normal federal income tax and local personal property taxes. Their conversion privilege assures their stability in value, with reasonable probability of appreciation. They are readily marketable and available as collateral immediately, anywhere.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Securities Break Down Under Income Tax Consideration—Bonds at Low Record.

The war tax law overshadowed all other topics of discussion in the financial district, with the exception of the Liberty Loan, with the result that stocks were sold down rapidly yesterday under the heaviest volume of transactions for any day since early in September. The more active issues receded from 2 to 6 points, and evidences of banking support were lacking except for a short period in the morning, when Steel appeared to reflect concerted buying. Liquidation was particularly noticeable in the steel, copper, and tobacco issues, and a true picture of the day's proceedings was presented in these declines at the close: Anaconda, 1⅜; Baldwin Locomotive, 3⅜; Central Leather, 2; Crucible Steel, 1⅞; Reading, 1⅛; Republic Iron & Steel, 2; Texas Company, 6; Tobacco Products, 3½; United Cigar Stores, 5; Union Pacific, 1⅜; U. S. Steel, 2⅝, and Utah Copper, 1⅝.

Owners of securities who had thought the day before that they knew the extent to which the income tax would affect them were disturbed upon realizing yesterday that a "joker" likely to affect all individuals earning above $6,000 a year had been uncovered in the tax law. Having become reconciled to the normal and super taxes, men who earn by their own efforts more than $6,000 a year were impelled to do some additional figuring to learn where they would stand in respect to net income. The process was not encouraging, and their state of mind did not improve as the day passed without elucidation in Washington of the sections of the law which had been passed by for several days without general notice by the public.

Various opinions were heard in regard to the application of the 8 per cent. tax on partnerships and individuals over and above the direct income tax. In some legal and banking quarters it was thought that it would have no application to salaries when the law was finally interpreted. In others, where the strict letter of the measure was adhered to, the contention was firmly maintained that all results of "personal service" would have to bear the impost. The product of this uncertainty was an additional burden upon sentiment, already depressed over the scope of taxation on incomes of men and corporations, and the Street expressed its feelings in sales of stocks and bonds. Bond prices scored further declines, carrying the average quotation of forty prominent issues to a new low record for many years, while the average price of fifty stocks established a new minimum for 1917.

In the foreign exchange market rates on neutral countries of Europe again reflected the embargo by the United States and Great Britain by strong upward movements. Merchants with remittances to meet in the Scandinavian countries and Holland found supplies of exchange meager and only moderate bidding was necessary to bring about quick gains. Cable transfers to Stockholm, as an example, rose to 38 cents, against 36.20 the day before, and 34 cents a week ago. While quotations eased before the close, they were still substantially above closing quotations on Wednesday.

Most of the day's call loans were arranged at 5 per cent., with 4 per cent. quoted in the afternoon. Another decline in silver of 1½ cents to 92½ cents per ounce emphasized the present lack of buying power in this market.

LONDON MARKET IS STEADY.

Banks Report a Large Demand for the New War Bonds.

LONDON, OCT., 4.—The stock market was steady today, but business was narrow and confined principally to the miscellaneous section, in which Marconi, oil and shipping shares were prominent. Argentine rails and Scandinavian bonds were firm and rubber stocks were active, but inclined to ease off. American securities were dull.

Money was in increased supply owing to the maturing Treasury bills. Discount rates were quiet.

The banks report a steady demand for the new war bond.

READING EARNINGS INCREASE

A report of earnings of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company shows that the month of August past the road showed operating receipts of $6,128,297, an increase of $1,006,913 over the showing for August, 1916, but owing to an increase of $1,482,028 in expenses for the month, the net operating income for the month showed a decrease of $475,115. Fixed charges also increased, so that the surplus of earnings for the month, $650,101, represented a decrease of $548,115.

The report of earnings for 1917 to date similarly shows a decrease in operating income of $3,549,058, and of net earnings of $3,812,098, on a gross revenue which increased from $39,812,351 to $44,675,046. The Reading Company, however, controlling both the road and the company's coal and iron business, shows a net increase of $5,565 for the month of August and of $188,727 for the year to date. This, however, the company expects will be more than wiped out by increased taxation.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Bethlehem Steel Preferred

The new Bethlehem Steel preferred stock was removed yesterday from the Curb to the Stock Exchange, to be dealt in on a "when issued" basis, and at the end of the day a substantially wider spread existed between its price and the price of the old preferred than the day before. On Wednesday, when the new issue was selling at 92¾, the 7 per cent. stock sold at 91; yesterday the new closed at 94½ and the old at 88, down 3 points. There are several important differences between the two stocks from the investor's point of view. The new carries 8 per cent. dividends and the old 7 per cent.; the new is cumulative as to dividends and the old is not, and the new shares have preference in respect to dividends over the old preferred. A year ago the old preferred was climbing to its record price of 186, a movement which has always been considerable of a mystery. Mr. Schwab said on more than one occasion in the last two years that all the stock could expect was 7 per cent. in dividends. The voting privilege would hardly seem to be worth the extraordinary premium of last November.

American Shipping Enterprise.

The huge figures of Government construction and of commandeered tonnage announced from time to time by the Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation have rather overshadowed lately the immense growth of the American shipping industry, entirely aside from the Government enterprises. But if it were not for the Government this growth would have been recognized long before this as one of the most remarkable phenomena of these times. A compilation of The Journal of Commerce shows that since Feb. 1, 1917, when the U-boat campaign started, $181,675,000 of new capital has been invested in American shipbuilding, this representing the extent of new incorporations for the purpose of building ships, aside from the Government's program, although much of the tonnage this represents has been or will be commandeered. The total investment in shipping enterprises in the United States in the same period was $217,818,000, and since August, 1914, $359,265,000.

The Growth of an Industry.

The real romance of the reborn American merchant marine is only hinted at in the cold figures. There are men on the Maritime Exchange, or in luxurious offices near the waterfront, to-day, with "President" on the ground-glass of the door, with if not quite Sir Anthony Gloster's "ten thousand men on pay roll and forty freighters at sea," have a fair start toward it, who three years ago were small clerks or struggling brokers or ship chandlers, or in even humbler occupations. And, in keeping with human nature, they are often the men who complain most loudly of the uncertainties which the Shipping Board's slow development of its policy is inflicting upon the shipping business.

What Is the Board Going to Do?

The action of the Shipping Board in scaling down its commandeering order, taking effect Oct. 15, to include all steamers above 1,500 tons, instead of 2,500, as originally ordered, was taken calmly in shipping circles. What shipping men are anxious to know is what the board is going to do with the steamers after it takes them. It is going to turn them back, in the main, to the owners to operate, it is understood, but there is a vagueness regarding the terms on which this is to be done which is fretting the men whose livelihood depends upon it. Is the board going to let the owners run the steamers practically for all they are worth, but itself take 95 per cent. of the profits, leaving the owners only a small operating fee, or is it going to use its commandeering power, through the Chartering Committee, to hold rates down to something approximating those announced for time charters, leaving it to the Chartering Committee to adjust these for particular kinds of business, but letting the owners make what they can after that? A definite announcement on this cannot be long delayed.

Money in Circulation.

According to the Treasury Department's monthly statement, the money in circulation in the United States on Oct. 1 amounted to $4,820,000,000, compared with $4,783,000,000 a month ago, and $4,178,000,000 a year ago. The per capita circulation on Oct. 1 amounted to $46.10 as against $40.62 in 1916, $36.88 in 1915 and $32.46 in 1907. The total for gold and gold certificates on the first of the current month was $2,306,667,000, a decrease of $86,700,000 compared with the figures for Sept. 1 and an increase of $141,000,000 compared with Oct. 1, 1916.

New National Bank Charters.

The Controller of the Currency reports that during the months of July, August and September there were received 53 applications for charters for new national banks, with a total capitalization of $2,150,000; which compares with 47 applications, having an aggregate capital of $2,415,000 received during the corresponding period last year. The number of charters granted was 49 as against 39 last year, and the number refused was 6, just double the number refused in these three months last year.

World's Wheat Crop.

The world's wheat crop this year for the principal countries which have reported, including the United States, is 1,665,489,000 bushels, an increase of 3.3 per cent. over 1916, according to data compiled by the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome. The world's barley crop is 464,289,000 bushels, an increase of 2.4 per cent.; the rye crop, 89,950,000 bushels, an increase of 10.7 per cent.; the oats crop, 1,995,304,000 bushels, an increase of 19.9 per cent.; and the corn crop, 3,278,896,000 bushels, an increase of 25.3 per cent.

What This War Means To You

Read this clear, simple statement of your duty, as a loyal citizen, in the war in which this country is now engaged.

It appeared in the "Police Bulletin" of the City of New York.

The United States is at war with Germany.

That means that every person, whether native or foreign born, who claims the protection of the American flag is at war with Germany.

War is more than fighting. War is service. War is sacrifice. War is the elimination of self. War is country first, and the individual last.

This war will directly or indirectly affect every person living in the United States.

This war will not be won unless every person does his or her part, gives his or her service, makes his or her sacrifice, places self behind the need of the nation.

The flag means freedom for us all, but the flag, in the time of war, does not mean freedom of action for the individual.

The flag means restraint, cooperation, obedience, recognition of authority, preservation of law and order.

Most of all it means economy.

It means loyalty in little daily things as well as loyalty to the great principles of our Government.

It means the conduct of our lives so that the nation may be hourly strengthened.

It means the giving of our best effort for the universal good.

It means careful living. It means stopping of waste. It means the uttermost use of our resources, our abilities and our strength for the Great Cause.

It means guarding our talk and avoiding useless discussion.

It means that the United States is first, paramount, supreme, and that the want or pleasure of action of each individual must be subordinated to that fact.

Three cheers for the red, white and blue!

This is the truth. It applies to you. Your country calls upon you for "Service and Sacrifice." The call must be answered if the war is to be won.

The service which lies nearest to your hand, the service which will count most in winning the war, is this:

Subscribe to United States Government Bonds of the Second Liberty Loan. Your money will be used to buy food, clothing, arms and ammunition for the American boys who are going abroad to fight for their homes, their flag, their country, and the preservation of human liberty throughout the world.

The War Cannot Be Won Without Saving

Every man, woman and child in the United States is now confronted by the necessity of saving his or her share of the cost of the war.

This means you. There can be no exceptions.

If we do not save willingly now, we will have to save later to pay a terrific increase in the cost of living, due to taxation.

Thrift is a good habit. It is easy to save. Money saved now means comforts, luxuries and independence later on.

Begin to save now—and put your savings into Liberty Bonds.

It will not be such a hardship as you think to eat simpler food; to eliminate waste; to wear the old clothing a little longer; to spend less on cigars, theatres, and other luxuries.

The money you save, if invested in Liberty Bonds, will buy shoes, clothes, food and ammunition for our soldiers —and without these necessities the war cannot be won.

Bear in mind that you are not asked to give this money — only to lend it. Your Liberty Bonds are the safest investment in the world. The United States guarantees them, and pays you interest on your money.

Buy United States Government Bonds of the Second Liberty Loan while you save—you can pay for them on easy terms. Any bank will take your subscription.

Save for Liberty Bonds and Liberty Bonds may save you.

THE COTTON MARKET

Sharp Reaction Carries Active Months Down from 45 to 77 Points.

A night's reflection apparently convinced cotton traders that the Southern hoarding bogey was not so much to be feared as it had seemed on its first appearance, following the low Government crop estimate, for the market opened yesterday with a sharp reaction, which halted the march toward 30-cent cotton for one day at least. December deliveries sold off during the day to 71 points, and closed 70 points below Wednesday's closing, and all the other active months were uniformly easier, closing at a net decline of from 45 to 77 points on the day.

Reactionary sentiment was in evidence from the start. The opening was 10 points higher on October, but generally 26 to 52 points net lower, with active months selling 36 to 54 points under last night's close during the first few minutes. There appeared to be an accumulation of overnight hedging from the South, as well as active realizing on this initial break, but the offerings were well absorbed, and the market soon turned firmer on numerous crop complaints from the eastern belt, continued trade buying, and fresh buying for long account. The recovery carried prices back to practically Wednesday's closing figures, but the demand was less active and urgent than earlier in the week, and the market turned easier during the afternoon. Weakness in the stock market may have accounted for the profit taking of Wall Street longs, but realizing was general, and there also seemed to be increased hedge selling on the decline of about 50 to 76 points from last night's closing figures. Last prices were within 2 or 3 points of the lowest.

There were numerous reports of rapid deterioration in crop prospects from Eastern sections of the belt. Traders could find no cause for such deterioration in recent weather advices, and there was a tendency to attribute the falling off to lack of potash used in fertilizers this season. This theory was revived by the remarks of a Government crop expert in connection with last Tuesday's official forecast, and naturally has its bearing upon future supplies during the continuance of the war, or until supplies of potash become available. Perhaps this idea figured to some extent on the rally during the middle of the day, but aside from that there seemed to be little change in the bullish sentiment created by recent Government reports, and the selling was largely based on the extent of recent advances and the probability of reactions. Southern spot advices were somewhat conflicting, but there seemed to be a feeling late in the afternoon that the basis was easier, particularly in the Southwest. No exports were reported. Southern spot markets were about 12 to 70 points lower, with the Southwest relatively easy.

Members of the New York Cotton Exchange yesterday voted to declare Saturday, Oct. 13, the day after Columbus Day, a holiday.

Increase of 10 Per Cent. by New England Textile Mills.

BOSTON, Oct. 4.—A 10 per cent. wage increase for all of its employes, effective Monday, was announced today by the American Woolen Company.

Between 35,000 and 40,000 operatives in mills in New England and New York are affected by the increase. Early in the year, when the scale was raised, it was announced that wages then were the highest ever paid in the history of the industry.

Most of the American Woolen Company plants are working full time on Government orders.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 4.—The Arlington, Pacific, and other cotton mills in this city announced today an increase of approximately 10 per cent. in the wages of 30,000 operatives, effective Oct. 8.

WHEAT.

Comparatively little new developments came to light in the wheat situation. Government agents are making strenuous efforts to supply the mills with wheat, but the movement continues disappointing and is running somewhat behind last week's. Mills at big milling centres are getting wheat, however, and the country mills seem to be suffering the most. Reports on the export movement are not forthcoming, as this is being done entirely through the hands of the Grain Corporation. It is believed, however, that quite large sales are being made of both wheat and flour from time to time, but for military reasons details concerning the movement are not disclosed.

CORN.

The corn market developed a reactionary tendency and closed heavy, with net losses of 1 to 1⅛c. Commission houses sold quite heavily at times and sentiment was influenced by the reports of a British victory in Flanders. The technical position of the market was looked upon as having been weakened by the recent active covering, and the trade again showed a disposition to hesitate about following the advance past the $1.20 mark for Chicago December. In the local cash market old No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $2.07 and No. 2 mixed at $2.03, cost, insurance, and freight New York.

OATS.

The oats market showed resistance to bearish influences early, with more or less buying on the continued light receipts and the apparent ability of the cash demand to take care of the offers. Exporters were also in evidence and sales estimated at about 100,000 bushels. Toward the close, however, prices eased off sharply in sympathy with corn and on peace rumors, final quotations showing net losses of ⅜c to 1⅛c. The local cash market was steady; standard quoted at 67½c; No. 2 white, 67@67½c; No. 3 white, 66½@67c; No. 4 white, 66@66½c; fancy clipped white, 68½@70½c; ordinary clipped white, 66½@68½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was generally lower under liquidation, prompted by the action of corn. The heavy selling was in October lard, which seemed to affect the whole list, although October ribs were firmer on buying against more liberal sales of the cash article. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 9,000, estimated for Friday, 8,000; Kansas City received 3,000, and Omaha 4,200 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was firmer early, with a fairly active demand based on the strength in the market for crude oil. There was a good demand, part of which was credited to the South, and more or less covering. The late decline in all the other commodity markets, including lard and cotton, and the weakness in Wall Street caused a feeling of uneasiness on the long side, however, and later prices broke sharply under renewed liquidation, closing with net losses of 10 to 26 points. Total sales were 47,300 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

The coffee market was less active, but a shade steadier, yesterday. It looked as though the recent decline had been sufficient to attract some covering, while there was no pressure from primary sources, and, in addition to covering, there may have been a little buying on renewed peace talk. Whatever the influence, however, the market was too quiet to indicate any material change in sentiment or the situation, sales being only 6,500 bags. The market opened at an advance of 2 points and closed 3 to 5 points net higher. The local spot market was dull and practically nominal at 8¼c for Rio 7s and 9⅝c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The local market for raw sugar was firm with no further business reported. It was believed that buyers would pay the last price of 5⅞c for Cubas, cost and freight, but holders were asking 6c and not inclined to accept lower. In the absence of business, prices were unchanged at 5⅞c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 6.90c for centrifugal and 6.02c for molasses. In refined there was a fair inquiry reported, but refiners were not accepting very much business, owing to small supplies of raws; in fact, some of the refiners were out of the market entirely. Prices, however, were unchanged, ranging from 8.35c to 8.50c for fine granulated, as quoted by the various refiners.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday 7,506 packages. The market is slightly weaker in tone, but the change in the prices in the better grades is not material. Secondary qualities are more plentiful and ¼@½c lower. Renovated hold up pretty well. Ladles are very firm, and packing stock is in active demand and stronger. Creamery, higher than extras, (92 score,) 45½@45¾; first, (88 to 91 score,) 44@45½c seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 42½@43½c; thirds, 41½@42c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 47½@48c; extras, 46½@47c; firsts, 45@46c; seconds, 43½@44½c; State, dairy, tubs, finest 45@45½c; good to prime, 43@44½c; common to fair, 39@42c; renovated, extras, 43½@44c; first, 42½@43c; lower grades, 39@42c; imitation creamery, first, 40½@41c; ladles, current make, first, 39½@40c; seconds, 38½@39c; lower grades, 37@38c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 38½@39c; No. 2, 38c; lower grades, 36@37½c.

EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 10,287 cases. The market continues generally dull, irregular, and unsettled. Very high-grade stock is in comparatively light supply and meeting a fair demand at sustained prices. The full range of values is without material change, but there is a continued surplus of average good and lower qualities pressing for sale, values for which are uncertain and showing considerable range. Storage eggs are lifeless and quotations little more than nominal. They fairly cover the small business reported in regular trade, but to force sales they would have to be shaded. Nearby white eggs of fancy quality scarce and firm, undergrades freely offered and of very irregular value. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 45@46c; extra firsts, 42@44c; firsts, 39@41c; seconds, 37@38c; thirds and poorer, 35@36½c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 36@36½c; No. 2 and poorer, 33@35½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 33@34c; undergrades, 30@32c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 38½@39c; firsts, storage and insurance paid, 37@38c; seconds, storage and insurance paid, 35½@36½c; lower grades, 34@35c; refrigerator, State whites, 41@43c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 58@62c; ordinary to good, 45@57c; gathered whites, good to fine, 42@53c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 42@48c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 48@51c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 42@46c.

Western Roads' Net in August Less Than Same Month Last Year.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Western railroads show a falling off in net revenue from operation in the month of August compared with August last year, according to preliminary figures made public today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Reports from 83 of the leading railroads of the country, including Western roads operating 57,892 miles, show an increase of approximately $20,000,000 over August, 1916, in both operating revenues and expenses, the totals being $169,452,650 and $114,297,648 respectively. Western railroads show revenues during the month of $67,825,619, an increase of approximately $5,590,000, while expenses increased approximately $6,000,000, reaching the total of $43,381,894.

Net revenue for the Western roads included in the preliminary report totaled $23,943,725 as compared with $24,519,303 in August, 1916. The roads of the East and South show approximately the same net revenues as a year ago.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Bears raided the market again and again, but not until the last hour of trading on the Consolidated Stock Exchange did they succeed in uncovering stop-loss orders in any volume. When the selling orders were reached new low figures for the day were established by many of the stocks. Steel common, which, throughout the day, had been under pressure, was forced down to 105⅞, which compared with a closing of 108⅛ on Wednesday. A half-hearted rally enabled Steel to close at 106⅛. Trading in Steel alone during the day reached a total of 87,900 shares, which was greater than the transactions in the entire list on any recent day.

As more fully provided by the said decree the terms and conditions of the sale are as follows:

(a) From time to time the undersigned are authorized to adjourn the sale as provided in the decree.

(b) Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, or any holder of the bonds of Autosales Gum & Chocolate Company or any creditor or stockholder thereof or any party to the aforesaid causes may bid at the sale, and, if a successful bidder may purchase in its or their own right.

(c) No bid will be received for any of the Lots numbered 1 to 8, inclusive, unless the bidder shall first deposit with the undersigned as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, a sum which shall at least equal $2 per share of the stock bid for, or in lieu thereof, in whole or in part, bonds of the Autosales Gum & Chocolate Company which will be taken for this purpose at 50% of their par value.

(d) No bid will be received for Lot 9 unless the bidder shall first deposit with the undersigned as a pledge that he will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, the sum of $20,000, which may be provided in whole or in part by assignments of allowed claims against Autosales Gum & Chocolate Company which will be taken for this purpose at 50% of their par value.

(f) No bid will be accepted for any of the Lots numbered 1 to 7, inclusive, unless the aggregate of the bids for those lots shall equal or exceed the sum of $400,000; and no bid will be accepted for Lot 8 unless it equals or exceeds the said sum of $400,000; and no bid will be accepted for Lot 9 unless it equals or exceeds the sum of $600,000; and no bid will be accepted for Lot 10 unless it equals or exceeds the sum of $1,000,000.

(g) Subject to the above provisions, the said several Lots will be knocked down and sold to the several highest bidders therefor, but if the highest bid for Lot 8 equals or exceeds the aggregate of the highest bids for Lots 1 to 7, inclusive, then it will be accepted, and provided further that if the highest bid for Lot 10 equals or exceeds the aggregate of the highest bids for Lots 1 to 7, inclusive, or 8 as the case may be, when added to the highest bid for Lot 9, then it will be accepted.

(h) Deposits received from unsuccessful bidders or from successful bidders in case of non-confirmation by the Court will be returned, but deposits received from successful bidders in case of confirmation will be applied on account of the purchase price.

(i) Deposits made by prospective bidders for separate parcels may be applied on account of bids offered by them for entireties.

(j) So much of the purchase price of the several Lots aforesaid as is not required by the said decree to be paid in cash may in the case of Lots 1 to 8, inclusive, be paid in whole or in part by delivering to the Receivers bonds of Autosales Gum & Chocolate Company or matured coupons thereof for credit at such sum as would be payable thereon out of the proceeds of the sale if provided wholly in cash; and so much of the purchase price of Lot 9 as is not required by the said decree to be paid in cash may be paid in whole or in part by delivering to the Receivers assignments of allowed claims against said Autosales Gum & Chocolate Company (including allowed deficiency claims in respect to the aforesaid bonds and coupons) for credit at such sums as may be determined by the Court to be payable thereon out of the said purchase price if provided wholly in cash; and so much of the purchase price of Lot 10 as is not required by the said decree to be paid in cash may be paid in whole or in part by delivery of such bonds and coupons or such assignment of claims (including such deficiency claims) to be severally credited as aforesaid, such bonds and coupons however not being accepted in excess of the proportion of the purchase price applicable to Lots 1 to 8, inclusive, and such assignments of claims (including deficiency claims) not being accepted in excess of the proportion of the purchase price applicable to Lot 9, all as more particularly described in the said decree.

(l) No purchaser shall be required to see to the application of the purchase money nor be answerable for any loss or misapplication thereof.

(m) In case any successful bidder shall fail to make the payments required by the decree or to comply with the provisions thereof or to comply within twenty days after the entry thereof with any order of the court requiring or relating to the payment of the balance of the purchase price, then the said bidder's deposit may be forfeited as an exclusive penalty for such failure and applied to the expenses of a re-sale and toward any deficiency or loss in case of ultimate sale for a less amount and to such other purposes as the Court may direct.

(n) The successful bidder may assign his bid.

(o) The purchaser of Lot 10 shall as part of the consideration therefor pay any unpaid compensation allowed to the Special Master appointed by the said decree or the Receivers or their counsel and also any unpaid indebtedness and liabilities of said Special Master or the Receivers incurred in the aforesaid causes or in the management or operation of the property or otherwise in the discharge of their duties prior to the delivery of the property sold; and all claims including State, city and county taxes and assessments which shall be a prior lien upon any of said property; and any purchaser of any of the other Lots shall as part of the consideration therefor pay such of the aforesaid claims as the Court shall order to be applicable to the particular Lot or Lots so purchased.

(p) Any purchaser or successor or assignee of a purchaser shall have the right to appear in the aforesaid causes, or any of them, and contest any claim therein which may be undetermined at the time of sale or thereafter arising and which is payable under the terms of the said decree by said purchaser or chargeable against the property purchased by him, and shall have the right of appeal from any decision relating thereto.

(q) Any purchaser or his successor or assignee shall have the right within ninety days after delivery to him of the deed or other instruments of transfer of the property purchased or within such additional time as the Court may direct, to reject any part of the property sold other than contracts made by or adopted by the Receivers, and no user of such property prior to the expiration of such period shall preclude the purchaser from such election.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS VARY.

Reserve Board Reports on the Outlook in Various Districts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—The condition of business throughout the country, as diagnosed by the reports from Federal Reserve Banks and published in the Federal Reserve Bulletin, indicates gradual changes from the reports usual during the last months of the year. Boston reports that general business is "very unsettled," crops hurt by frost, industries generally busy, and the outlook subject to war conditions.

New York reports good general business, fair crops, active industries, and a good outlook.

Philadelphia shows practically similar conditions, while Cleveland characterizes general business as "spotty," crops very good, industries "hesitating," and the outlook "not unfavorable."

Southern districts unite in optimistic reports. Chicago says general business is active, crops satisfactory, industries all active in war lines, and the general outlook good. St. Louis and Minneapolis share in the same conditions, Chicago reports. Kansas City, Dallas, and San Francisco report a falling off in construction work, but crops are good and general business fair.

Labor generally throughout the country is described as scarce, uneasy, and unsatisfactory, with great unrest everywhere.

FILE HENRY PARISH WILL.

Estate Estimated at $5,000,000 Divided into Eleven Parts.

The will of Henry Parish, for forty-four years President of the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company, and a large stockholder in the company, who died on Sept. 18 at his Summer home, Elberon, N. J., at the age of 88 years, was filed for probate yesterday. The only bequests outside of the residuary estate are the property at 18 West Fifty-seventh Street to the decedent's son, Edward Codman Parish, and all his claims in Texas to this son.

The will divides the residuary estate into eleven parts, one of which goes to each of two daughters, Mrs. Julia W. Emmons of Newport and Mrs. Grace Dodge, wife of Cleveland H. Dodge, and one in trust to Daniel Powell Parish, son, of Litchfield, Conn. Mrs. Edith Coolidge Kingsford of Short Hills, N. J., a daughter, gets two parts, and the same share goes to the sons, Henry, Jr., of 8 East Seventy-sixth Street, Wainwright of 19 West Fifty-fourth Street, and Edward C. Parish of 27 East Seventy-ninth Street. Mr. Parish also left $100 to be paid to each servant for every year in his employ or in the employ of his son, Edward C. Parish.

The value of the estate is not disclosed, but is said to be more than $5,000,000.

Justice Brady's Widow Left $750,000

The will of Mrs. Jennie M. Brady, widow of Supreme Court Justice John J. Brady, disposes of more than $750,000. Mrs. Brady, who inherited all her husband's estate, divided her residuary estate among eight children. To each of her three sons she gave a gavel used by her husband while on the bench. John J. Brady, Jr., received his father's law library. Gifts of $500 to $1,500 were made to relatives, friends, church organizations, and clergymen.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

An important deal in the upper Fifth Avenue section for improvement with a fine residence was closed yesterday in the purchase by an unnamed buyer of the westerly half of the 70-foot vacant plot at 7 and 9 East Sixty-fourth Street, between Fifth and Madison Avenues.

The property was sold by the heirs of the late James J. Hill, whose large residence, in the rear, at 8 and 10 East Sixty-fifth Street, was purchased last May by Edward H. Litchfield of Brooklyn for about $450,000. The 35-foot frontage of the Sixty-fourth Street plot just sold was held at about $200,000. The plot was formerly occupied by the home of the late John Duncan.

It was bought by Mr. Hill with the intention of erecting an art gallery and laying out a portion of it as a garden. The house was razed for that purpose, but the contemplated improvements were not carried out.

The sale was made by William Cruikshank's Sons and Edward J. Hogan. Adjoining the parcel sold, to the west, is the large residence of Orme Wilson, and to the east, adjoining the remaining 35-foot section, at 11 East Sixty-fourth Street, is the new home of Orme Wilson, Jr.

PERSHING INSISTS ON MORE USE OF RIFLES

Criticises Americans in Trench Attacks for Failure to Discharge Their Guns.

THREE "POSITIONS" TAKEN

Troops Advance on Wilson, Taft, and Roosevelt Trenches Under "Theoretical" Barrages.

By The Associated Press.

AMERICAN TRAINING QUARTERS IN FRANCE, Wednesday, Oct. 3, (delayed.)—Major Gen. Pershing today watched a battalion of Major Gen. Bibert's command as it stormed and took three supposed enemy trenches, which had been named Wilson, Taft and Roosevelt for the occasion. The exercise was part of a program of battalion problems which is being carried out daily, and will be developed gradually into regimental, brigade and divisional attacks.

Besides General Pershing, several French officers witnessed today's manoeuvres, after which they were criticised by American and French observers and by the General himself. He said that in taking the three trenches the soldiers, he noticed, did not discharge their rifles. This he thought was a mistake.

"You must not forget that the rifle is distinctively an American weapon," said the General. "I want to see it employed. There surely will be plenty of opportunity for its use, and if you are unfamiliar with the weapon you will lose those opportunities. Bayonets and bombs are all right, and very valuable, but rifle fire still has a place in modern war."

The General said he had heard of soldiers in this war who had been seen chasing Germans a hundred yards or more for an opportunity to bomb or bayonet them. If they had thought they might have stopped and shot them easily with the rifle.

Some time ago the American army authorities here decided to devote much attention to musketry, but neither the French nor the British instructors are inclined to spend much time on that phase of warfare, having become accustomed to the tactics of attacking solely with bombs, bayonets and machine guns. American soldiers have always been fine marksmen, however, and the officers still believe in rifle fire for both offensive and defensive purposes.

Under "Theoretical" Barrages.

Mock practice attacks today were made under theoretical creeping barrages, three lines of men moving at a given pace. The men used live bombs as they advanced. The Wilson trench moved very easy, only six casualties being cleared from the field during its occupation. A green rocket announced success, and then the attackers rushed forward against the Taft trench. Here again success was achieved quickly, being signaled by a red rocket. It required a second wave of attackers, who "leapfrogged" over the troops holding the Taft trench to take the Roosevelt trench and the two redoubts flanking this final objective. A three-starred rocket announced the fact that the Roosevelt trench had fallen, and that the position had been consolidated with machine guns in strategical positions for a flanking fire to beat off counter-attacks. The operation required just an hour.

Would Act on Allies' Experience.

"To carry on for the next six months or year with the best that the French and British have evolved as a result of their three years' war experience, and to do our own experimenting entirely on the side," is the gist of the policy which has been largely adopted by the American army now in France and recommended to Washington. This policy applies to material and various instruments of war as well as to tactics and methods of handling men in the trenches.

While many of the more serious students of war among the American officers believe beneficial improvements can be worked out by American ingenuity, inventiveness and resourcefulness, they realize that the most important problem just now is to get on with the war. They believe America can most quickly become a striking force in the war by taking the best of what the British and French have proved to be useful and effective, and basing all building programs of the near future thereon.

In the matter of tanks, for instance, officers who have made a special study of the subject think there is much to be said in favor of both the giant British tanks and the smaller and faster French tanks. They believe that the American army should adopt both styles as an emergency measure, building them immediately while American engineers are working out what may prove to be a vast improvement over any tank now existing. There has been some disposition on the part of certain critics to belittle tanks because the Germans have made little use of them. The tank, however, is distinctively an offensive weapon, while Germany on the western front is fighting a purely defensive campaign.

Both Great Britain and France seem to be putting every possible facility at the disposition of the Americans, who are studying both styles of fighting tactics. The fact that these styles are changing constantly is one of the fascinations of the great game of war.

Airplanes are also largely engaging the attention of the army in France. The great weight of the Americans in airplane construction is expected to be felt eventually in this branch of the service.

GOING AFTER "SLOW PAY."

Keeping Retail Credits Liquid Said to be Patriotic Duty.

At the next meeting of the Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City, Inc., which will be held at the Hotel McAlpin on Oct. 16, a resolution will be passed on which calls attention to the fact that, inasmuch as the Government has recommended the conservation of assets as a matter of national defense, retail credits should be kept in a liquid condition in order that when a readjustment of business becomes necessary the consequent shrinkage will be minimized.

The resolution will also call attention to the wisdom of careful handling of past due accounts, but will recommend liberal credit to those who show that they are entitled to it by prompt payment of obligations as they mature. It will urge that caution be used in extending further credit to those who are neglecting the settlement of monthly bills, and will recommend that members list with the Secretary of the organization all accounts that are long past due in order that the entire membership may be informed of the present condition of credit. In addition to this, the resolution will indorse the action of the National Association of Credit Men in urging credit granters to minimize long-time credits in order to keep them in a liquid state.

In an endeavor to bring the Government's desire for the conservation of business resources to the attention of the public, it is probable that the coming meeting will see a request drawn up and presented to the owners of the various stores and shops represented in the membership of the organization to have the following sent to customers who have charge accounts, possibly in the form of stickers attached to monthly bills:

The Government of the United States has recommended conservation of the resources of the country, and to that end the Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City, Inc., request the co-operation of the patrons of the retail establishments of New York.

As a matter of national defense and in recognition of the imperative necessity of keeping all business transactions in a liquid condition, we respectfully urge that all bills rendered by retail merchants be paid in accordance with the terms of the merchants in order to keep trade in a normal state. This is a patriotic suggestion and merits the approval of all.

In conjunction with the patriotism involved in keeping business in an active state, in spite of the war, through the prompt payment of retail obligations, it was pointed out yesterday that there was also a service side to the appeal. It was asserted, for instance, that for merchants to carry the same amount of stock and render the same service as a year ago this time from 33 1-3 to 50 per cent. more capital is required.

To Talk on the Unadjusted Child.

Dr. William Healy, Director of the Judge Baker Foundation of Boston, formerly of the Chicago Juvenile Court, will lecture on "The Unadjusted Child" on four successive Wednesdays, beginning at 3:45 P. M. on Oct. 10 at the Meeting House of the Society for Ethical Culture, 2 West Sixty-fourth Street, under the auspices of the Federation for Child Study and the Jewish Big Sisters. Judge Franklin Chase Hoyt of the Children's Court in this city will speak at a conference of the two organizations at the same place on Nov. 10.

GIRL AND WRITER IN GERMAN MIXUP

TRAPPED HER, HE SAYS

No Arrests Reported After Exciting Time in Telephone Booths at Corner Drug Store.

A young woman ran into a drug store in Lexington avenue, between Fifty-ninth and Sixieth Streets, last night just after 7 o'clock, went into a telephone booth and asked for "the secret service." She talked for a few moments and then asked for the East Sixty-seventh Street police station. She told the lieutenant she wanted a policeman sent at once to 787 Lexington avenue.

Patrolman Griffin reached the drug store while the young woman was still talking to a third person. A man entered, went into another booth, talked for a moment, and came out just as the young woman did.

"That's the man!" she shouted.

Griffin stopped them both, and the young woman said the man she pointed out was a pro-German. She said she was his stenographer, and knew what she was talking about; that she had fled from his apartment with incriminating stenographic notes. The man insisted in making a statement before the woman talked further. He said:

"I am Willard Huntington Wright, literary editor of The Evening Mail. I employed this woman about three weeks ago as my private secretary. I suspected she was extracting her stenographic notes and other information. In my position I get much information that is of value to others. I purposely dictated to her letters that meant nothing, planning to trap her. She did exactly what I expected—took her notes away with her. This evening I dictated a letter which included hieroglyphics, and I saw her tear the notes from her book. Then she ran out of the room yelling."

The young woman insisted then on making a statement. She said:

"Several weeks ago I became this man's private secretary. I know this man to be pro-German. He has written a book against America. I know that a newspaper has called him an enemy alien and that he is suing that paper for libel. In the time I have been working for him he has dictated to me letters that I believe to be against the United States Government. Tonight he dictated a letter to a man in York, Penn., asking the man whether he agreed with President Wilson's appointment of Colonel House to gather peace data and asked the man to go to Washington to see President Wilson about it.

"I went into another room and tore my notes from the book after I had written the letter. He asked me for the notes and I handed him the book. When he saw the torn pages he said I could not leave the room until I had given him the notes. With the notes in my hand, I ran out of the room and to this drug store and called up the police."

The woman declined to give her name or address.

Then an automobile containing four men supposed to be Secret Service agents arrived. The woman left in the car with two of the men and the other two walked away with Mr. Wright. A half hour later no one could be found at the Wright apartment.

Willard Huntington Wright has been literary editor of The Evening Mail for the past two months. Prior to that he was attached to the staff of The Los Angeles Times, and later was an editor of Smart Set. He has written a number of books.

There was no record at Police Headquarters, the Third Branch Detective Bureau, or the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station last night of the arrest of Mr. Wright. Captain William M. Offley, head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, which is handling the problem of pro-Germans, said he knew nothing of the case.

John E. Cullen, managing editor of The Mail, said last night he had heard nothing of Mr. Wright's experiences of the evening. He said he had never heard of the literary editor of The Mail doing or saying anything that would make him appear to be pro-German. A friend of Mr. Wright said that the only book he had written recently was a book finding fault with the Encyclopedia Britannica on the ground that it was too pro-British and that it did not give America a fair show.

Mr. Wright is the author of "What Nietzsche Taught," 1914; "Europe After 8:15," with H. L. Menken and George Jean Nathan; "Songs of Youth," 1913; "Modern Painting," 1915; "The Man of Promise," 1915, and other books. He has been a frequent contributor to magazines. He has published several musical compositions.

URGES MORE PRACTICE AT CAMP WADSWORTH

Pershing Sends Word That Troops Must Be Efficient in Marksmanship.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP WADSWORTH, SPARTANBURG, S. C., Oct. 4.—Major Edward Olmsted, intelligence officer, made public today a cablegram from General Pershing urging that nothing should be permitted to interfere with rifle practice and that close attention be paid to the observance of military courtesies. General Pershing's cable read:

"Longer experience with conditions in France confirms my opinion that it is highly important that infantry soldiers should be excellent shots. Thorough instruction in range practice, prescribed by our small arms firing manual, is very necessary. Our allies now fully realize their deficiency in rifle training.

"It is difficult to secure areas for target ranges in France, even now when crops are off the ground. Much greater difficulty soon when plowing begins. After ground is secured in France, considerable time will be required for troops to construct ranges and improvise target material. In theater of active operations this time should be available for intensive training with new weapons and formations.

"I therefore strongly renew my previous recommendations that all troops be given complete course in rifle practice prescribed in our firing manual before leaving the United States. Specialty of trench warfare instruction at home should not be allowed to interfere with rifle practice, nor with intensive preliminary training in our schools of soldiers, companies and battalions."

The remainder of the cablegram impressed upon the War Department the necessity for strict adherence to military courtesies. He recommended that the strict methods used at West Point be applied to the forces now being organized. Additional information forwarded by the expeditionary commander in the form of confidential reports to regimental and company commanders will soon be put in force.

The soldiers in camp started today to help the Liberty Loan campaign. It is planned to appoint an officer in each unit to act as subscription manager. The idea was broached yesterday evening among the members of Battery A, Third Heavy Field Artillery. This battery is composed almost exclusively of Poles and hails from Buffalo. Last night a meeting was held and, at its close, $4,750 was subscribed. Through rivalry between regiments, it is hoped to run the subscriptions for the camp up into the hundreds of thousands.

Colonel Cornelius Vanderbilt, 102d United States Engineers, has obtained a four days' furlough. He will leave for New York on Saturday aboard his private car. Mrs. Vanderbilt and Miss Grace Vanderbilt, who have been visiting the Colonel, will accompany him. His mission, according to headquarters, is purely personal.

WAR END TO OFFER MANY BIG PROBLEMS

Work for Millions of Soldiers and Capital to Keep Them Busy Greatest, Says Sisson.

SEES DANGER IN SOCIALISM

Declares Melting Pot Has Failed and Thousands of Newcomers Are Un-American.

Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, talked to the Advertising Club in its headquarters, 47 East Twenty-fifth Street, yesterday about some of the difficulties that would confront the United States in the readjustment after the war and what the nation should do to bring the war to a quick and successful conclusion. He thought that perhaps the greatest economic problem the country would have to solve when the war ends will be that of finding work for millions of men, sufficient capital to keep them busy, and markets for their products.

"The demands of war," said Mr. Sisson, have created more employment than ever before existed in this country. Wages are higher and there is practically no unemployment. In fact, we are facing a shortage of labor similar to that with which Europe had to contend at the beginning of the war. Yet we must face the day when millions of men will be released from martial pursuits, and millions more will be out of work when the factories engaged in the manufacture of munitions and auxiliary products discharge their hordes. There must be an equitable but radical liquidation and redistribution of such labor."

Mr. Sisson called attention to the large number of women who are taking the places of men workers, and said that more than 1,500,000 women have undertaken men's tasks in England. He told of new inventions and labor-saving machinery which would play a part in future industrial development, and then said:

"The worldwide reconstruction which will follow the war will be of such a colossal scope as not only to preclude the possibility of overproduction but as to tax our capacities."

Mr. Sisson said this situation should mean world leadership for the United States because of its great resources, and that the responsibilities arising from this leadership would fall heaviest upon the business man and the financier.

"The sheer expansion of credit," he said, "to meet expenditures in excess of the liquid income or capital resources of all the countries combined in the present conflict will solve the economic problems of the war only temporarily. The permanent solution depends upon increased production."

One thing that this country should not ignore, Mr. Sisson said, was the rapid rise of socialistic theories, with their certain menace to individual initiative and national progress. He spoke of the failure of our melting pot to assimilate our mixed population and the evident un-Americanism of thousands who come here.

"The expressed hostility to wealth," he explained, "and the manifest ignorance of its service on the part of public men strike threateningly at conservative institutions. The revealed economic illiteracy of a large proportion of our population and the general failure to grasp the fundamental principles upon which our whole business structure of production, distribution, and consumption rests is something terrifying in its magnitude."

J. H. Case to Join Reserve Bank.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced yesterday the election of J. Herbert Case, Vice President of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as Deputy Governor of the bank. Mr. Case will resign from the trust company and take up his new duties at the bank on Monday. He is taking the place of Robert H. Treman of Ithaca, N. Walk-Over SHOES

A NEW shoe-leather makes its appearance this year. It is called Siberian Kid Calf—really comes from Siberia and is the hide of the small calves of that country. With all the strength of calf it combines the softness and pliability of kid. It polishes beautifully and does not easily scuff.

As it has been increasingly difficult to obtain Russian skins since the outbreak of the war, this superior leather in American shoes represents a great triumph for the big Walk-Over organization.

Practically all the shoe-leather that has been brought from Russia since hostilities began has gone into Walk-Over shoes. Ask to be shown a Siberian Kid Calf Shoe.

'GOLD BRICK PEACE' NOT FOR AMERICA, MITCHEL DECLARES

HIGH PRAISE FOR THE MAYOR

Credited with Making New York the Nation's Best Prepared and Most Patriotic City.

ROOSEVELT INDICTS KAISER

Quotes from Text of German Writings to Prove Nation's Militant Brutality.

A demand that America take no part in promoting a "gold-brick" peace was voiced last night at a patriotic meeting in Madison Square Garden under the auspices of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense, at which Colonel Roosevelt and Mayor Mitchel led a demonstation that came to a climax when Captain R. Hugh Knyvett of the Australian Army, who has been wounded twenty times, asked where he could find a pacifist, because, he said, "I want to ask him what he ever did for peace that he should prate so much about it."

Speaking after the demonsration with which Mayor Mitchel's speech was received, Colonel Roosevelt said: "I want to see you shoot the way you shout," and "there was prolonged applause when he referred to "that gallant gentleman, John Purroy Mitchel." The Colonel assailed the Socialist Party here as "the tool of German autocracy," and said that the demand in this country for peace had been bought with German money. He said German money had been spent in this country to bribe newspapers, both foreign language and English newspapers, and in financing pacifist organizations.

"I don't mean," he said, "that all pacifist organizations are financed by German money. Some of them didn't have to be financed by anybody to go wrong."

Colonel Roosevelt said that after the war everything possible should be done by treaties to make peace safe, but declared against disarmament, arguing that America should at once adopt universal compulsory military training and be forever prepared to punish the wrongdoers among nations. There was applause when he told how, in 1907, after the establishment of the first Hague tribunal, pacifists had urged him to stop building up the navy, but he had refused, and sent the navy on a trip around the world, which he called "the greatest provocative for peace."

W. S. Kies of the Liberty Loan Committee made an urgent appeal for every American to buy a Liberty bond.

Cheers for the Mayor.

When Mayor Mitchel entered he was cheered for several minutes. In introducing him Thomas L. Chadbourne, Jr., Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense, said that the Mayor had not only given New York a good business administration, but that he had stirred up a spirit of loyalty in New York City that no other city in the country had.

"I hope," he said, "that those words 'Somewhere in France' will be changed to 'Somewhere in Germany' before John Purroy Mitchel ceases to be the Mayor of the City of New York."

The Mayor began by saying that the meeting had been called "to reiterate our determination that there shall be no let-up in our efforts as citizens of the United States or as citizens of New York to carry on this war until the day comes when victory is won and the world has in good truth been made safe for democracy for all time."

The Mayor praised the work of the Committee on National Defense and said: "I am happy to say that, partly because of the work of this committee and partly because of the work of the great Police Department of your city, but chiefly because of the unswerving patriotism of the people of the City of New York, this great community has led the whole nation in point of preparedness either in spirit or in practice, under the City Government under which you live."

There were prolonged cheers when the Mayor declared: "For every peaceful merchant ship sent to the bottom of the Atlantic by a submarine, the United States will send out two fighting ships to keep our flag upon the seas. For every law-abiding citizen going on his legitimate and peaceful course upon the seas, sent to the bottom by the submarines of a treacherous power with whom we were still supposed to be at peace, the United States will send to the other side 10,000 fighting men to vindicate the majesty of the American nation.

"But to do this and be effective," continued the Mayor, "we must be loyal at home, loyal all the time, and, in addition to fighting for democracy abroad, a part of that loyalty will consist in preserving democracy at home through justice. We cannot permit any man or any group or any interest to profit itself at the cost of the just and fair demands of labor. We cannot permit any interest to profit by extorting from our people unjust profits for the necessaries of life. We therefore approve any effort to reduce excess profits out of the war. The contractor who uses the occasion for undermining labor standards in his own financial interest is a traitor to the cause of democracy. The operator or middleman who in these days attempts to create fictitious prices for the necessaries of life is striking at the vitals of the nation."

The Mayor then urged that every man and woman in New York buy at least one Liberty bond of some denomination.

America's Fateful Blow.

"And under that loyalty," he said, "we must strike down, not individually, but through the constituted agencies of

Sweden Makes a Protest Against Seizure of Ships

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A dispatch to Reuter's, Ltd., from Stockholm says: "The Swedish Ministers in Paris and London have been instructed to protest respectively to the French and British Governments against the seizure of Swedish steamers. The Swedish Government points out that the right to make use of neutral ships during war is regarded by a majority of the authorities on international law as out of date.

"The French have seized eight and the British two Swedish steamers."

Mitchel Leaders Hope to Prevent His Indorsement by Republicans.

BROOKLYN MAY BLOCK PLAN

Hearst and Murphy, Says Buckner, Will Run City Hall if Hylan Wins.

The supporters of Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, Fusion candidate for re-election, expressed satisfaction yesterday over the action of the New York Republican County Committee in refusing to indorse William M. Bennett, although he obtained a majority of votes in the Republican primary on Sept. 19. Republican leaders in Manhattan predicted yesterday that the County Committees in the other boroughs would follow suit and either refuse to go on record as between Mr. Bennett and the Mayor or come out flatly in favor of Mr. Mitchel.

The Bennett forces admitted yesterday that they were wholly upset by the action of the New York Committee. At the worst they expected that the resolution indorsing Mr. Bennett would be tabled. The show of Mitchel strength caused an entire rearrangement of their plans. When the question of indorsement comes up before the other County Committees the Bennett forces plan to make a better showing of strength. In Kings County, where Bennett polled some 7,000 more votes than Mitchel, it is expected by the Bennett forces that any resolution indorsing Mr. Bennett will be carried.

On the other hand, Republican leaders said yesterday that the Mitchel strength was sufficient to block any attempt to put over an indorsement of Bennett. It is the plan of the Mitchel men to have every County Committee in the city either indorse Mitchel or refuse an indorsement to either candidate. The Mitchel men in Manhattan insisted yesterday that at the next meeting of the New York County Committee a resolution indorsing Mayor Mitchel would be carried. As a way out of the embarrassing situation the Republican leaders hope that the Mitchel resolution will not be forced to an issue, but that all the County Committees will simply go on record as opposing both Mitchel and Bennett.

The Kings County situation is giving the Mitchel supporters considerable trouble. In that county Mr. Bennett won in the primaries over Mr. Mitchel; and the Republican County leader, Jacob A. Livingston, said yesterday that he wanted a showdown on the Mitchel-Bennett proposition. Mr. Livingston has issued a call for a meeting of the Kings County Republican Committee for Oct. 16. He said yesterday that there was not the slightest disposition on the part of his organization to withhold its support from any of the candidates nominated at the official Republican primaries. This was taken to mean that the Livingston forces would try to block any attempt to have Mayor Mitchel indorsed.

The same situation prevails in Bronx and Queens Counties. County Chairman John J. Knewitz of the Bronx is willing to have his organization pass a resolution favoring Mr. Bennett, but the Mitchel forces there are as strong as the Bennett forces, and it is expected that when the County Committee meets neither candidate will be indorsed. Richard W. Lawrence, a member of the Fusion Committee of the Bronx, will be in charge of the Mitchel campaign there. He is an organization Republican and was a candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen on the Fusion ticket. His advocacy of Mayor Mitchel at this stage of the proceedings was taken to mean that the Mitchel forces in the Bronx had sufficient influence to block any indorsement of Bennett. The situation in the five counties of the city was summed up by a Republican leader as follows:

"The primary vote showed the strength of Mitchel. He won in Manhattan, but was defeated in Brooklyn. The Manhattan Republicans want him as their candidate. Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond are opposed to him, while the Bronx stands 'fifty-fifty.' The Republicans of all boroughs feel that there is not the slightest chance of Mr. Bennett winning in the election, whereas an indorsement of Mayor Mitchel at this time will split the party wide open. The disposition of all the County Committees is to follow New York's example and indorse neither Bennett nor Mitchel. This will leave the matter entirely up to the voters. Under this plan the enrolled Republicans will be left free to choose between the candidates."

Bennett Makes a Statement.

Ex-Senator William M. Bennett gave out the following statement:

"I see by the papers this morning that the Executive Committee of the New York County Republican Committee at a meeting held prior to the general meeting of the committee refused to indorse Mitchel by a vote of 27 to 9 and also voted not to indorse me by a vote of 28 to 9. With regard to the meeting of the full committee, the first thing that strikes me is that they failed in their attempt to repeal the direct primary law.

"The second is the fact that the meeting was under the control of persons with some special interest to serve,

CLOSING CONGRESS HAS APPROPRIATED OVER 21 BILLIONS

Includes Largest Amount Ever Made for War in Such a Brief Time.

$7,000,000,000 FOR ALLIES

$13,000,000,000 to Equip the Nation's Forces and Establish Merchant Marine.

NORMAL EXPENSES A BILLION

Senator Martin and Representative Fitzgerald Laud the Achievements of Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—A total of $21,390,730,940 was appropriated by the extraordinary war session of Congress, which will adjourn at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Of this amount $7,000,000,000 is being loaned to our allies and about $1,000,000,000 is appropriated for normal expenses of the Government. All the rest is to put the United States in a position to do her part in defeating the Central Powers.

No nation has appropriated so much for war in so short a time as was authorized by the present session. The appropriations of the last session of the Sixty-fourth Congress were $1,977,210,200. These were authorized before the declaration of war. The appropriations for the present session aggregate $16,901,966,814.91. Authorizations for the current fiscal year are $2,511,553,925.

Approximately $13,000,000,000 represents the amount which this country will spend in the current fiscal year to equip its huge war machine. This includes more than $1,000,000,000 to be spent on the merchant marine.

While the $7,000,000,000 which will be loaned to the Allies is included in the grand total, this amount is not to be considered part of the expenses of the United States. The Allies give this country their own bonds, bearing the same rate of interest, as security for the loans. One of the conditions exacted in the loans to the Allies is that the money shall be spent in this country.

The Appropriations Committees, through their Chairmen, Senator Martin and Representative Fitzgerald, made the figures public today, coupling with them the statement that Congress had done its work effectively. The Senator's statement is as follows:

"Statement showing by acts the appropriations for the fiscal year 1918, made during the Sixty-fourth Congress, second session, (including appropriations made by the Army, Military Academy, Rivers and Harbors, Sundry Civil, and General Deficiency acts passed during the Sixty-fifth Congress, first session):

America Has Resources to Force a Victory, Says Pershing, Denouncing 'Stalemate' Talk

AMERICAN TRAINING QUARTERS IN FRANCE, Oct. 5, (by The Associated Press.)—General Pershing, the American commander, in an interview today took exception to the statement which, according to information received here, is being spread throughout America by means of German propaganda, to the effect that the war on the western front will result in a stalemate. He denounced this as an effort to weaken American initiative.

"America has resources in men and material, once they are prepared, to add weight to the Allies which must force a military decision against Germany," said the General. He added that the American troops were imbued with the spirit of aggressiveness and victory.

The American Ambassador to France, William G. Sharp, visited the American training camp yesterday. He said on leaving:

"As I watched our splendid young soldiers at their drill, cheerful and determined, I could have no doubt of their victory, with the united nation behind them. In the faces of these splendid soldiers I saw the spirit of resolute America.

LA FOLLETTE FACES EXPULSION INQUIRY

Senate Yields to Many Demands to Investigate His Utterances at St. Paul.

OPENS HIS DEFENSE TODAY

Has Three Hours in Which to Explain — Committee to Report at December Session.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The Senate today decided to make a preliminary inquiry into the alleged disloyal utterances of Senator Robert M. La Follette through a subcommitee of five members of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, and the Wisconsin Senator announced that tomorrow morning he would reply on the floor to the numerous demands for his expulsion. Senator Kellogg of Minnesota will argue for expulsion. Thus, on the closing day of this memorable session one of the greatest debates of the year will be staged.

In executive session the Senate adopted without debate a formal resolution empowering a sub-committee to proceed with an investigation of the La Follette speech at St. Paul. The inquiry is limited solely to the accuracy of the reported speech and to substantiation of Senator La Follette's statements of fact therein. The report will be made when Congress convenes in December.

A report from the committee against investigation of like disloyalty reflections upon Senator Stone of Missouri, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was similarly adopted. The report stated that the communications filed imputing disloyalty to the Missouri Senator were not sufficient basis for an inquiry.

Senator La Follette will have three hours tomorrow in which to present his case and explain his alleged disloyal speech, which was delivered before the Non-Partisan League in St. Paul on Sept. 20. Since the speech, which has created such a wave of protest through the country, the Senate has been flooded with resolutions urging expulsion of the Wisconsin Senator on the ground that he was disloyal and that his utterances bordered on treason.

While the original protest came from a neighboring State, being instituted by the Minnesota Public Safety Committee, the uprising against Senator La Follette's position has been strengthened by a more forcible demand for his unseating by the Republican Committee of his own State. The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections early accepted the protests in a more or less perfunctory manner, but they came so fast after the first flush that action could no longer be delayed.

Clamor Forces Inquiry.

At its meeting today the committee decided to conduct a preliminary investigation through a sub-committee of five to be appointed tomorrow. This committee will sit during the recess of Congress, and probably will hold hearings in St. Paul. It will have power to take testimony, administer oaths, summon witnesses from any part of the United States, and sit in the recess of Congress. The decision to begin the investigation followed a long session of the committee today, in which letters and petitions for the expulsion of Mr. La Follette were reviewed. The committee had before it what purported to be a copy of the objectionable speech, but this Senator La Follette declared was inaccurate, and he promised to furnish his exact words, which probably will be embodied in his formal defense tomorrow.

After the committee adjourned Senator Pomerene, the Chairman, sent the following letter to Senator La Follette:

By direction of the Committee on Privileges and Elections I hand you herewith a copy of a speech purporting to have been made by you in St. Paul under the auspices of the Non-partisan League on the 20th day of September, 1917.

I am also requested to ask you whether or not this is a correct copy of the speech made by you, and if it is not a correct copy will you kindly state wherein it is not correct, and give us a correct statement thereof. If you feel free to comply with this request at your earliest convenience it will be greatly appreciated by the committee.

By the returning messenger Senator La Follette transmitted his reply. In it he said:

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of your communication as Chairman of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, transmitting a purported copy of a speech delivered by me at St. Paul on the 20th day of September, 1917, upon the invitation of the Non-Partisan League.

The matter which you enclose is not a correct copy of the speech, but I will not, at this time, undertake to state wherein it was not correct. I will, however, do so just as soon as I can secure a transcript of the speech which is accurate.

At least two copies addressed to me have been transmitted from St. Paul within the last week, neither of which has been received. I am wiring for copies again today.

Fear He May Talk All Day.

The fear that Senator La Follette would occupy the entire time in the last day of the session for his defense induced the Senate leaders to withhold the agreement to adjourn at 3 o'clock tomorrow until some understanding had been reached between Senator La Follette and Senator Kellogg as to the time

LOAN TOTAL SOARS TO $225,000,000

Metropolitan Life Leads Day with $10,500,000 — Equitable Takes $10,000,000.

REGULAR ARMY TO AID

District Still Below Daily Average of $62,500,000 Needed to Complete $1,500,000,000.

More subscriptions to the three-billion-dollar Liberty Loan were filed in this district yesterday than on any day since the opening of the campaign on Monday morning. The estimated total for the five days is $225,000,000. This figure includes the $193,000,000 of subscriptions regarding which the subscribers or their banks have given publicity, the balance being an approximation of applications made, but which have not yet been reported. Up to 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Federal Reserve Bank of New York had actually tabulated subscriptions totaling $88,689,000—a very incomplete record in view of the fact that about two-thirds of the 1,275 banks in this district have not sent in any report whatever.

The New York Federal Reserve district is expected to furnish subscriptions totaling $1,500,000,000 on the basis of $5,000,000,000 for the whole country. Figuring twenty-four week days to the campaign, which closes Oct. 27, the daily average is $62,500,000. Thus far the applications received have been below this figure, but it is expected that the returns will gradually increase. The effects of the canvassing and advertising work of the various committees is cumulative and much better results can therefore be relied upon for the near future. At the same time the committees are urging everybody to file his subscription as early as possible, and particular emphasis is placed on the desirability of having the widest possible distribution of the bonds.

Some of Larger Subscriptions.

Following are some of the larger subscriptions reported yesterday:

|---|---|
| Metropolitan Life Insurance Company (through the Metropolitan Bank) | $10,500,000 |

| Chatham and Phenix National Bank | 5,000,000 |
| National Park Bank | 5,000,000 |
| Metropolitan Trust Company | 2,500,000 |
| International Mercantile Marine Company | 2,000,000 |
| Lazard Freres (through First National Bank) | 1,000,000 |

Smaller Cities Show Activity.

Some of the smaller cities in the New York Reserve district have made a good showing, according to figures compiled yesterday. These show, for instance, that Stamford, Conn., has subscribed 44 per cent. of its full quota, that Newark, N. J., and Bridgehampton, N. Y., have sent subscriptions amounting to 23 per cent. of their respective quotas, while Ramsey, N. J., has a record of 35 per cent. and Ballston Spa, N. Y., a record of 24 per cent.

The Liberty Loan recruiting parties that toured the city on Thursday night obtained subscriptions amounting to more than $26,000. At Times Square, in response to a speech by J. L. Peyser, President of the Commercial Savings Bank of Washington, T. C. Hadley subscribed for a $1,000 bond.

It was announced yesterday that all banks in this city had agreed to use the partial payment plan for helping wage earners to subscribe to the Liberty Loan bonds. Commenting upon the plan, Walter E. Frew, President of the Corn Exchange Bank, said:

"I think it will work out very well. The card system recommended by the Liberty Loan Committee is simplicity itself and will go far to solve the difficulties experienced by those charged with the administrative work in the previous loan. Under the system devised the subscriber buying a $50 bond will receive a card which will indicate his initial payment. This card is to be presented at the office at which the first payment is made and the card issued.

"The bank teller will punch on the card a record of the subsequent payments. The bank has a duplicate card, so that putting together the two cards and punching the record involves a single operation, and the bank can

SHOW BERNSTORFF INSPIRED BOLO'S PEACE PLOT HERE

Five Dispatches Made Public by Lansing Disclose Envoy's Appeals to Berlin.

PRESSED JAGOW TO HELP

German Foreign Minister Agreed in Three Days to Provide $1,700,000.

BIG DEUTSCHE BANK FUND

Inquiry Shows $100,000,000 Was Held Here—Mystery in Payment of $250,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Direct evidence that Count von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador at Washington, who sought from his Government $50,000 with which to try to influence Congress for peace, engineered the deal with the Berlin Foreign Office for the $1,700,000 Bolo Pacha plot to buy up French newspapers for pacifist purposes, was made public tonight by Secretary of State Lansing.

Five cable dispatches were made public by Mr. Lansing clinching the proof that Bernstorff was the master mind behind the plot. These messages, which were exchanged during the Spring of 1916 between Count Bernstorff and Herr von Jagow, who was then German Minister for Foreign Relations, show that it was Bernstorff who put up the proposition to his Government for the expenditure of $1,700,000 for this projected fraud on the French people, and that it took the Berlin Government just three days from the time Bernstorff made his cabled appeal to agree to the loan of the money.

After Berlin had agreed to the scheme Bernstorff cabled asking that his Government instruct the Deutsche Bank to hold nine million marks at the disposal of Hugo Schmidt, who acted as American agent for Bolo.

Text of Bernstorff Dispatches.

Secretary Lansing's announcement reads:

"The Department of State communicates to the press the following telegrams bearing upon the case of Bolo Pacha, exchanged between Count von Bernstorff and Herr von Jagow, German Minister of Foreign Affairs:

Number 679, Feb. 28th. I have received direct information from an entirely trustworthy source concerning a political action in one of the enemy countries which would bring peace. One of the leading political personalities of the country in question is seeking a loan of one million, seven hundred thousand dollars in New York, for which security will be given. I was forbidden to give his name in writing. The affair seems to me to be of the greatest possible importance. Can the money be provided at once in New York? That the intermediary will keep the matter secret is entirely certain. Request answer by telegram. A verbal report will follow as soon as a trustworthy person can be found to bring it to Germany. BERNSTORFF.

Number 150, Feb. 29th. Answer to telegram Number 679. Agree to the loan, but only if peace action seems to you a really serious project, as the provision of money in New York is for us at present extraordinarily difficult. If the enemy country is Russia have nothing to do with the business, as the sum of money is too small to have any serious effect in that country. So, too, in the case of Italy, where it would not be worth while to spend so much. JAGOW.

Number 685, March 5th. Please instruct Deutsche Bank to hold nine million marks at disposal of Hugo Schmidt. The affair is very promising. Further particulars follow. BERNSTORFF.

Number 692, March 20th. With reference to telegram Number 685, please advise our Minister in Berne that some one will call on him who will give him the passport Sanct Regis and who wishes to establish relations with the Foreign Office. Intermediary further requests that influence may be brought to bear upon our press to pass over the change in the inner political situation in France so far as possible in silence, in order that things may not be spoiled by German approval. BERNSTORFF.

Number 206, May 31st. The person announced in Telegram 692 of March 20th has not yet reported himself at the Legation at Berne. Is there any more news on your side of Bolo? JAGOW.

Messages Subtly Worded.

No aliases were used in Bernstorff's messages. They bear his signature and those of the Foreign Minister bear the signature of von Jagow. But the messages were subtly worded and only one of those made public contains the name of Bolo, although previous disclosures in New York and Paris make it exceedingly easy to read between the lines of these dispatches.

They were evidently sent in code, and the ease with which Secretary Lansing was able to reach into his German plot dossier and fish out theese messages for communication to the press at the proper psychological moment bespeaks the ease with which this Government is now able to disclose what it knows, when it wants to do so, regarding the intensive campaign conducted by Ger-

Peru's Senate and Chamber Vote for Break with Germany

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LIMA, Peru, Saturday, Oct. 6.—The Senate and Chamber of Deputies in joint session last night approved almost unanimously—by 105 to 6 votes—a motion presented by the Minister of Foreign Affairs breaking off diplomatic relations with Germany.

A dispatch from Lima, dated last Wednesday, stated that the Peruvian Congress was considering the question of relations with Germany. It added that the Foreign Minister and the Minister of War had been summoned to give information.

KITCHIN AUTHOR OF 8 PER CENT. TAX

REPEAL MOVEMENT STARTED

But It Cannot Be Accomplished at This Session—Hull Angry and Wants Action Taken.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—It was Representative Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, Democratic leader of the House of Representatives and Chairman of the House contingent in the joint Conference Committee on the War Revenue bill, who was responsible for writing into the measure behind closed doors the legislative joker providing for an 8 per cent. excess profits tax on salaries and the earnings of professional and business men in excess of $6,000 a year, excepting the salaries of Senators, Representatives, and Government officials.

This information came today from Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, a member of the Conference Committee. According to Mr. Penrose members of the joint conference were obliged to accept Mr. Kitchin's proposal to prevent a deadlock that might have caused the failure of this important piece of legislation.

Representative Kitchin today defended his course in having the 8 per cent. tax put on earnings into the bill. He admitted that the provision exempted the salaries of members of Congress and defended his position in that respect. He had no sympathy, he said, with the proposed movement to lift the exemption on Congressional salaries. Mr. Kitchin left no doubt that he intended his joker to apply to salaries—except the salaries of members of Congress and others drawing pay from the Government.

"That excess profits tax of 8 per cent. on incomes of individuals, mind you," said Mr. Kitchin, "is a tax on excess profits. It is a tax on money derived from a business. The Government is not a business institution and no salary therefrom is a business income. Officials don't work for profits. Personally I am in Congress at a loss."

Although members of the House believe the 8 per cent. tax will work a hardship and a discrimination in many instances, they are unusually worried about the political future of the member who voted for a revenue measure which contains a double joker. This joker, as has been explained, is that the 8 per cent. excess profits tax is to be applied to all of an occupational income above $6,000—but Government officials, including Congressmen, are exempted from this tax.

Representative Kitchin further said:

"No government in the world (and I mean that) places an excess profits tax upon the salaries of its officials. The tax we imposed is a tax upon business; not upon governments. Governments are not business concerns, and are not producing dividends.

"If it should come about that men are in Government positions for a profit, then I would advise a very heavy tax upon their salaries. But few men are working for a profit in Congress or in any official position.

"This whole protest against the excess profits tax on individual incomes arises from the disinclination of New York lawyers to pay any taxes. Lawyers who were down here lobbying against this very bill at an enormous cost to their clients are the men who will be caught most heavily under this tax; and they are the men who started the protest."

In amplifying his statement that Representative Kitchin was responsible for including in the bill, after it had been passed upon by the Senate and the House, the provision affecting salaries and earnings, Senator Penrose said:

"The 8 per cent. tax on occupations netting in excess of $6,000 was a proposition emanating from the House conference. It has been described as a joker, but, as a matter of fact, it was fully discussed in conference and on the floor of the Senate. I raised the point in the committee and again on the floor that no distinction was made between an earned income and an invested income. The latter pays only a tax under the income tax section, while the earned income pays a double tax—under the income provision and the 8 per cent., or occupational, clause.

"The same objection was also made by Senator Wadsworth of New York on the floor when the report of the conference was under discussion. The purpose of the amendment was along the policy to place every one on an equality and on this theory the proposition was pressed. Of course, the result of this plan, intended to place every one on an equality so far as the profit tax is concerned, has resulted in a more inequitable distinction between earned and invested income. It is an illustration of the thought that the scales cannot be held absolutely even in a country so large with over 100,000,000 people.

"I stated on the floor of the Senate when the conference report was up for consideration that there were many objectionable features in the Revenue bill which I was unable and unwilling to publicly defend. This is one. Many con-

HAIG HOLDS GAINS OF YPRES VICTORY; HAS 4,446 PRISONERS

FIERCE NIGHT BOMBARDMENT

Six Captured Villages Occupied by Victors, Who Also Have a Grip on Poelcapelle.

KING SENDS HIS THANKS

LONDON, Oct. 5.—After their great victory of yesterday, Field Marshal Haig's forces on the Ypres front spent today in consolidating the positions they had won. Comparative quiet, says tonight's official report, prevailed today. The British have taken 4,446 prisoners, 114 of them officers, since the beginning of yesterday's offensive.

The King has telegraphed congratulations to Field Marshal Haig on his leadership and the efficiency and courage of his troops.

The Germans maintained an intense artillery fire on the newly won positions during the night, but attempted no further counterattacks.

In a dispatch from the British front in France and Belgium The Associated Press correspondent says:

"The sun this morning [Friday] was shining down through the crisp October air on an unwavering line of victorious troops along the new defenses which they reached in yesterday's great drive. The night had brought virtually no change in the situation, and the British were rapidly consolidating the positions that were the fruit of one of the most important conquests of the war. The night was comparatively calm as far as infantry action was concerned.

"The enemy, however, concentrated an intense artillery fire on the entire battle front, and during yesterday afternoon and evening they massed their shattered troops at various places for counterattacks. These were attempts born of desperation, and in almost every case the onrushing waves of German infantry were caught in a heavy artillery, machine gun and rifle fire, and crushed before they reached their objectives.

"The German artillery fire was particularly heavy up to midnight along the section just north of the Menin road, in the vicinity of Polderhoek. In the afternoon and evening the enemy launched no less than five counterattacks in this sector of the front, but each time were driven back with heavy losses.

"A little further north, in the neighborhood of Reutel, the Germans met with little more success. Twice they essayed to press back the British troops, and twice they were hurled back."

"Countless Thousands" of Dead.

The Associated Press correspondent of the British front in France and Belgium, telegraping yesterday, said:

"From a point near the Ypres-Staden Railway on the north to the Ypres-Menin highway on the south, the men of the British Empire have surged forward with an irresistible force which at some places carried them to a depth of 2,000 yards over still more of the German keystone positions in the Passchendaele-Gheluveit Ridge system of defenses. On the northern [illegible] of the advance the British have reached Poelcapelle and Gravenstafel, and have overrun most of the Gravenstafel ridge, which juts out to the west from the Passchendaele-Gheluveit ridge. South of the Ypres-Roulers Railway the troops are reported to be overlooking the eastern slopes of the main ridge, and in some places to have pushed on into the valley below.

"As the attacking troops went out in quest of a great adventure over the mist-shrouded slopes, their vast protective artillery barrage caught in its merciless swirl large numbers of the enemy, who, by coincidence had also been massing for an early morning attack along a wide front extending from the neighborhood of Zonnebeke to Polygon Wood. Some five divisions of German troops were involved, three of these having been rushed up in reserve to support their comrades in the front lines when the German attacks should begin.

"A solid wall of breaking shells plowed through them in a hurricane of death, and they lie in countless thousands amid the devastation that the barrage left in its wake. Part of these ill-fated troops were the famous Guardsmen in whom the German Emperor had taken such pride in the days gone by. But these massed troops were not the only ones to suffer, for reports from prisoners all along the line indicate that the Germans lost heavily throughout the territory involved.

Tanks Did Excellent Service.

"On the left of the advance the ground in the region of Poelcapelle was not in bad condition, except along the Strombeek River, where it was very marshy, necessitating a slow advance. The tanks operating with the troops here did excellent service, reducing a number of strong redoubts and concrete 'pillboxes.' Poelcapelle was well garrisoned, but apparently did not offer strong resistance. The British were within reach of the town by 10:30 o'clock.

"Meantime others were making their way over Abraham Heights, near Gravenstafel. There was some cellar fighting here, but it was brief. The main trouble was encountered near the fort, where the Germans had eight strong concrete re-doubts. Sharp fighting followed, but the Germans finally were forced, with rifles and bombs, to surrender. Both Poelcapelle and Gravenstafel are masses of ruins. The latest reports show the British have swarmed over virtually all of Gravenstafel ridge.

"South of the Ypres-Roulers Railway, which cuts the Passchendaele-Gheluvelt ridge where the Gravenstafel arm joins it, the British were on the crest of the ridge or beyond it throughout the remainder of its length. They had little trouble in reaching it. There was a brief battle near Molenaarelsthoek crossroads, which were fortified. Just north of here the Germans held a farm, from which they poured heavy machine gun fire into the British ranks until the place was subdued.

"Prisoners were taken in Polderhoek, and the château near there was carried after sharp fighting. Joist Farm, near the southeastern edge of Polygon Wood, which had been a sore spot to the British for days, still held out at the latest reports, although the British had pushed beyond it on both sides. This was the only snag of the kind encountered so far as is known.

"Broodseinde, which lies on the ridge, was the approximate centre of the day's attack, and here was the deepest point of the advance. From this village the line tapered off gradually to the north and the south."

"The southern extremity of the new battle front—the section extending from the Ypres-Menin highway northward by Polderhoek, Cameron Covert, and Reutel—today continued to be the position to which the Germans were devoting most attention. This sector has been under an extremely heavy enemy artillery fire since the British push started yesterday and it seemed certain that the Germans would not let the last word rest with the series of counterattacks they delivered, or attempted to deliver, against this front yesterday afternoon and evening.

"Today the British were holding strongly to all the positions secured yesterday, with the exception of a few advanced posts in a very small area of the Reutel region, where they drew back slightly after a third German counterthrust. The Germans massed for several other attacks, but all these were nipped in the bud by artillery and machine gun fire.

Whole British Line Well Dug In.

"The entire British line was remarkably well dug in by morning, despite the difficulties raised by the flurries of rain yesterday. The latest reports indicate that they have been little troubled by the enemy infantry, although a heavy bombardment is being kept up by the German guns.

"Late details confirm earlier reports that the Germans did not fight well in most sections. In many places they ran. The total prisoners who surrendered is great. On one sector of the Anzac front alone they amounted to more than 2,000. The Australians captured seven officers, including a battalion commander, in one shell hole, and the Anzacs also took two other battalion leaders. At a point not far from the Ypres-Roulers Railway an Australian officer, single-handed, took thirty-one Germans from a blockhouse.

Drive Nets 4,446 Prisoners.

Tonight's official report says:

No important infantry fight occurred on the battle front today. Our troops have consolidated their positions. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

The number of prisoners taken since yesterday morning amounts to 4,446, including 114 officers.

The text of the British report issued this afternoon follows:

Our new positions east of Ypres were heavily shelled by the enemy during the night, but no further counterattacks were made. Our troops have been engaged with organizing the captured positions.

A hostile raiding party endeavored to enter our trenches last night north of Gouzeaucourt, but was driven off with loss by rifle and machine-gun fire. Three other raids were attempted by the enemy in the neighborhood of Lens. All three were repulsed, in one case after stiff fighting.

Berlin Minimizes Losses.

BERLIN, Oct. 5, (via London.)—The gain of the British in yesterday's attack east of Ypres, the War Office states, was restricted to a strip of land one to one and one-half kilometers (two-thirds of a mile to one mile) deep, running from Poelcapelle via the eastern spur of Zonnebeke and along the road to Becelaere. The latter village and the hotly contested village of Gheluvelt, the announcement adds, remain completely in the possession of the Germans.

The announcement says that yesterday's battle was of unusual intensity, but that the Fourth Army succeeded in withstanding the British attack. Advancing on a front of fifteen kilometers, the statement adds, the British pushed forward temporarily, but could not hold their ground.

The British used at least eleven divisions, and their losses are reported to have been large. The British thrust broke down before reaching its objectives which, the announcement continues, were not, as will be stated, a short distance away but doubtless were very far distant. The German troops in Flanders are praised for their heroism.

Western Theatre — Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria: Yesterday was a day of battle of unusual intensity for the leaders and the troops of the Fourth Army. It has been withstood. From early morning until into the night the struggle was continued by repeated English attacks let loose again and again from the region northwest of Langemarck to south of the Menin-Ypres road—fifteen kilometers [about nine and one-third miles].

On the terrain on which this bitter, fluctuating fighting of infantry took place, massed artillery, both man and gun, worked uninterruptedly at their maximum effort. The hottest points of the battle were at Poelcappelle, the isolated farms three kilometers west of Passchendaele, the roads crossing east and southeast of Zonnebeke, portions of the wood west of Becelaere nd the Village of Gheluvelt.

Admits Loss on Six-Mile Front.

Over this line the enemy was able temporarily to push forward, but under the pressure of our counterattacks he could not hold his ground, although until late evening fresh forces were continually brought into the fray. The English gain was restricted to a strip of land of from one to one and a half kilometers in depth, running from Poelcapelle by the way of the eastern spur of Zonnebeke and thence along the road leading to Becelaere. This last named village also was hotly contested. The village of Gheluvelt remains completely in our possession.

The sanguinary losses of the English divisions—at least eleven were engaged on the battlefront in the early attack alone—are reported as very high. The effective co-operation of all our arms also caused this powerful thrust of the English to break down before reaching its objective, which on this occasion was not, as will be stated, a short distance away, but was doubtless very far distant. The heroism of the German troops in Flanders is not to be outdone.

The British gains which are admitted in the foregoing German statement, by the terms of the statement itself, consist of a strip of high ground rather more than six miles long and from two-thirds of a mile to one mile wide.

40,000 HOUSES DESTROYED.

Belgians Give Figures of Havoc and Refute German Charges.

HAVRE, Thursday, Oct. 4, (delayed.)—The Belgian Government has issued a Gray Book refuting allegations against Belgian civilians contained in the German White Book of May, 1915, in which it was said that Belgian civilians savagely attacked German troops in the early days of the war, and that the measures adopted by the Germans were necessary in the interest of the preservation of the German Army.

According to the Gray Book, between 40,000 and 50,000 houses were destroyed by the Germans. It gives the approximate number by provinces as follows:

Antwerp, 3,533; Brabant, 5,833; West Flanders, 16,000; East Flanders, 2,500; Hainaut, 3,500; Liége, 3,444; Limbourg, [illegible]; Luxembourg, 3,000; Namur, 5,243.

In the City of Ypres 3,700 houses were destroyed, the Gray Book says, and in Louvain 1,120.

LOSERS AT YPRES FOUGHT GAMELY

But the Teuton Defense Was Thoroughly Disorganized by British Barrage.

TOLL OF DEAD WAS HEAVY

Men of Six German Battalions Were Killed or Taken Prisoners Near Poelcapelle.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS IN BELGIUM, Oct. 5.—The British who were fighting in the great battle yesterday and, after the capture of many strong positions, held their ground last night in spite of many German counterattacks and heavy fire, tell grim tales which all go to build up the general picture of the most smashing defeat they have inflicted upon the enemy.

On one section of the front where English country troops fought up to Poelcapelle and its surrounding blockhouses, six enemy battalions in the front line were either taken or killed. The men themselves do not know those figures; they only know that they passed over great numbers of dead, and that they took many prisoners. The New Zealanders and Australians on their right, fighting up Abraham Heights, took over 2,000 prisoners and say they have never seen so many dead as those who lay shapeless in the tracks.

Other Australians, fighting for Broodseinde cross roads, have counted 960 dead Germans on their way.

The full tale of German dead will never be counted. They lie on this battleground buried and half buried in the water of the shell holes, in blockhouses blown on top of them and in dugouts that become their tombs. They fought bravely in some places, with despairing courage, in or about some of the blockhouses which still gave them a chance of resistance, and sometimes worked their machine guns to the last.

Men lying in shell craters, still alive among all their dead, used their rifles and sniped the advancing British, knowing that they would have to pay for their shots with their lives. That is courage; and the New Zealanders and the English lads I met today were fair to the enemy, and said Fritz showed some pluck when he had a dog's chance, though many of the Germans ran when their assailants got close to them behind the barrage. It was the barrage that made them break. The Fourth Guards Division seems to have fought well on the line of the British first objective, though after that they would not stand firm and ran or surrendered like the others.

Germans' Defense Disorganized.

Owing to the coincidence of simultaneous attacks from both sides yesterday morning and the complete overthrow of the German assault divisions who were about to advance on the British, there seems no doubt that some confusion prevailed behind the German lines, and on the left and centre of the British attack all their attempts at counterthrusts were badly planned and led to further disaster. They did not advance in orderly formation, but straggled up from local reserves and supports and were smashed in detail by the artillery.

So it happened with two battalions which came down the road to Poelcapelle, but withered away. The Lancashires in that region say the thing was laughable, though it is a comedy of war and not mirthful in the usual sense. Small groups of Germans wandered up in an aimless way and were shot down by machine guns and rifle fire.

On the right of the battle front the enemy's attacks were more serious, and they fought with grim persistence. After the advanc of the British on Polderhoek and its château by the Gheluvelt spur of Passchendaele ridge some of the Surreys and other South Country troops swung around the stream and marshlands of Reutel and accounted for many of the enemy in close and fierce fighting. The West Country men were astride of the stream, and, working north of it, attacked the slope called Juniper Spur.

In Poldenhoek was a nest of machine guns which fired out of the ruins of the château, and for some time the British had difficult and deadly work. This was the worst against the boys who were facing the château grounds; but they dug in and made some cover, while behind the prisoners—about 500 of them—were getting back to the safety of the British lines.

Six Counterattacks Smashed.

It was in the afternoon that the enemy sent a very strong counterattack down the slopes of Gheluvelt Spur. Six times through the afternoon masses of men appeared, and they tried to force their way forward, but each time they were caught under rifle, machine gun, and artillery fire. It was at 7 o'clock that the heaviest attack came under cover of savage shelling, and the British had to fall back a little on the ground beyond Cameeron House, which was the scene of the enemy's fierce attacks on Sept. 25, when they were for some little time a serious menace to the British. This morning the enemy drove a wedge into the British line in this neighborhood, and it is quite possible he will deliver other blows in the same direction. Last night he made no great endeavor to get back the ground.

It was a dirty night for the men who have been fighting all day. Rain fell heavily and filled the shell holes, turning all the broken ground of the battle field into the same old bog which made so much misery in Inverness Copse and Glencorse Wood and the other positions attacked on July 31 and afterward.

One little party came down when the fire was fiercestt and took cover in a shell hole close beside some Warwickshire boys, who were crouching in another hole until the storm of shells had passed. Suddenly they heard the howl of a monstrous shell—an eight-inch, or even a twelve-inch, by the noise of it. It fell and burst right inside the shell crater, where the stretcher bearers were huddled with their wounded men, and they were blown out of it, yards high, so that their bodies were tossed like straws in a fierce wind. I met many men who worked their way down under a fire like that, and some who had been wounded again, while some of the comrades who had trudged with them had been killed.

Fought All Through the Day.

The English troops on the left of the New Zealanders had some very hard fighting, lasting all through the day, which concluded with an attack on a position called Terrier Farm, above the "pillboxes" of Wellington House and Winchester House, which they had captured after some bad quarters of an hour.

Among these were some Midland lads who had started with great luck. In spite of the German shelling they had got away to their first objective with only three casualties. They went through the first line of blockhouses without much trouble, picking up prisoners on the way in most of them.

Their first trouble came from one of those concrete places called Wellington House. Machine-gun fire came crackling from it, and bullets, also, sweeping the ground from hidden emplacements. After twenty minutes' struggle Wellington House fell and the flanks on either side closed and went forward.

The Midlanders were helped on the right by a body of New Zealand men.

In a dugout on the battlefield I talked with some of them and they were cheery lads, full of confidence in the coming battle. They wanted to go as far as the wedge of pocket in the line.

The attack against Terrier Farm was done by other Midland lads, who after a long day under fire were for all their spirit, tired and cold. They had stood almost knee deep in the mud and they were wet to the skin, as it is now raining steadily.

So a tank came up to help them and drew close enough to Terrier Farm to fire broadsides at the concrete and machine gun. A white rag, thrust through a hole in the wall, was a sign of surrender, but conditions were too bad for any greater progress and the men dug in for the night while brother tank crawled back.

All the tanks used in the battle did well, in spite of the bad going, and helped reduce several of the blockhouses. They had only two casualties among their crews and most of them got back to their hiding places without damage from the German shells.

Bold Deeds of an Airman.

It was astounding that the German counterattacks were so quickly signalled to the guns, for the light all day was bad and the weather dead against the work of the flying men. They did their best by flying low and risking the enemy's fire. There one pilot who is the talk of Australians today. They watched that English youth doing most amazing stunts over the fighting lines. He was out all day swooping low, so that his planes seemed just to skim over the craters. The Germans tried to get him by any manner of means. They turned the "archies" on him and also their machine guns, and they tried to bring him down with rifle fire.

Haig Forestalled German Attack.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS IN BELGIUM, Thursday, Oct. 4, (Delayed.)—Another great battle opened today, and in a wide attack from the ground the British captured on Sept. 20, north and south of the Polygon Wood crest, Field Marshal Haig's troops have advanced upon Passchendaele Ridge, have apparently reached Gravenstafel and Abraham Heights, which crown a western spur of the ridge, and Broodseinde, which is the high point and the keystone of Zonnebeke. South of that they are fighting with good successes between Cameron Covert and Becelaere across the Reutelbeek, and down beyond Polderhoek.

To the south of the Menin road this morning I saw hundreds of prisoners trailing back across the battlefield and crowds of them within the barbed wire inclosures set apart for them behind the British lines. The slightly wounded British are coming down the tracks for walking. They speak, in spite of their blood and bandages, of the smashing blow dealt against the enemy and of the complete victory.

'We Have Him Beat,' Tommies Say.

"We have him beat," the men say, and they are sure of this, sure of his enormous losses and of his broken spirit, although the fighting has been hard because of the great gunfire through which the British have had to pass.

It has been a strange and terrible battle—terrible, I mean, in its great conflict of guns and men—and the enemy, if all goes as well with the British as it is now going, may have to remember it as a turning point in the history of this war—a point that has turned against him with a sharp and deadly edge. For, realizing his great peril if the British strengthened their hold on Passchendaele Ridge, and knowing that they intended to do so, (all the signs showed him that, and all our pressure on these positions,) he prepared an attack against them in great strength in order to regain the ground he lost on Sept. 26, or if not that, then so to damage them that their advance would be checked until the weather choked them in mud again.

His small counterattacks, or rather his local counterattacks — for they were not weak—had failed; even his persistent hammering at the right wing by Cameron House, below Polygon Wood, had failed to bite deeply into the British line, though for a time, on Sept. 25, it had been a cause of anxiety to them and made the battle next day more difficult and critical. But these attacks had failed in their purpose, and now the German high command decided for a big blow, which was to be delivered at 7 o'clock this morning.

German Barrage Came Too Late.

It was a day and an hour too late. The British battle was fixed for an hour before his, and so it happened that the British troops, in order to follow their own barrage, had to pass through that of the Germans, which fell upon them before they leaped up to the assault; and it happened also, most terribly for the enemy, that the British were not stopped, but went through that zone of shells without disorder, and on the other side, behind their own barrage, swept over the German assault troops and annihilated their plan of attack.

The Germans did not attack. Their defense even was broken. As the British lines of fire crept forward they reached and broke the second and third waves of men who had been ordered to attack and caught them in their support and reserve positions. One can only guess what the slaughter has been. Five German divisions were involved in it.

This battle looks like one of the greatest victories the British have had in the war. Preparations on a big scale were started as soon as the last battle was fought and won. No words of mine can give more than a hint of what those preparations meant in the scene of war. Everywhere there has been a fever of work—Tommies, Chinkies, and colored men piling up mountains of ammunition to feed the guns. Under shellfire bracketing the loads on which they worked, the engineers carried on.

Tracks were put down, new lengths of "duckboard" laid, and new rails. The enemy's shells came howling over to search out all this work, which had been observed by airplanes, and at night flocks of the latter came out in the light of the moon to drop bombs on the men and the works. Now and again they made lucky hits—got a dump and sent it flaming up in a great torch, killed horses in the wagon lines laboring up with transport, laid out a group of men, smashed a train or truck—but the work went on, never checked, never stopping in its steady flow of energy up to the lines, and the valor of all these laborers was great and steady in preparing for today. Knowing the purpose of it all filled one with a kind of fear; it was so prodigious, so vastly schemed.

I passed a dump yesterday, and again today, in the waste ground on the old battle field near Ypres, and saw the shells for the field batteries being unloaded. There were thousands of them, brand new from the British factories, all bright and glistening and laid out in piles. The guns were greedy; here was food for their monstrous appetite.

Rain Threatens the Attack.

We watched all this—the faces of the men going up, so bright-eyed, so splendid in their youth, so gay, and all these shells and guns and materials of war, and all this movement which surged about us and caught us up like straws in its tide—and then we looked at the sky and smelled the wind and studied the milky ring which had formed about the moon. Rain was coming. If only it would come lightly or hold off another day or two—one night, at least.

A little rain fell yesterday, and the ground was sticky when I went to see some boys getting ready for the show today and to watch the beginning of the great bombardment. Curse the rain! It would make all the difference to the fighting men—the difference, perhaps, between a great success and a half failure, and the difference between life and death to many of those boys who looked steadily toward the German lines which they were asked to take. What damnable luck it would be if the rain fell heavily! Last night the moon was hidden, and the rain fell, but not very hard, though the wind went howling across the flats of Flanders; and this morning, when the men rose from the shellholes and battered trenches and fields of upheaved earth to make this great attack, the rain fell still, but softly, so that the ground was only sticky and sludgy, but not a bog. Rain was glistening on their steel helmets, and the faces of the fighting men were wet when they went forward. They had passed already through a great ordeal, and some of them—a few here and there—could not rise to go with their comrades, they lay dead on the ground.

Germans Shift Their Artillery.

Along the lines of these thousands of men the stretcherbearers were already busy in the dark, because the enemy put over a heavy barrage at 5:30 and elsewhere later—the prelude to the attack he had planned. His old methods of defense and counterattack had broken down in two battles. The spell of the "pill-box," which had worked well for a time, was broken so utterly that those concrete blockhouses were feared as death-traps by the men who had held them.

The German high command hurried to prepare a new plan, guessing that of the British, and moved their guns to be ready for the next attack, registered on their own trenches, which they knew they might lose, and assembled their best troops, ready for a heavy blow to wind the British before they started and smash their lines so that the advance would be a thousand times harder. The barrage which the Germans sent over was the beginning of a new plan. It failed because of the great courage of the British troops, first of all, and because the German infantry attack was timed an hour too late. If it had come two hours earlier it might have led to the undoing of Haig's men—might, at least, have prevented anything like a real victory today; but the fortune of war was on the side of the British, and the wheel turned around to crush the enemy.

The main force of his attack, which was to have been made by the Fourth Guards Division, with two others, I am told, in support, was ready to assault the centre of the British battlefront in the direction of Polygon Wood and down from Broodseinde Crossroads. It was the British, however, who fought the German assault divisions at Broodseinde Crossroads and took many prisoners from them before they had time to advance very far. The enemy's shelling had been heavy about the ground of Inverness Copse and Glencorse Wood, where a week or so ago I saw frightful heaps of German dead, and spread over a wide area of the British line of battle along Polygon Wood Heights and the low ground in front of Zonnebeke. The men tell me that it did not do them as much harm as they expected. The shells plunged deep in the soft ground, bursting upward in tall columns, and their killing effect was not widespread. Many of them also missed the British waves altogether.

So, half an hour later, the British attacking troops went away behind their own barrage, which was enormous and annihilating. Wet mist lay heavily over the field, and it was almost dark except for a pale glimmer behind the rain clouds, which brightened as each quarter hour passed, with the men tramping forward slowly to their first objective.

Germans Rush to Surrender.

The shell craters on the German side were linked together here and there to form a kind of trench system, but many of these had been blown out by other shell bursts, and German soldiers lay dead in them. From others men and boys—many boys of 18—rose with arms upstretched, as white in the face as dead men, but living and afraid. Across these frightful fields men came running toward the British line. They did not come to fight, but to escape from the shellfire which tossed up the earth about them, and to surrender. Many of them were streaming with blood, wounded about the head and face, or with broken and bleeding arms. So I saw them early this morning when they came down the tracks which led away from that long line of flaming gunfire.

The scene of the battle in those early hours was a great and terrible picture. It will be etched as long as life lasts on the minds of the men who saw it. The ruins of Ypres were vague and blurred in the mist as I passed them on the way up, but as the moments passed the ragged stump of the Cloth Hall, the wild wreckage of the asylum, and the fretted outline of all this chaos of masonry which was so fair a city once crept out in the light which flashed redly and passed.

So it was all the long way to the old German lines. Bits of villages still stand enough to show that buildings were once there, and isolated ruins of barns and farm houses lie in heaps of timber and brickwork about great piles of greenish sandbags and battered earthworks.

Hundreds of Guns Volleying.

The British guns were everywhere in the low, concealing mist, so that one could not walk anywhere to avoid the blast of their fire. They made a fury of fire. Flashes leaped from them with only a pause of a second or two, while they were reloaded. There was never a moment within my own range of vision when hundreds of great guns were not firing together. They were eating up the shells which I had seen going up to them, and the roads and fields across which I walked were littered with shells. The wet mist was like one great damp fire with ten miles or more of smoke rising in white vapor, through which tongues of flame leaped up stirred by some fierce wind.

The noise was terrifying in its violence. Passing one of those big-bellied howitzers was to me an agony. It rose like a beast stretching out its neck, and there came from it a roar which almost split one's eardrums and shook one's body with the long tremor of the concussion. These things were all firing at their hardest pace, and the earth was shaken with their blasts of fire. The enemy was answering, but with no great threat to the British guns. His shells came whining and howling through all this greater noise and burst with a crash on either side of the mule tracks and over the bits of ruin near by and in the fields on each side of the paths down which German prisoners came staggering with their wounded.

Fresh shellholes, enormously deep and thickly grouped, showed that the German guns had plastered this ground fiercely, but later in the morning their shelling eased off, and the guns had other work to do over there, where the British infantry was advancing—other work, unless the guns lay smashed with their teams lying dead around them, killed by the British counterbattery work with high explosives and gas; for in the night the British smothered the Germans with gas and tried to keep them quiet for this battle and all others.

We went eastward and mounted a pile of rubbish and timber, all blown into shapelessness and reeking with foul odors, and from that shelter looked across to Passchendaele Ridge and Hill 40, on the west of Zonnebeke and the line of the ridge that goes round to Polygon Wood. It was all blurred so that I could not see the white ruins of Zonnebeke or the broken church tower of Passchendaele. It was all veiled in smoke and mist, through which the ridge loomed darkly with a black hump where Broodseinde stood; but clearly through the gloom were seen the white and yellow cloudbursts of the British shellfire and the flame of the shellbursts.

Ridge a Row of Volcanoes.

It was the most terrible bombardment I had ever seen, and I saw the fire of the Somme and of Vimy and Arras and Messines. Those were not like this, great as they were in frightfulness. The whole of Passchendaele crest was like a series of volcanoes belching up pillars of earth and fire.

"It seemed to us," said man after man who came down from those slopes, "as if no mortal man could live in it. Yet there were many who lived, despite all the dead."

I saw the living men. Below the big pile of timber and muck on which I stood was a winding path, with other tracks on each side of it between deep shell craters, and down those ways came batches of prisoners and the trail of the British walking wounded. It was a tragic sight, in spite of its proof of the victory and valor of the British and the spirit of the British wounded, who bore pain with stoic patience and said, when I spoke to them: "It's been a good day; we're doing fine, I think."

Haggard German Prisoners.

The Germans were haggard and white-faced men, thin and worn, and weary and frightened; many of them. The greater number were wounded. Some of them had masks of dry blood on their faces, and some of them wet blood all down their tunics. They held broken arms, from which the sleeves had been cut away, and hobbled painfully on wounded legs.

It was a procession down that winding path which a painter should have seen, to put down a true picture of one side of war. Shoulder-high, the stretcher bearers, swaying a little to the swing of the stretchers, carried the German and British wounded. I saw a German officer on one of the stretchers. He had a cloak over him, and his head drooped over the side of the pole. I think he was already dead. Another man died as they carried him. His head flopped first to one side and then to the other, and then his body was shaken with a great rigor, and he lay still. A young soldier had been blinded. All the top of his face was covered with a bloody rag, and he walked stiffly, with an Englishman on either side of him, guiding his footsteps over the rough ground. They passed and passed, these men—platoons of Germans marching together with one or two British soldiers with fixed bayonets beside them, and single figures, not guarded at all, but making their way slowly and painfully across the fields in the same direction as the British wounded. There were many boys among them—boys with shaven heads without caps or helmets; wizened white-faced boys, whose shrapnel helmets were like extinguishers, and lazy boys, with great spectacles on their noses.

But they were not in the majority. Most of the men I saw—and I saw hundreds of them—were men between 20 and 30, and big, strong, and tough. After this battle their skin was gray, and their eyes stared out of deep sockets. They shrank when some of their own shells came overhead and burst near them on the way down to safety, and they looked with dazed eyes at the English soldiers and at the ambulances and wagons further on. It had been a great defeat for them, and they did not hide their despair. They did not fight stubbornly for the most part, but ran one way or the other as soon as the British barrage passed and revealed their assailants. The British gunfire had overwhelmed them.

In the blockhouses were groups of men who gasped out words of surrender. Here and there they refused to come out till bombs burst outside their steeled doors, and here and there they got machine guns to work and checked the British advance for a time, as at Joist Farm, on the right of the attack, and at a château near Polderhoek, where there had been severe fighting. There was heavy machine-gun fire from a fortified ruined farm to the north of Broodseinde, and again from Kronprinz Farm, on the extreme left. The enemy also put down a heavy machine-gun barrage from positions around Passchendaele, but nothing has stopped the British seriously so far. They swept up and beyond Cravenstavel and Abraham Heights, went through and past the ruins of Zonnebeke Village, and with great heroism gained the high ground about Broodseinde, a dominating position giving observation of all the enemy's side of the country.

It has been a wonderful battle in the fullness of its success, and if the British can keep what they have gained it will be the biggest victory of the war on the British front.

The weather is bad now, and the rain heavier, with a savage wind blowing; but that is not good for the enemy's plans, and may be in favor of the British, now that the day has gone well with them. The English troops share the honor of the day with the Anzacs, and all were splendid.

CHECK GERMANS ON THE AISNE

French Also Scatter Enemy Concentrations on the Verdun Front.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—French troops today repulsed surprise attacks on the Aisne front. Last night similar assaults in Champagne and in Upper Alsace failed, according to the official statement from the War Office. There was violent artillery activity along the right bank of the Meuse in the Verdun region last night, and today the French fire scattered enemy concentrations.

The afternoon report follows:

The enemy attempted without success several surprise attacks during the night, especially in Champagne east of the Butte de Souain and in Upper Alsace, near Machelbach.

There were violent artillery actions on the right bank of the Meuse in the region of Bézonvaux and Hill 344.

The following official communication was issued this evening:

On the front of the Aisne, to the southeast of Chevreux, and to the east of Cerny, we repulsed two surprise attacks.

In Champagne, to the west of Navarin Farm, and in the region of the Monts, there was reciprocal artillery activity.

On the right bank of the Meuse our artillery caught under its fire and scattered in the region of the Bois des Caurières enemy assemblages.

BERLIN, (via London,) Oct. 5.—A strong French attack upon German positions on Hill 344, on the eastern bank of the Meuse (Verdun sector) was repulsed almost everywhere last evening, according to the report from General Headquarters, which follows:

Front of the German Crown Prince: On the Eastern Bank of the Meuse the French during the evening made a fresh, strong attack, the twelfth within three days, on the northern slope of Hill 344, east of Samogneux. All day a vigorous fire had been kept up, which before the attack increased to drumfire. The storming attack of the French forces almost everywhere was repulsed by the experienced fighting of the Württembergers. At some points counterattacks were necessary, and these resulted in numerous prisoners falling into our hands.

ROB HAGUE BREAD CARTS.

Persons Who Had Exhausted Their Supplies Try to Get Food.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 5.—Bread delivery carts were pillaged today by persons whose bread cards had run out.

FIGHT FOR GABRIELE RAGES FIERCELY

Austrians Make Constant Attacks in Effort to Retake Vital Stronghold.

FAIL TO GAIN AN INCH

Italians Have Identified 61 Enemy Battalions Engaged—Prisoners a Motley Crowd.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY, Oct. 4.—Eventually, of course, the Italians will have San Gabriele, just as eventually the Allies will win this war of ours; but at the moment nobody has it, neither the Italians nor the Austrians. It is a strategic thorn thrust into the flank of the Austrian resistance on the Isonzo line.

A whole Tower of Babel which populates Galicia and Transylvania has passed through Italian hands lately since the Austrian Army, wrecked during the last offensive, was reconstituted out of the pentecostal crew which had hitherto held the line of the eastern front. Ruthenians, Transylvanians, Austrian Poles, Hungarians, Czechs, Magyards, all turned up among the daily harvest of prisoners.

"The whole effective Austrian army is fighting on the Italian front," said a Brigadier General, and he went on to cite the testimony of a captured officer that his division near Tarnopol had been holding by itself fifty kilometers of line. On Tuesday evening they started operations against their lost lines on the tragic slopes of Monte San Gabriele. Again attack after attack came across those spaces of calcined earth where for weeks during the last great offensive some 40,000 shells a day burst.

"It is not alone incessant shelling which makes of the bald mountain a volcano in violent eruption. Death has taken this area for its own. Stretcher bearers sheltering under steep slopes below the western spur told me of conditions up above. The ground up there, they said, was carpeted with dead. Weeks of intensive battle had strewed it like a thrashing floor with corpses. Along the length of captured trench there were long stretches where dull gray bodies of Austrians blocked the way.

I have alluded before to the general star shape of San Gabriele Mountain, consisting of a central bulk and three spurs, beside a slope toward that pit among the mountains which is called the Conca di Gargaro. Of these the Italians held effectively and completely only one spur, that on the north toward Monte Santo, called Veniki Crib, though they also had a firm footing on the south spur toward Gorizia, called Monte San Caterina, and on the slope to Conca di Gargaro. I may also recall the fact that the Italians have several times driven the Austrians off the summit itself, but found the summit untenable in view of artillery conditions. Their present line wraps the summit in a dozen loops and curves, and it is against this network that the last Austrian attacks developed.

Their battle patrols came along the still wooded kloof on the Conca di Gargaro side to meet the Italian patrols of the Arditi and various infantry who never failed to stop them dead. I have ascertained definite facts concerning thirteen attacks and there were many others besides, for Gabriele means to the Austrians much the same as Lille would to the Germans.

They first came forward always with bombs and bayonets, followed by parties with flame throwers and men for consolidation of positions which they did not take. Every attack failed. Machine guns and double barreled Fiat machine pistols, which are the most rapid firing firearms in the world, held them up every time. They have not gained a single prisoner or a single inch of ground. The conditions of the fighting were such that we did not get many prisoners either, but the gray-clad dead who cover the ground are more numerous than ever.

Up to date the Italians have identified 61 battalions which have been engaged and beaten on San Gabriele. Besides infantry, the Austrians brought considerable forces of artillery of every calibre from the Russian front.

CATTARO RAIDED BY ITALIAN AIRMEN

Torpedo Boats and Submarines at Austrian Naval Base Are Hit by Bombs.

ROME, Oct. 5, (via London, British Admiralty, per Wireless Press.)—Repeated attacks by the Austrians on Monte San Gabriele have been repulsed by the Italians, according to the official communication issued today. The Austrian naval base at Cattaro has been bombed by an Italian aerial squadron. Hits were observed on torpedo boats and submarines. The statement follows:

From the Giudicaria to the Brenta our patrols have been operating and have captured some prisoners. The artillery tempests have been more frequent and more lively on the Asiago Plateau.

In the region of Monte San Gabriele (Gorizia sector) repeated attacks by the enemy have been promptly and completely repulsed. East of Gorizia we have improved a point in our line and held it in spite of a violent reaction by the enemy.

On the Carso Plateau there have been intermittent artillery actions, and also attempts at an attack by enemy patrols which were immediately repulsed.

Wednesday night an Italian bombarding squadron composed of a large number of machines audaciously flew over the Austrian naval base of Cattaro (Southern Dalmatia.) The surprised enemy replied by a violent fire which was badly regulated.

Our aviators on several occasions and with visibly efficacious results hit torpedo boats and submarines lying in the bay.

ALLIED WARSHIPS HUNT SEA RAIDERS

Four Long Overdue American Vessels Known to Have Been Near the Seeadler's Path.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—With definite information of the presence of two German sea raiders in the South Pacific Ocean, announced in dispatches from Samoa to the Navy Department, a hunt for the commerce destroyers has been set in motion. Both vessels are manned by the crew of the German raider Seeadler.

The number of the raiders' victims beyond the four mentionel in the dispatches from Samoa, given out by the Navy Department yesterday, cannot be ascertained. At least four American-owned vessels are reported overdue on the Pacific coast from South Pacific ports, and their owners have abandoned hope of their safety.

British, Japanese and American warships will scour the South Pacific for the two German raiders.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 4.—Besides the R. C. Slade, the Manila and the A. B. Johnson, reported sunk by the German raider Seeadler, four other American-owned vessels are long overdue at Pacific coast and South Pacific ports. No word has been received from any of them for more than a month and hope that they will ever reach their destinations has been abandoned.

Captains and officers in port yesterday, who had recently come from the Pacific Ocean, via Panama, said that warnings of the presence of the Seeadler in the Indian Ocean or South Pacific had been issued from the naval stations in Australia and Far Eastern ports during the last seven months. The last heard of the German raider was in February when she captured and sank in the Indian Ocean a Japanese steamship bound from Nagasaki to London.

Since that date Japanese and British cruisers and two fast Australian battle cruisers have been scouring the seas for the Seeadler without success.

Navigators said that the Pacific was the largest and loneliest ocean in the world and even on the main track between Honolulu and Yokohama a steamship could make the entire voyage without sighting another ship. Since the beginning of March all merchant ships crossing the Pacific have been running without lights for the whole voyage and have not followed the usual course on account of the Seeadler being at large.

Shipping records show that the American schooner R. C. Slade, sailed from Sydney, N. S. W., April 24 for San Francisco. She was built in Aberdeen, Wash., in 1900, and was of 673 tons, 176.6 feet long, 38.7 beam and 14 deep. She was owned by the Pacific Freighter Company.

'GOLD BRICK PEACE,' NOT FOR AMERICA

Government, sedition wherever it shows itself, and overcome the influences of obstruction and counteract the insidious propaganda for a gold-brick peace. We are all for peace, but we want no peace bought at the price of national dishonor. We want no peace that is offered to us merely to permit our enemy to gather his resources and become strong in order to strike us again."

The Mayor concluded by saying that it seemed predestined that America should "strike the blow that shall preserve liberty for the world, establish the integrity of small nations, win liberty for such as Poland, Palestine, Ireland, and Bohemia, and shall protect the peace and democracy of Russia, and make for the future a safe peace for those who love peace and liberty and desire to live in amity beside their neighbors."

Colonel Roosevelt departed from his prepared speech to say that he hoped one result of the war would be to remove the only bar to the unity of the British Empire. He said he meant by that that after the war all English colonies should have home rule.

Colonel Roosevelt's Speech.

Colonel Roosevelt said in part:

"To those who question what Germany has done, who feel that there is exaggeration or misrepresentation as to the German's actions, I earnestly suggest the reading of a book just issued, called 'Out of Their Own Mouths,' with an introduction by Professor William Roscoe Thayer. Turn to page 159 of the book and read the statement by one of the leading German Generals, 'It is better to let a hundred women and children belonging to the enemy die of hunger than to let a single German soldier suffer.'

"Read that, men and women of America. Contrast it with the attitude taken in the civil war both by the men who wore the blue and the men who wore the gray, and then turn with scorn and indignation from the creatures who cry for a peace which would leave unpunished the nation and the Government and Kultur responsible for such doctrine.

"Turn to the pages following 208. Read the contemptuous references to Americans; and especially to Irish-Americans up to the day when the Germans believed that a political alliance could be formed between the German-Americans who loved Germany more than they loved the United States, and the Irish-Americans who hated England more than they loved the United States. Read the extracts from the pamphlet by Baron Edelsheim, published for the Army and Navy Club of Berlin, in which he maps out a successful war of invasion against the United States; in which he speaks of our helplessness, and states that having taken our seaboard cities, 'they will be penalized by our levying upon them heavy war contributions.'

"Read the statement of a German professor in 1915, long before we went to war with Germany, in which he says 'by the right of victory and on grounds of justice we shall have a claim for indemnity at the cost of the United States.'

"Read the dispatch of Secretary of State Zimmermann in which he proposes to Mexico that she should join with Germany and Japan to dismember the United States. After you have read these extracts you may well wonder how a single public man or the editor of a single paper in the United States can fail to understand that this is America's war and that we have to deal with an opponent long plotting our overthrow. Turn to Pages 123 to 137 and you will see the way in which the great German capitalists and captains of industry advocate the war by Germany with the perfectly frank purpose of capitalistic expansion."

"Here tonight we have listened to as fine and straightforward an address on behalf of Americanism and patriotism as any human being could wishe to hear, delivered by that gallant gentleman, the Mayor of New York, John Purroy Mitchel. Mr. Mitchel's father and mother were born in Ireland, but Mr. Mitchel is American and nothing else; an American of the best type; an American of the type that renders the best service to this country, both in war and in peace, alike from the standpoint of Americanism and from the standpoint of good citizenship. I congratulate our people that we can present to our young men as a type of straight and clean and fearless Americanism and good citizenship a fighting Mayor of a fighting race—John Purroy Mitchel."

"Continually we hear rumors of peace. I think the circulation of such rumors is injurious to America and to the cause of decency and democracy. We should make it clearly understood that the conduct of Germany has been such that we regard as enemies of mankind all people who would strive to bring about a peace based upon treating Germany, Austria, and Turkey on the one hand, and the Allies on the other as standing on a footing of equality. The only peace that will make the world safe for democracy is a peace based upon the complete overthrow of Germany and the dissolution of Austria and Turkey.

"Unless we have used the phrase in a hypocritical and insincere manner this is the way to make the world safe for democracy, and the only way, and this means that the only peace we can accept is the peace of overwhelming victory.

"There is but one permanent method of securing safety for this nation, and that is by training our strength in time of peace, by preparedness, and the only effective preparedness must rest on a system of universal obligatory military training for all our young men—a training which is against war, for it will render it most unlikely that there ever will be war—a training which will also immeasurably increase the self-respect and patriotism and the moral and physical fitness of young men for the tasks of peace."

John Mitchell, head of the new State Food Commission, made a plea for the support of the people of the State for the commission, and pledged the workingmen of the country to the greatest efforts to win the war.

"Now it is the solemn duty of the workingman to do his full share," he said. "And I say to you that every bona fide workingman in the United States will do his full share to carry the war to a successful conclusion."

A Plea for Sacrifice.

Making a plea to the newspapers to tell his message he said:

"I would ask the people of the State of New York to give the Food Commission their confidence, support and co-operation. We must, if the war is to be won, conserve our food supply. We must not only feed ourselves, but our allies.

"We know now that the Central Powers are depending on starving the Allies to win the war. They know they cannot defeat our armies. They hope to defeat the Allies by starving the women and children of the soldiers. Surely we in America can sacrifice luxuries, and even some necessities, that these women and children do not starve."

Captain Kynvett made a vigorous plea against a premature peace. "Peace without victory would be no peace at all," he said. "The only peace must be one that will destroy the German power for all time. We must clip Germany's claws and draw her fangs."

Just before the close of the program, while Colonel Roosevelt was speaking, fifteen members of Lafayette Post, G. A. R., in uniform, entered the Garden and were escorted to the platform. As the veterans took up a position behind the Colonel he paid them a glowing tribute for having stood behind Abraham Lincoln in 1861 and fought the battle which made this a unified nation. He commended their example to the young men of America.

The Mayor's Committee had application for tickets from more than twice the number of persons to fill the Garden. But because of the rain not all of the 16,000 who received tickets were present and the galleries were not filled.

More than 300 civic and patriotic organizations were represented in the celebration of "National Service Night."

MOVE FOR KUEHLMANN IN MICHAELIS'S PLACE

Rumors of Important Development in Peace Situation Agitate Berlin.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 5.—The Catholic organ, Tijd, says it has been informed by its Berlin correspondent of a movement among the partisans of peace by agreement to have Dr. Richard von Kühlmann, the German Foreign Secretary, replace Dr. Georg Michaelis as Imperial German Chancellor.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 5.—Persistent rumors run through Berlin political circles that there is "something happening behind the scenes." What is taking place does not transpire, but at any rate expectations have been roused that the near future holds another surprise in store.

Such expectations are shared in Vienna, and Czernin's speech has done not a little to heighten them.

One version has it that, as the speeches of Michaelis and Kühlmann in the Main Committee of the Reichstag last week were delivered before they were fully acquainted with the terms of Asquith's Leeds speech, as, indeed, Kühlmann admitted, another Government statement is possible. At all events instructed political circles in both capitals are anticipating something important.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The German Vice Chancellor, Dr. Karl Helfferich, is quoted in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen to the effect that Chancellor Michaelis will reply on Saturday to the Socialist interpellation regarding assistance said to have been given by the German authorities in the dissemination of Pan-German propaganda.

UNITED IN ALSACE DEMAND.

French Are "Unshakably Resolved," Barthou Tells Americans.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Louis Barthou, member of the Inner War Council of the present Cabinet and former Premier, said at a luncheon of the American Club yesterday that the French Government and people were absolutely and unshakably resolved to reunite Alsace-Lorraine to France.

"We wish to regain that which belongs to us," he said. "Restitution to its legitimate proprietor of property taken by force and retained by fraud is what we ask. A protest which has continued forty-seven years is more eloquent and more decisive than any plebiscite. It must be restitution, pure and simple. Not a heart in France hesitates upon that, no voice is discordant."

M. Barthou spoke of the admiration of France for President Wilson. He also complimented Ambassador Sharp upon his conduct of the embassy during the war and paid a tribute to the personality of General Pershing.

KERENSKY FORMS COALITION CABINET

DIRECTORY MEMBERS STAY

Premier Inclined to Agree to Provisional Parliament of a Consultative Character.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 4, (Delayed.)—Disregarding a demand of the Democratic Congress that no step be taken toward naming a Cabinet without its sanction, Premier Kerensky has formed a coalition Ministry with Constitutional Democrats in it.

The Premier's action followed right upon the adoption by the Congress last night by a vote of 839 to 106 of a resolution declaring that it was indispensable to constitute a strong revolutionary authority which would follow the program of the Moscow Conference of last August, and carry out an active policy tending to the realization of a general peace, and directing the Main Committee to choose five of its members to draft a scheme for forming such authority.

After a lengthy session of the present Cabinet and the others scheduled to occupy portfolios in the new one, the following unofficial slate was announced:

Premier—A. F. KERENSKY.
Minister of Foreign Affairs—M. I. TERESTCHENKO.
Minister of the Interior—M. NIKITIN.
Minister of Agriculture—M. MASLOFF.
Minister of Labor—M. SKOBELEFF.
Minister of Supplies—M. PROKOPOVITCH.
Minister of Finance—M. BERNATZKY.
Minister of Religion—M. KARTASHEFF.
Minister of Public Welfare—M. KISHKIN.
Minister of Trade and Industry—A. I. KONOVALOFF.
State Controller—M. SMYRNOFF.
Minister of Justice—M. MALYANTOVITCH.
Minister of Education—M. SALASKIN.
President of the Ecumenical Council—M. TRETYAKOFF.
Minister of War—General VERKHOVSKY.
Minister of Marine—Admiral VERDERVSKI.

The Constitutional Democratic Party, against which the Democratic Congress has been in opposition, is represented by Kishkin, Konovaloff and Smyrnoff. The portfolios of Foreign Affairs, War, Marine, and Interior remain unchanged.

This afternoon, the members of the Main Committee of the Congress visited Premier Kerensky and explained last night's action of the Congress, and assured him that they were in favor of the coalition ministry & Cabinet which, in their opinion, should be a coalition body.

A resolution adopted providing for a preliminary parliament secondary the approval of the Premier, who insisted only that it should include all elements of the population. While Kerensky favors the preliminary parliament idea, he believes it should have power only to initiate legislation, but the Cabinet shall have final jurisdiction.

The Government itself has worked out a plan for such a Parliament which would consist of 231 members, including all the elements represented in the Congress and in addition the Constitutional Democrats.

The Premier today talked with the representatives of the Moscow Government, over the telephone, and assured them of the certainty of the inclusion of the Moscow members, M. Kishkin, Konovaloff, Tretiakoff, and Smirnoff, in the Cabinet. The Moscow members are coming to Petrograd on a special train.

The Duma, however, is opposed to the plan of a Parliament, declaring it to be a measure of self-deception that may result in the postponement of a constituent assembly, and because of the incomplete representation in its formation.

The evening newspapers say that the preliminary Parliament which the Democratic Congress has decided to set up will be a provisional body of a consultative, not legislative, character. It will be empowered, however, to consider questions of foreign policy. It will consist of 231 members, of which 110 will represent the Zemstvos and towns. The Government is to supply it periodically with all information concerning the situation in the country.

The dispute between the Ministry of Marine and the Central Committee of the Baltic Fleet has been settled by the intervention of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates of Petrograd. Admiral Verdevvski, Minister of Marine, has sent a circular letter to the crews of the warships asking them to maintain good order on their vessels because the Provisional Government had received information that the Germans, wishing to take advantage of the dispute, were preparing for a sudden foray into the Baltic. The Fleet Committee answered that the dispute had nothing to do with fighting orders, all of which would be obeyed.

The Government has declared a state of war in Turkestan, where revolutionary movement broke out early this week. The situation appeared to be becoming normal, when it suddenly flared up again. As a protest against the sending of a punitive expedition, the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates in Tashkent, the capital, has proclaimed a general strike.

RUSSIAN CONGRESS SADDENS OBSERVER

SOME SOLID ELEMENTS

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Monday, Oct. 1, (Delayed.)—I spent a short time yesterday at the Democratic Conference. The Co-operatives were speaking. The great co-operative organizations of Russia are absolutely democratic. They existed before the revolution. They will exist when the flames of the revolution have died down. They do not merely organize. They do not hold all-night meetings and engage in complex theoretical disputes. They do not denounce and declaim and defy and demonstrate. They do not interfere in other people's business. They hardly ever touch politics. They simply work, and through their work they have laid the basis of a new life in the Russian villages. In Central Russia and Siberia, in the south and in the east the provinces are studded with co-operative societies, and these societies are linked up in powerful unions, which have their centre and bank in Moscow.

In no country has co-operation been so directly and rapidly successful as in Russia. It has created a new type of enlightened and progressive peasant. It is the one solid instance of democratic achievement in Russia. These practical democrats sent their delegates to the conference with many misgivings. They did not believe in the conference. They considered that if any conference were necessary it should be national and should be called by the Government. But in the end they did send their delegates, and yesterday their leaders spoke.

I listened to Birkenheim, the most prominent and capable of the co-operative leaders. He said very sound things. He spoke bitter home truths. He said the revolution was a political and not a social revolution, and that all the fatal errors of the last few months proved this beyond doubt. He said the revolutionary democracy was incapable of governing Russian without the help of the middle class, that whatever was said or done, sooner or later the power would come into the hands of the bourgeoisie, and that it was folly to expect anything else. He insisted that Russia must now face the consequences of all her revolutionary excesses. The workers, he said, must make up their minds to suffer hunger and cold—whereat the Left booed and snorted and jeered. The war must be carried on, he said, side by side with the allied democracies, and at this there was feeble applause from the Right.

Incredible things are happening in Russia just now. The night before an ignorant and self-satisfied sailor had boasted of the fine revolutionary quality of the Baltic fleet. The audience cheered him. Yet there are thousands in Russia who cannot think of the Baltic fleet without bitter pain. The thought of the Petropavlovsk is a nightmare—the Petropavlovsk whose sailors a fortnight ago tied down all their officers on deck and then, because four of them, plucky, high-spirited youths, refused to sign a revolutionary manifesto, proceeded in cold blood to torture and murder them. They thrust bayonets into their cheeks, beat them with the butt ends of rifles, and tortured the boys in the presence of their bound brother officers until they died. Yet the sailor who boasted of the Baltic fleet was cheered at the conference. It is true that some one proposed that the conference should rise out of respect to the memory of these victims of lynch law, and that the conference did so, but where was the real horror, the flaming indignation?

Reckless demagogy is bearing its bitter fruit, and those who sowed the seed are now using hackneyed phrases about "saving Russia." The very Bolsheviks are beginning to talk of the need for national defense. I looked again at the apathetic faces of the audience and felt as though I were looking at the dying embers of the revolution. Those two young soldiers in front of me with their stupid, heavy faces—what notion had they of statesmanship? And that young officer with flabby cheeks and silly, empty eyes who ostentatiously read Lenine's paper while the co-operators were speaking—how was he saving Russia? What are the Germans doing while these men are playing with politics?

I went away with a feeling of intense depression. I suppose the conference will in the end pass some kind of resolution. It will say on the one hand this and on the other hand that, and in view of this and in view of that, and notwithstanding this and notwithstanding that, it is necessary to form a coalition Government with certain provisos and with certain guarantees, and possibly even the Cadets will be admitted to the Government if they promise to be good.

But after all it matters little what resolutions are passed. The fate of Russia is not to be decided here. Other forces are at work—real, stern, inexorable—which are guiding Russia to what destinies who, in this bitter and tragical time, can foresee or foretell?

TWO ARMIES MENACE TURKS AT MOSUL

VILLAGE TAKEN BY ASSAULT

May Attempt to Cut the Bagdad Railroad in Rear of Foe.

On the Caucasian front, in the Kikatsh-Amadia sector, fifty miles north of Mosul, our detachments took by assault the village of Nereman, sixteen miles southwest of Oromaru.

The fact that the Russian column of the Caucasus army operating south from its base at Bitlis has reached a point within fifty miles of Mosul, taken in connection with the recent British victory at Ramadie on the Euphrates, sixty miles northeast of Bagdad, and the known position of the British army above Samara, eighty-five miles south of Mosul, shows the probability that Mosul, the most important inland city now held by a Turkish garrison, will soon be invested by the allied armies.

When General Townshend surrendered Kut-el-Amara in April, 1916, and the Germans supposed that the campaign against Bagdad had been given up they toiled to complete the Bagdad Railway. Last Spring when Sir Stanley Maude reopened the campaign, recapturing Kut on Feb. 24 and occupying Bagdad on March 11, they had already carried the Aleppo end of the railway from Nisibin, a distance of 120 miles to Mosul, where it met the Tigris while from Bagdad they had laid rails up stream 125 miles to Samara, leaving about eighty-five miles unlaid.

On April 18 the British annihilated the Eighteenth Turkish Army Corps at Islabulet, near Samara, and on the 30th the Thirteenth Corps was defeated in the gorge of Shatt-el-Adham, in the Jebel Hamrin hills. These victories had cleared the way to Mosul, when the hot season stopped the campaign.

The Russians had a plan to meet the British at Bagdad by way of the Persian frontier; they captured Khanikin, on the frontier, on April 4, and linked up with the British a few days later on the Diala, an eastern tributary of the Tigris. They even penetrated to within 100 miles of Mosul. But the Russian revolution, the advent of the hot season, and revolts in Persia caused them to retire to the frontier. They gave up Khanikin on July 15, but continued to hold the high ground on the left bank of the Diala.

What forces the Turks have been able to assemble at Mosul via the Bagdad Railway is unknown. But it is quite likely that the Russian Caucasus Army now on the line Nereman-Oromaru, fifty miles to the north, will first attempt to cut the railway from which the distance is less than fifty miles via the highway west, which crosses the Tigris at Djezeret, forty miles above Mosul.

FIGHTING IS HEAVY ON RUMANIAN FRONT

Dense Waves of Teutons Break Under Russian Fire—Bulgars Fail to Hold Gains.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 5.—Heavy fighting occurred yesterday on the Rumanian front, the War Office reports. Near Radautz an attack was checked by the Russian artillery. In the Buzeu region Bulgarians made an advance, but later were driven back. On the Caucasian front the Russians captured a bridge near Oromaru. The announcement reads:

On the northern, western, and southwestern fronts there were fusillades and scouting operations.

On the Rumanian front, in the Seletin region south of Radautz, the enemy attacked in dense waves, but was stopped by our artillery.

In the Buzeu region the enemy shelled our positions near the village of Mackemeni, north of the mouth of the Buzeu River, for half an hour. Bulgarian infantry then attacked our positions and occupied several advanced trenches. Our position was restored by a counterattack.

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—The War Office today issued the following concerning operations on the Russian and Rumanian fronts:

SHOW BERNSTORFF INSPIRED BOLO PLOT

man diplomatic intriguers in this country during the Bernstorff régime.

How the United States Government obtained these messages is not disclosed, but there appears to be further proof that this Government has in its possession a German secret cipher code, with which it has been able to translate any of the Bernstorff messages, as well as those of other German diplomats.

Bernstorff was supposed to have difficulty in communicating with his Government. This is what he tried to make the State Department believe when he arranged several times for the transmission of messages. These and other revelations make it plain that, as a matter of fact, Bernstorff was easily able to communicate with his Government, although there were many things he preferred to submit to Berlin through the mouths of trusted confidential messengers.

The May 31 message of von Jagow to Bernstorff, given out last night by Secretary Lansing, shows that Bolo was known to both Bernstorff and the then Foreign Minister, during the period when Bernstorff, acting under orders from Jagow, was financing Bolo's plot.

"Pavenstedt, the intimate friend of Bernstorff, in his sworn testimony before Attorney General Lewis said that Bernstorff did not know the name of the Frenchman, (meaning Bolo,) to whom he was handing the $1,700,000. He also swore that not until Bernstorff had been dismissed, last Spring, did the Ambassador know who Bolo was. Pavenstedt swore that he enlightened him for the first time just as he was about to leave the United States and in order to make it easy for Bernstorff to remember Bolo's name, said he told him, think of "polo player" with polo spelled with a 'B'."

GREAT GERMAN FUND WAS IN BANKS HERE

Estimated at Fully $100,000,000—Hugo Schmidt Tells of Payment to Bernstorff.

During the period which intervened between the outbreak of the European war and the dismissal of Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, the funds held in this country in the name of the Deutsche Bank of Berlin totaled probably as much as $100,000,000, about half of this huge fund being in easily negotiable securities and the rest in cash. This statement was made yesterday by Perley Morse, public accountant, who directed the investigation of the Bernstorff-Bolo conspiracy to debauch the press of France, deceive the French people as to the real issues at stake in the war, and, this accomplished, to bring about a separate peace between Germany and France on terms favorable to the Kaiser.

When under examination on Thursday Hugo Schmidt, the New York agent of the Deutsche Bank, named banks and trust companies, all of them among the most prominent in New York, in which the great German institution held large accounts between the beginning of the war and the entrance of the United States into the conflict.

He told at the continuation of the inquiry, conducted yesterday by Deputy Attorney General Becker at the Murray Hill Hotel, of mysterious $250,000 which he was ordered to place to the credit of Bernstorff in the Corn Exchange Bank, and named Dr. Heinrich F. Albert, who was the fiscal agent of the German Government in this country, as having been in his opinion the paymaster of the von Igel plots. No money was deposited, as far as he knew, in von Igel's name, he said. Until three weeks ago, Schmidt swore, he did not know the purpose for which the $1,700,000 advanced to Bolo Pacha was to be used.

Bank Connections Here.

The banks mentioned by Schmidt as those with which the Deutsche Bank transacted much of its great business in this country were the Bankers Trust Company, the Guaranty Trust Company, the Chase National Bank, the National Park Bank, the Equitable Trust Company, Speyer & Co., and Shearson, Hammell & Co. The private banks of J. P. Morgan & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. were not included in the list; neither was the Royal Bank of Canada, the institution in which the money intended to bring about a separate peace between Germany and France was deposited.

In the course of his examination on Thursday and again yesterday Schmidt described himself as an "alternate manager" of the Deutsche Bank.

"I got orders from Berlin," Schmidt said, "which I executed, and I also had special powers with some banks here in New York, which authorized me to give orders in the name of the banks. These banks were the Guaranty Trust Company, the Equitable Trust Company, the National Park, the Chase National, and Speyer & Co. I think that is about all. You know, the bank had written a letter to these institutions saying that 'Mr. Schmidt was authorized to give orders in the name of the Deutsche Bank.'"

"You mean to transfer funds of the Deutsche Bank?" Mr. Becker asked.

"It was in a general way to follow my instructions, and that the bank would be responsible for the orders I had given."

Schmidt said that the Deutsche Bank had never had an agent, in the real meaning of that word, in the United States.

"The bank has had, however, an American agent for a number of years, has it not?" was asked.

"Yes. Some gentlemen who acted on behalf of it looked after the interests of the bank here. For instance, such an agent, as you will call it, or representative as he called himself, was Edward D. Adams of 71 Broadway, but he had nothing whatever to do, for instance, with any general business of the bank."

Mr. Adams, Schmidt explained, did only a certain kind of business for the bank, and that business had to do almost entirely with railroad securities. He added that Adams had no power of attorney to dispose of funds.

Schmidt next referred to the payments made to Bolo, by order of Bernstorff, the details of which were published in THE TIMES yesterday.

Pavenstedt Close to Envoy.

"Can you state any reason why Pavenstedt should not have confided in you, as a loyal German, the real nature of these transactions?" Mr. Becker asked.

"Well, I knew Mr. Pavenstedt was very intimate with the Ambassador. That is all I knew. I was not—"

Mr. Pavenstedt was well known to be a close friend of von Bernstorff, was he?"

"Yes, at least he was very often with him."

"And as I understand you the Ambassador directed you personally to place these sums at the disposal of Mr. Pavenstedt?"

"Yes."

"And did he direct you to comply with Mr. Pavenstedt's request as to the manner of payment and so forth?"

"Yes. He said, 'Follow the instructions of Mr. Pavenstedt.'"

"So you were controlled by Mr. Pavenstedt as to the manner of carrying out the transaction?"

"He told me, 'Mr. Schmidt, tomorrow I want $300,000.' Then I paid him and he paid to Amsinck. It might interest you to hear that I made more payments for Count Bernstorff."

"If you wish to be frank about that? Yes?"

"Yes. Certainly, I had only one other payment."

"It is a little outside of the scope of the immediate inquiry."

"Yes. You see I am personally interested. Don't get the impression I am political. I had nothing to do whatever with politics and took very great care to remain outside, and it was not so very easy for me to do it. Besides this payment, I paid once, in 1916, $250,000 to the Corn Exchange Bank for Count Bernstorff or for the German Embassy."

"Do you know how the moneys deposited with the Corn Exchange Bank were disposed of?"

"I have not the slighest idea."

"Did you ever make any payments to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. which were in any way connected with the German Embassy directly or indirectly?"

"No, certainly not."

"Did you ever make any payments to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. by order of your Direktion, which were for a purpose not disclosed to you?"

"Certainly not, nothing. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. were not one of the regular connections of the Deutsche Bank. You compare the account with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. with the others, and it is insignificant. For everything I did with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. I had a good commercial explanation to make."

Mysterious Payment in Paterson.

"Then you say that you had a good commercial explanation for every payment that you ever made from the Deutsche Bank fund at your disposal in this country, except the payments for the account of Count Bernstorff?"

"I think so. I want to be quite frank and open to you. There once were two payments of $5,000 or $6,000 to a man in Paterson. I can't think of his name. And they attracted a little attention of mine, and I found it very strange that the bank should order me to make these payments, but such very insignificant things, and for all other things, I think I can say I have a sufficient explanation."

"Who was the man?"

"Really, I cannot—I think Kramer."

"Your books will show?"

"I have no books, but I have some records I can find if you wish them. I voluntarily make this statement, and I would thank you not to make use of that. I only want to show you."

"About what date was this?"

"Oh, a year and a half or two years ago."

"Did you ever have any account in your own name or that of any one that you represented in the Riggs National Bank of Washington?"

"No, not in these times."

"There is, as I understand it, a payment that was made through a check to a certain person connected with a magazine known as 'Fair Play, which checks is signed 'Schmidt.'"

"It must be another Schmidt. Fair Play, is not that the Hungarian Jew?"

"Yes. Where are your records at present?"

"In my office, 165 Broadway."

"Where do you keep your private bank account now?"

"I have a small account with the Transatlantic Trust Company. I buy very little, you know. I have my old German ideas. I buy mostly in cash. I am not quite, in that respect, an American yet. My securities are with Heidarten & Co. I have about $30,000, or something like that, and with Speyer & Co. I have $5,000."

"Did you ever go to Washington to see Bernstorff? Is Mr. Pavenstedt related to you?"

"No. I am from Berlin, Pavenstedt is from Hamburg. I was sent over to look after the business of my bank, and I did my best not to be drawn into any other circles."

Schmidt, in answer to several questions, repeated that he did not know the identity of the man "Kramer" to whom he paid $5,000 or $6,000 at the order of Bernstorff. One of the anarchists recently convicted in New York for conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the selective draft law was Louis Kramer, a lieutenant of Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman.

Amazed at Bolo's Boldness.

When the deal was consummated by which Bernstorff ordered the transfer of $1,700,000 to Bolo Pacha, and Pavenstedt went to Bolo to inform him that everything had been arranged as planned, Pavenstedt, according to his own testimony, said to Bolo:

"You know, Bolo, that this is a very extraordinary thing. You come over here, you stay a few weeks, and you get away with ten million francs, and there has hardly been any hitch."

Bolo replied, according to Pavenstedt: "Yes, and you will see that this thing will smooth up to the finish."

After the dinner which Bolo gave to a few persons at Sherry's, which dinner, according to Pavenstedt, was given immediately following the closing of the deal with Bernstorff, Bolo made the following remark to Pavenstedt, the quotation being from the stenographic report of Pavenstedt's examination.

"I don't think," said Bolo, "that such a dinner has ever before been given at Sherry's. And you know I had there the famous poet of France. I had the leading newspaper editor of America, and I had the intimate friend of the Ambassador."

"The intimate friend of the Ambassador was me," added Pavenstedt. "The leading newspaper editor of America was Mr. Hearst."

Pavenstedt also made the remarkable statement that Bernstorff never knew until within a few minutes of his departure from the United States, following his dismissal by Secretary Lansing, who the man was to whom he had given $1,700,000 to corrupt the French press and people.

"Just before the Count left, I said to him," testified Pavenstedt, "that this man for whom I had been acting was named Bolo." In order to make it certain that Bernstorff would not forget the name of the traitor to whom he had advanced so huge a sum of money, Pavenstedt said, he remarked during his last conference with Bernstorff, "Think of playing polo with a B."

Trail in Bank Transactions.

Mr. Morse was busy yesterday afternoon completing his report of the examination of the Bolo and Bernstorff financial transaction. When asked to state the amount of money which the Deutsche Bank had in this country when the United States was at peace, he replied:

"We have uncovered a number of very interesting transactions to which the Deutsche Bank was a party. I am now convinced that the Government should institute a most rigid investigation to determine the source and disposal of a large amount of these funds. We have found traces of millions of dollars' worth of securities and a great many millions in cash. If an investigation is ordered and pushed to completion I believe that the United States can reach the very fountain head of the German conspiracies in this country, and that it will be possible to name the men responsible for the numerous outrages which the Germans have committed, such as blowing up munition plants."

Mr. Morse declined to state the value of the securities and the amount of cash he had traced, but admitted that in each instance the item exceeded $50,000,000.

Merton E. Lewis, Attorney General of New York, who directed the investigation of the Bernstorff-Bolo conspiracy, left for Albany yesterday afternoon. He said that the inquiry was about ended, and that the complete report of it was being compiled for the French Government.

Referring to the statement made by William Randolph Hearst in which Mr. Hearst said he would sue the Attorney General for libel, Mr. Lewis remarked that he had never intimated in any way that Mr. Hearst had any knowledge of Bolo's real mission to this country. Mr. Lewis said that two representatives of Mr. Hearst, one of them W. A. De Ford, Mr. Hearst's lawyer, called on him Thursday morning. They had, Mr. Lewis said, prepared a statement of some kind which they wanted him to sign, but which he refused to sign.

"I gave them," said the Attorney General, "a statement of my own, but it did not appear in this morning's American."

It was said last night that an investigation of a certain Italian who is reported to have been on friendly terms with Bolo will probably be one of the developments of the exposure. The name of the Italian was not disclosed.

Recalls Bolo Luncheon.

Stephen H. Voorhees, Vice President of the National City Bank of New York, whose name was mentioned by Pavenstedt, said yesterday that he did not recall meeting Bolo Pacha until a report of the testimony printed in the newspapers was directed to his attention. Mr. Voorhees said he had a faint recollection of having taken luncheon with Pavenstedt and "some Frenchman" at the Down Town Association. He said that Pavenstedt, whom he had known in a business way for nearly twenty years, had called him on the telephone and had invited him to luncheon.

"I hesitated to go," said Mr. Voorhees, "because Pavenstedt told me that I could meet a man who spoke no English, but Pavenstedt promised to act as interpreter, and consequently I went. As far as I can remember, Pavenstedt did most of the talking at the luncheon. Bolo Pacha did not make any kind of impression upon me, and I would not recognize him if I saw him."

Mr. Voorhees had a search made of the books of the bank to find if the institution ever had any dealings with Bolo. The investigation showed that Bolo had never transacted any business there.

At the request of several newspapers, C. V. Van Anda, managing editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES, supplied this statement of his recollection of the dinner at Sherry's:

"Some time in the Spring of 1916 C. F. Bertelli, who, five or six years ago, was the Paris correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES, invited me to dine with him at Sherry's. I went on the appointed evening, and found among the other guests Mr. Hearst, M. Jules Bois, and a Frenchman whose name I did not catch when the introductions were made.

"The dinner was served in the public dining room, and afterward the entire party went to a theatre. It was apparently merely a pleasant entertainment, and if anything of the slightest public interest was said or done during the entire evening it escaped my observation.

"I do not remember Bolo Pacha or Mr. Pavenstedt, and it was not until after the names of some of the other guests at the Bolo dinner were published that I recognized it as the dinner to which I had been invited by Mr. Bertelli."

INNOCENT OF WRONG, SAYS PROF. JULES BOIS

French Lecturer Tells of Acquaintance with Bolo, Who Avowed Great Interest in France.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Professor Jules Bois, the French lecturer, today issued a statement in regard to his relations with Bolo Pacha. He said:

"When I met Bolo Pacha he was a prominent personality in Paris, recognized by all and received everywhere as a most honorable man. It was in Paris in a newspaper office that I met Bolo Pacha. I had just returned from New York. Having learned of my arrival from the United States, where I had gone in order to express the gratitude of France for the generosity of America, he said to me:

"'It would not surprise me if we should meet again one of these days in the United States, if you return there, for I count on going there myself. I have interests there, my wife is an American.'

"He spoke then about my books, saying that he had read several of them, and that he was interested in French literature, French newspapers, &c. The conversation ended there.

"Early in 1916 I was again in New York when one morning at my hotel the phone rang. It was Bolo Pacha. He recalled our conversation in the newspaper office and arranged a meeting with me.

"We met a few days afterward, he seemed very amiable, and this is the substance of his conversation:

"'I have come to New York on business, to buy paper for printing. You know, there is a paper famine in Paris, and the Journal, in which I am very much interested, needs paper, for its circulation is enormous. You know, I like to encourage the press. I am very rich, I have no children, I am not a gambler, I live modestly, and again I put aside a part of my fortune to help sustain the newspapers and to patronize the literary men.

"'Listen. Since you are here to expound French ideas and since undoubtedly you have not too much on hand for this patriotic work, allow me to contribute to this good cause. Let me place to your credit with the Royal Bank of Canada $5,000 to carry on your work. In exchange I ask nothing from you. Still I should be grateful to you if you would kindly give a lecture, the proceeds to go to the fund for the blind of war. One of my friends since his marvelous escape from the Lusitania is deeply interested in the blind of the war. I want very much to please him and assist him, too.'

"I gave the lecture as requested. It was a great success. According to the account in the newspapers, the proceeds amounted to over $10,000, given entirely to this fund. Bolo Pacha thanked me. He confided in me that his great desire was to see Mr. Hearst take up the cause of the Allies. He assured me that already he had been given the promise that the Hearst Syndicate would never attack France, and on all occasions the eulogy of our country would be made. He felt sure of succeeding. Naturally, knowing the influence of Mr. Hearst's newspapers throughout the United States, I encouraged him, and was very pleased with the communication he had just made to me. I thought it my duty to advise the French Government of this, and, accordingly, I sent a letter to the Foreign Office of France, in which I spoke of the conversation I had had with Bolo Pacha.

"A few days afterward Bolo Pacha invited me to a large dinner in Mr. Hearst's honor. I accepted the invitation. This was, if I remember rightly, in the month of March, 1916. At this dinner there were a number of guests. He introduced me to Mr. Hearst, with whom I could not exchange even two words, for at that time I spoke very little English.

"This dinner has the last few days been spoken of as an extraordinary event, whereas it was given at Sherry's in the public dining room. It was very ceremonious, as are all dinners of that kind. I was seated between two ladies. The conversation was general.

"It has been mentioned that at this dinner there were present Boy-Ed and von Papen, the former the Naval, the latter the Military Attaché at the German Embassy. No, they were no more there than William or the Crown Prince. I remember, however, that there were present many society people. My presence at this dinner, after what I have just stated, must appear quite natural.

"Moreover, who at this date could have suspected the accusation that later on would be made against Bolo Pacha, he a man who was received everywhere in Paris, who passed for a loyal good Frenchman, who was the friend and sleeping partner of Senator Charles Humbert on the Journal? M. Charles Humbert was at the head of the well-known patriotic campaign, 'Cannons and Munitions.'

"Paul Bolo also counted among his friends politicians and even members of the Government. On my part I demanded personal references both in Paris and at Marseilles. These references were of the best. Bolo frequented everywhere in the society of the highest and most esteemed personages, and his brother is one of our most distinguished prelates.

"I am deeply distressed at what has happened, but, as is easily judged, I could not foresee what was to happen later. My conscience is untroubled. My interviews, my conferences, the lectures that I have been called upon to give, whether in the universities or in the American colleges, all attest my patriotism and the constant direction of my campaign to the continuation of the war till the decisive victory of France and her Allies.

"I await the definitive judgment which will pass its decree of justice on the case of Bolo. If he is guilty, although I have always acted in good faith, according to the dictates of my conscience as proved by facts, I shall by my work get together in full the $5,000 voluntarily given to me in order to facilitate my patriotic work and employed to this effect and I shall donate this same amount to some French war fund."

FRENCH SEIZE PAPER THAT ACCUSED MALVY

Briand Defends Ex-Minister in Hot Debate in the Chamber of Deputies.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Today's edition of L'Action Francaise has been seized by the Government. Its editor is Leon Daudet, whose charges against Louis J. Malvy, former Minister of the Interior, caused a sensation in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday.

In denying the charges in the Chamber yesterday M. Malvy said he had been slanderously accused of abusing his position as Minister to betray the country. Daudet, he said, had called on André Maginot, then Minister for the Colonies, and accused Malvy, in the presence of Maginot, of going every week to Vaucresson, a suburb of Paris, to meet a German agent. M. Malvy asserted that he never had gone to Vaucresson.

M. Maginot arose and explained that when Daudet visited him he had declared himself absolutely sure of the information he produced.

Declaring that he wished to put an end to the "Almereyda legend," M. Malvy said that he had never been on intimate terms with the editor of the Bonnet Rouge. He explained that as Minister of the Interior he was anxious to preserve order without resorting to violence. For that purpose he obtained the co-operation of the Bonnet Rouge, which seemed to exert some influence in certain circles. A year later, he said, his suspicions were aroused regarding the Bonnet Rouge and he reported the matter to M. Briand, who was then Premier.

M. Briand arose and said that toward the end of 1916 he noticed symptoms of a peace campaign in certain newspapers. He used the censorship in acting against them and gave M. Malvy certain information he had on the new tendencies of the Bonnet Rouge. He said he charged M. Malvy to watch the men connected with the Bonnet Rouge.

"I know he had them watched," said the former Premier. "I must declare that M. Malvy, far from hesitating, gave orders to smite with the greatest severity."

M. Malvy defended his conduct during the strikes in May and June amid noisy confusion, and accused the press of the right of campaigning against him. He concluded:

"My conscience tells me I have done all my duty. I shall continue my task in the ranks of my friends."

Premier Painlevé asked the Chamber to let justice accomplish its duty. He promised the Chamber that M. Daudet would have to prove his charges contained in the letter to President Poincaré. The Chamber then voted confidence in the Government.

PLOTS LIKE BOLO'S IN ITALY.

Action Taken by Government to Suppress Pacifist Agitators.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Oct. 5.—The markedly democratic trend of Italian jurisprudence has rendered it necessary to enact exceptional measures for safeguarding the country against the machinations of unpatriotic anarchy in the present stage of the war. Hence a decree promulgated today punishing with terms of five to ten years' imprisonment, together with fines ranging from $1,000 to $2,000, any acts or incitement to acts that tend to depress the public spirit, weaken the forces of resistance, or otherwise prejudice the internal or international situation of the Italian State.

The normal leniency of the Italian penal code has made it impossible lately to proceed against the ultra clerical campaign for thwarting at any cost another Winter in the trenches, as also against the anti-war Socialist group headed by Signor Lazzari, which was secretly canvassing all the Socialist Mayors and communes throughout the peninsula with the intention of provoking simultaneous corporate resignations as a mark of political protest against continuance of the war.

The national press generally is favorable to the decree. The Idea Nazionale remarks that while untold mischief already has been wrought through lack of such a measure the latter reveals the condition of impotence to which the country has been reduced in the midst of its unparalleled struggle.

JUDGE HYLAN SILENT ON MITCHEL QUERIES

MANAGERS AWAIT EDITOR

Believe His Aid Is the Only Thing That Can Put Life Into Lagging Campaign.

Judge John F. Hylan, joint Tammany-Democratic Fusion candidate for Mayor, did not make a reply yesterday to the questions propounded by Mayor Mitchel at a meeting in Judge Hylan's home borough of Brooklyn on Thursday night. The questions had to do with the relations of Judge Hylan to William R. Hearst.

Mayor Mitchel asked Judge Hylan if he approved of the "sinister and unpatriotic activities" of Mr. Hearst; if he considered Mr. Hearst a patriotic American; if he approved of Mr. Hearst printing the American flag on the front page of his newspapers and "stabbing his country on the editorial page," and whether he thought Mr. Hearst was right in both, when he declared the leaders of Tammany Hall a "brutal lot of private speculators and public plunderers," and said that Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy ought to be put in jail.

Judge Hylan, according to his spokesmen at the headquarters of the Democratic Fusion Committee, will have nothing to say to reporters representing "unfriendly" newspapers from now until Election Day. Judge Hylan was at the headquarters of the committee yesterday afternoon, but would not see newspaper men.

The men who are responsible for the conduct of Judge Hylan's campaign are looking forward to the return of William R. Hearst from California. Mr. Hearst, in the letter declining to be a candidate for the Mayoralty nomination in the Democratic primaries, hinted that he would get into the campaign for Judge Hylan when he got back. It could not be learned yesterday from Judge Hylan whether he would welcome the help of Mr. Hearst or not, but Judge Hylan's campaign managers look on the possibly forthcoming aid of the former Independence League leader as the only thing that can put some life into the lagging Hylan campaign.

An attack on the Gary system was the feature of the only speech delivered by Judge Hylan last night. This was at a meeting held under the auspices of the Teachers' Welfare League at the Brooklyn Training School for Teachers, Park Place and Nostrand Avenue. About two hundred persons, mostly women, attended the meeting. Frederick Z. Lewis, President of the league, presided.

"The tendency of the so-called Gary system," said Judge Hylan, "is to give the children of the poor one kind of education and those of the rich who can afford to send their children to private school another kind of education. Those who are able to pay will not tolerate this system, but will send their children to private schools.

"The Gary system is a perpetual motion system which exhausts the child, saps its vitality, enervates both body and brain, and leaves the little one unfit for either mental or physical activity. The man who has filled the office of City Superintendent of Schools so long and so faithfully, Dr. William H. Maxwell, is against the Gary system, has an international reputation as one of the greatest educators in the world, and he is the avowed opponent of the Gary system. The opinion of such a man should be enough to damn the Gary system beyond redemption."

At this point Judge Hylan referred to the Rockaway Park, Dreamland, Marginal, Railway, and Court House site real estate deals.

"These sites are useless to the city, but have provided enormous profits for individuals, private individuals who are personal friends of some of our high public officials," said Judge Hylan. "Our children suffer most from the result of these real estate scandals. The attempt to make a financial showing to the taxpayers and offset the money wasted in the purchase of useless real estate at the sacrifice of the children of the city is an attempt at economy, bordering on criminality.

"Our public schools are today out of the hands of the people and in control of the Rockefeller interests. The Mayor has surrendered the control of our public schools to the Rockefeller interests and bended his official and social knee to the money power.

"I say to you, Mr. Mayor, to the Rockefeller Foundation, and to any other private interests—hands off our public schools. I say, Mr. Mayor, our boys and girls must have the best possible education and under decent and honest conditions. I say to you, Mr. Mayor, the people of the city will not stand for the extension of the infamous system of education that you are foisting on the public schools. I say to you, Mr. Mayor, our boys and girls shall have an opportunity to become doctors, lawyers, clergymen, musicians, artists, orators, poets, or men of letters, notwithstanding the views of the Rockefeller Education Board.

"I say to you that the special privilege seeking interests shall not stifle the minds of our children by controlling our public schools. Nor shall they be permitted to lessen their opportunities in after life or destroy their ambition."

Judge Hylan received and briefly addressed a large delegation of labor organization men headed by James P. H. Holland, President of the State Federation of Labor, at the headquarters of the Democratic Fusion Committee yesterday afternoon. The meeting between the Judge and the labor men was behind closed doors. After the conference it was said that they had pledged their support to Judge Hylan. The callers were either officers or business agents of labor unions affiliated with the Central Federated Union and the building trades. Judge Hylan was warmly applauded when he told the labor men that he was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

SEEK POLITICAL LEADER FOR PRIMARY FRAUD

Prosecutor's Assistants Say Indicted Inspector Implicated "a Big Man."

Evidence which Assistant District Attorneys Wallace and Olcott, in charge of the election fraud cases, believe will aid in the discovery of the identity of the politician, they assert, gave the word at a certain hour on primary day to "Knife" William M. Bennett and give the Republican indorsement to Mayor Mitchel was obtained yesterday, they say, from four witnesses, whose names, except in one instance, were not divulged.

According to Mr. Olcott, Adolph Calmbacher of 212 East Eighty-first Street, a Democratic Inspector in the Fifteenth Election District of the Sixteenth Assembly District, under indictment together with twenty-two other Inspectors for election frauds, made a statement yesterday implicating several men. Calmbacher said that about 6 o'clock in the evening of primary day an automobile drove up to the polling place where he was stationed, and several men who he said he knew were Republicans alighted and entered the building.

"I heard one of them say, 'The big guy's outside,'" Calmbacher said, according to Mr. Olcott. "Then the Republican district Captain went out to the automobile and talked to the occupant. When he came back he held a consultation with the Republican member of the board."

While this Republican Captain was on his way to the police station with the ballot boxes after the polls had closed, the witness declared to the Assistant District Attorney, he asked how long the ballot boxes were kept and who was in charge of them. Assistant District Attorney Olcott said he regarded this statement as significant in view of the fact that the recent recount showed that many of the ballots in that district had apparently been changed.

All of the twenty-two men indicted for frauds have surrendered with the exception of one man, who is a private at Camp Upton, L. I. The District Attorney has communicated with General Bell in regard to the man's return. Those who appeared yesterday were Harry Goldblatt of 26 East 109th Street and Abraham Silberlust of 63 East 106th Street, both Democrats of the Fifth Election District of the Seventeenth Assembly District; Dr. Marcus Buchholtz of 31 West Eleventh Street, and Samuel Krisberg of 16 West 117th Street, Democrats of the Twenty-ninth Election District of the Seventeenth Assembly District; Adolph Calmbacher of 212 East Eighty-first Street, and Benjamin Harrison, both Democrats of the Fifteenth Election District of the Sixteenth Assembly District, and Emanuel Krutewitch of 1,586 Madison Avenue, Republican of the Fourth Election District of the Seventeenth Assembly District.

The defendants were released in $2,500 bail and will be arraigned in General Sessions for pleading on Monday.

The District Attorney will on Monday present evidence to the Grand Jury of election irregularities in the First, Twelfth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, and Nineteenth Assembly Districts.

URGE UNITY FOR THE WAR.

Suffrage Leaders Demand "Whole-hearted Allegiance" to the Country.

The official board of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President, at a meeting at the headquarters, 171 Madison Avenue, yesterday adopted a resolution urging whole-hearted allegiance to the country, with no pseudo patriotism to insure the success of the war. The resolution assailed as un-American "those discriminations and injustices that set class against class, race against race, sex against sex, and furnish opportunity for insidious alien propaganda that trades upon them to the internal disturbance of our country; maintains that all Americans, men or women, white or black, in the trenches or in the home and the factory, who are giving their lives to uphold the ideals of democracy shall share equally in the privileges and protection of democracy; and deplores all lawlessness based on race or sex or class prejudice."

It also asked for a broad stand for American democracy "that knows no bias on the ground of race, color, creed, or sex."

A letter was received announcing the resignation of a member of the board, Miss Heloise Meyer of Washington, sister of former Secretary of the Navy George von L. Meyer, who goes to France for canteen work with the Y. M. C. A.

MAYOR TAKES FIGHT TO THE EAST SIDE

Replies to Tammany Charge That Rich Control His Administration.

REVIEWS RECENT STRIKES

Tells Foreign Born How the Mayor's Committee Settled the Garment Workers' Conflict.

Speaking last night at two meetings conducted by the Mitchel League of Foreign-born Americans in the east side, Mayor Mitchel gave answer before workers of the charge that his administration had been conducted in the interests of the rich, and in the course of both talks he held up Judge Hylan as the candidate of Murphy and of Hearst, "the friend of Bolo Pasha, who handled the Kaiser's slush fund."

Mayor Mitchel arrived at the meeting at 281 Grand Street in a pouring rain, and the crowd that had been impatiently waiting for his coming arose and cheered for several minutes as he walked down the narrow aisle to the platform.

"I am glad to get down in the east side to correct some of the false impressions that have been disseminated by lying statements of those representing Hearst and Tammany on its ticket," he said. "They have said that I have no concern for the ordinary citizen, but for those guarded by special interest, those who control capital. Why, any one who says I was influenced by anything except the welfare of the city is saying that which is false. No influence, political, financial, or social, has been exercised at the City Hall, and it will not be as long as I am Mayor. I have had, and I still have, only one purpose—to make the city a better place in which to work and live."

As proof that the so-called capitalistic class was not in control of the city administration the Mayor recited the work he had done to bring about a fair and just settlement of the garment and the street car strikes. It was through his efforts, he said, that in the garment strike the protocol was drawn and the Council of Conciliation formed. He had stood, through the garment strike, he said, for equal justice to both the employers and the employes.

"That would show that I was not serving capital, but was asking justice for the men employed," he continued. "During the street car strike, when I was urged under threat to go to the Governor and override the men, to use the police to keep the men off the streets, and to beat them off the cars, you know what I did. I used the police to protect both the companies and the men; to protect the companies against violence and the destruction of property, and the men in their constitutional right of peaceful picketing and persuasion. When the public interests are involved I am ready to stand up against all the interests of capital if need be."

Continuing, he told of what had been done to safeguard life in the establishment of the Fire Prevention Bureau, and through factory inspection.

"As long as I am in office," he added, "I am going to keep at it to wipe out the evils of the sweat shop system."

In telling of the decrease in the death rate during his term of office the Mayor brought it down to terms of babies saved. There were nine babies saved this year over last year, and though Tammany might not be interested in saving babies, he said he knew what it meant to the fathers and mothers whose babies had been saved because of the efforts of the Health Department in seeing that they had good milk, good food, and sanitary surroundings. The Police Department, he said, had been lifted out of politics and the partnership with crime broken.

He had long fought, he added, to have a law by which he could establish a market commission, and be able to buy and sell foods for the benefit of the poor. "Now," he added, emphatically, "I have such a law."

"I propose to use that power to break the monopoly prices of food in this town," he said. "I don't propose to let that group of food monopolists, who have gone to Albany to defeat legislation, stand in the way."

After speaking of remedied conditions in the Childs Hospital on Randall's Island, Mr. Mitchel said that the public should consider the kind of man selected by the other ticket.

"That man was selected by another man, a man who is engaged in preaching the doctrine of autocracy and the Hohenzollerns while he is printing the Star-Spangled Banner on the front page to camouflage the people."

The Mayor mentioned Hearst and Bolo Pasha in both his speeches.

"I propose to meet the issues raised by Mr. Hearst's and Mr. Murphy's candidate for Mayor," he continued. "I am governed by no group or interest except to make the city a better place in which to live. Try the candidate on the other ticket by the men who stand behind him. In 1905 Mr. Hearst said of Mr. Murphy that he would like to put him in jail, and he pictured him as a Colossus of graft standing on the Brooklyn Bridge with one pocket filled with contracts and the other with his puppet Mayor, and he said of his district leaders that they were plunderers seeking to exploit the people for private interests. Today Murphy is his partner for the election of Judge Hylan. Today he is willing to associate with the man he called a plunderer.

"Let us judge him by his friends. The Kaiser's newspapers said in 1914 that Hearstorff had won to his cause the greatest friend the Kaiser had in the United States—Hearst, the intimate friend of Bolo Pasha, the German spy, who administered the Kaiser's slush fund to corrupt the loyalty of French and American newspapers. Hearst and Murphy offer this man to administer the City Government."

ASKS BENNETT TO QUIT RACE

"Old-Time Republican" Urges Him to Think of His Political Future.

David Homer Bates of Willcox & Gibbs, who was telegrapher for President Lincoln in the civil war and one of the oldest Republicans in New York City, sent the following letter yesterday to William M. Bennett, asking him for the good of the party to withdraw from the Mayoralty race and make certain the re-election of Mayor Mitchel:

Oct. 4, 1917.

Hon. William M. Bennett, Candidate for Mayor on the Republican Ticket, New York City, N. Y.,

My Dear Sir: You are an old-time Republican, and so am I, my first vote having been cast for Abraham Lincoln in November, 1864. Since then I have always voted the straight Republican ticket, with one exception—1884—when, because of necessary absence from the city, I paired with a Democrat, who afterward told me, with evident satisfaction to himself, that he had voted for Cleveland. I feel free, therefore, to make this appeal to your loyalty to both party and country.

It is almost unbelievable to a well-informed Republican, and probably to yourself as well, that either you or Mitchel can be elected on Nov. 6 if you both remain in the race. The alternative will be, without doubt, the return of Tammany to political power, with all that that implies, not only to the great City of New York, but to your own further career, and also, without doubt, in the giving of aid and comfort to Germany, with whom we are at bitter war. You may think otherwise as to one or all of these features, but that does not alter the facts.

It is inconceivable to me that you can hope for good results of any kind by remaining in the field. Will you not sink all personal questions in favor of the immensely greater ones involved?

Lincoln once remarked, in effect, that it was not well to swap horses while crossing a stream. You can avoid the evil consequences of a change in the New York City Government by withdrawing from an otherwise hopeless contest. Respectfully submitted, DAVIS HOMER BATES.

DEMOCRACY FROM MANY ANGLES

"The World must be made safe for democracy." When President Wilson uttered those words he sounded America's challenge to government by the few and the divine right of kings. But—what is democracy? Has it changed through the years? Does it mean different things to different people? The following books cover the subject thoroughly:

either special counsel to the Mayor or officeholders or representatives of large financial interests. The fight was led by Mr. Hedges, who stated that he was not a believer in the direct primary. When Mr. Hedges ran in the direct primary for Governor in 1914 he received throughout the whole State only a few more votes than I received this year in the City of New York alone. No wonder he does not believe in the direct primary.

"The man who really dominated the situation, however, and who was in complete control of the leaders was ex-Senator Ogden L. Mills, who advertised some time ago that he had gone to France to serve in the army. Apparently a hurry call from the New York Central interests caused his return. It is essential that the New York Central Railroad Company should have the present administration re-elected. If elected Mayor I shall see that the necessary changes are made in the New York Central tracks on the west side to do away with all danger and to provide against inadequate terminal facilities for the city, and while these changes will be made with justice to the railroad, they will not be accompanied by a gift of the city's Hudson River waterfront, but will be on terms dictated by the city.

"We now have proceeding in this city two investigations of the acts of this administration. One is being conducted by the District Attorney and the other by an extraordinary term of the Supreme Court. Both were ordered by Governor Whitman. We have a situation where the Mayor and the Controller have been called upon to appear before the Grand Jury and explain certain peculiar transactions which they caused the city to enter into with a gang of real-estate speculators. The city has not been compelled to submit to such a humiliating experience since the days of Van Wyck and the Grand Jury investigations into his connection with the Ice Trust."

Mitchel Men Jubilant.

The Mitchel campaign managers were jubilant yesterday over the result of the action of the New York Republican County Committee in refusing to indorse Bennett. Emory R. Buckner, Chairman of the Mitchel Campaign Committee, said:

"The most important thing in the campaign so far is the action of the New York Republicans in refusing a Bennett indorsement. The Republican Committee took the only action it could to correct the primary fluke which was really the result of over confidence. The overwhelming majority against Bennett in the New York Committee after he had won in the primaries shows what the result of the primaries would have been if the Republican Party had realized the situation as they did last night.

In answer to Mr. Bennett's statement, Mr. Buckner said: "The Mitchel administration has been indorsed by the Governor of the State, the Controller of the State, and by the Republicans of three boroughs, and how can Bennett expect these people to be for him when he says that the Mitchel administration has been corrupt? There is this to say about Mr. Bennett. He says that the New York County Committee will not indorse Mitchel at the meeting to be held on Oct. 18. If that be true, we have the Republican Party coming out for Fusion before the primaries and repudiating Bennett after the primaries. Therefore, who will be the Fusion candidate if not Mitchel?"

In commenting on Judge Hylan's opening campaign speech, Mr. Buckner said:

"The issue is not whether Hylan is loyal to the Government, but whether Hearst is loyal. The issue is not whether Hylan is for clean government, but whether Murphy is for clean government. If Hylan is elected he will be the doorman at the City Hall and will usher the visitors into the Mayor's office, where Hearst will be found, or into the Board of Estimate Chamber, where Murphy will be found, according to the wishes of the callers. Hearst wants the Mayor's office for its prestige, publicity, and patronage, because he is not interested in anything else. The business end will go to Murphy, who is not interested in anything else. This accounts for the fact that Hearst and Murphy, who have fought each other for years, have united on a candidate who will make the housing arrangements at the City Hall in the manner I have described."

Mr. Untermyer Repeats Denial.

Chairman Buckner made public an affidavit made by George D. Morris, a reporter employed by The Evening Telegram, who asserted that Samuel Untermyer did give out the interview last April which Mr. Untermyer on Thursday denied had ever taken place. Mr. Untermyer gave out a statement last night in reply to this affidavit in which he said:

"I have just had read to me what purports to be a letter from Louis Miller to me in relation to the Warheit. I have not as yet received any such letter. I have also had read to me an affidavit made by one Morris concerning an alleged interview with him in Albany about 2 o'clock on the morning of April 4, 1917.

"I regret to have to repeat that I made no such statement, and never until Mayor Mitchel referred to the interview on Wednesday had I knowledge that any such thing had been published. The views there attributed to me are contrary to my repeatedly expressed views and speeches. This is the first time in my experience that I have had to repudiate a published interview, and I do so with great regret."

"The organizations in every Assembly and election district are well under way on a Fusion-nonpartisan basis," said Mr. Buckner. "People who have no political affiliation are going to vote the Fusion ticket, as well as many Democrats. We invite all these people to visit the Fusion Committee headquarters in whatever part of the city they may be and make suggestions for the campaign."

Martin W. Littleton, Chairman of the City Democracy, which is fighting Charles F. Murphy's control of Tammany Hall, made this statement last night:

"If Mr. Murphy and Mr. McCooey can muzzle Hylan before election, what can they do to him after election? Has he ever said anything or written anything that shows any knowledge of city affairs? Does any one stand for him or behind him except those who wish the offices which he could give? What public sentiment demanded his nomination? He does not even see the indelicacy and impropriety of remaining a Judge while he runs about in the city as a partisan candidate for Mayor."

Morris Hillquit, Socialist candidate for Mayor, who asked Mr. Mitchel to permit him to make a political speech on the steps of the City Hall, which request was refused, sent this letter to the Mayor yesterday:

"I must confess I am still unable to see a distinction in principle between a public meeting in the City Hall Park in favor of your candidacy and one in support of your political opponents. In my conception the City Hall is not the Mayor's official residence but his place of business for administering the affairs of the city, and it seems to me that the candidacy of the present incumbent for re-election is no more a concern of the city than the candidacy of the nominee of the Socialist Party. The fact remains that you have permitted the use of the City Hall Park for your own campaign purposes and that you have refused similar privileges to one of your rivals in the Mayoralty race. The people of the city will judge whether this is a fair and impartial administration of city property."

It was announced at the Union League Club last night that a meeting would be held there on Oct. 11 to indorse Mayor Mitchel and his associates on the Fusion ticket, "in order that honest non-partisan municipal administration may be continued and that the City of New York may be aligned in unquestionable support of the Federal Government in the prosecution of the war."

At a meeting of the Republican organization of the Twenty-first Assembly District, held last night at the Manhattan Republican Club, 201 West 139th Street, a resolution was unanimously adopted indorsing Mayor Mitchel and the Fusion ticket. Moses M. McKee, leader of the district, presided. The resolution was seconded and speeches made by Deputy Excise Commissioner John C. McNeill and Deputy Attorney General Robert S. Conklin.

DENIES DAIRYMEN MAKE BIG PROFITS

President of League Says Farmers Clear Only Two-tenths of a Cent on Each Quart.

TWO INVESTIGATIONS ON

Witnesses Sent from Mayor's Committee Hearing to the District Attorney.

The officers of the Dairymen's League were yesterday under the fire of District Attorney Swann and Commissioner Leonard M. Wallstein, investigator of the Mayor's Milk Committee, both of whom are trying to discover why the price of milk to the consumers went up to 14 cents a quart on Oct. 1. In pursuit of these official investigations the officials of the Dairymen's League, headed by its President, R. D. Cooper, were shunted between the Department of Health Building in Center Street, where the Mayor's Committee sat, to the Criminal Court Building, where Mr. Swann has his office. At sunset they had come to rest in the library of the District Attorney and Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith was endeavoring to extract more information from them.

The public hearing into the high cost of milk by the Mayor's Committee lasted nearly all day. It was presided over by Dr. Charles E. North. The only witness examined was President Cooper, and once during the course of questioning he flared up and wanted to know whether the hearings were prosecution or persecution. Mr. Cooper furnished some illuminating figures upon the cost to the farmers of producing milk. The league, he said, had not been the cause of the increase in milk prices. He said it acts only as an agent or broker and sells milk to the co-operative creameries. The league, he explained, found a market for the farmers. Its work was increased now that the dealers had shut down about 100 of their creameries, or receiving stations, and the league was, he said, endevoring to find a market for the farmers in the districts affected by the closing down of these plants.

Less Milk Consumed.

There was no doubt that people had cut down their milk, Mr. Cooper said, but in his opinion the main reason for the decrease was the publication of a pamphlet by the Department of Agriculture showing substitutes for staple foods which should be conserved. He thought that the committee should not lose sight of the increased cost of food and labor as a factor in the high price of milk.

"The cost of producing milk in the last year was greater than the prices paid to the farmers," Mr. Cooper said. "I don't believe that for ten years the farmer got for his milk what it actually cost to produce it."

He was then asked to submit data on which he based the cost of production of milk. He first submitted figures which he said were compiled by the Agricultural Department of Cornell University. These were for the cost of 6,000 pounds, the estimated yield of a cow for a year, and were as follows:

| 1 ton of grain | $54.60 |
| 4 tons silage | 32.00 |
| 1 ton hay | 12.00 |
| 185 hours of labor | 46.50 |
| Miscellaneous costs, such as insurance, horse labor, &c. | 37.02 |
| Total | $183.12 |

His testimony was that the price charged by the farmers for this was $186 for the 6,000 pounds, a profit of only 48 cents on 6,000 pounds of milk.

This cost table, however, Mr. Cooper said, was not the one used by the farmers, the one they used being for 100 pounds of milk produced. He gave this as follows:

| Thirty pounds of grain | $0.819 |
| Three hours' labor at 30 cents | .900 |
| Sixty pounds of hay | .900 |
| One hundred and ten lbs. of silage | .440 |
| Ten per cent. miscellaneous | .453 |

On this basis the farmer selling at $2.10 a 100 pounds, the October price, made 12.8 cents, or about two tenths of a cent a quart, there being forty-seven quarts figured to each 100 pounds of milk.

Mr. Cooper said he took the figures of the Cornell Agricultural Department on faith and believed they were correct. He said further that he believed that on average cost for milk production they probably were low, because the statistics from which they were taken were probably obtained from the better and more profitable farms, where the cost of production was less than on the smaller farms.

Only Producers Hold Stock.

The questioning of Mr. Cooper was first directed to finding out about the Dairymen's League. Commissioner Wallstein brought out that only milk producers could hold stock in the league, which was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey. The capital stock, Mr. Cooper said, was 40,000 shares, at a par value of $2.50. These shares are divided into one-tenth shares, at a par value of 25 cents. The owner of one cow can own one of these minimum shares, and no more. If he owns ten cows he can own one share of stock. The stockholders agree to have the league act as their agent and to pay into the league treasury 1 cent for every 100 pounds of milk sold for him. The stock, he said, had been oversubscribed. The league has never paid a dividend, but has money in the bank.

Mr. Cooper said that there was no connection between the league and the Co-operative Milk Producers Marketing Association, though, it was brought out by Commissioner Wallstein that Mr. Cooper was the President of both organizations. When asked to tell what salaries the Dairymen's League paid he said he received $5,200 a year and expenses; the Secretary, $3,000 and expenses, and the Treasurer, $2,000 a year and expenses. He said the members of the Executive Committee received $10 a day while sitting.

To questions as to the difference between the co-operative association and the league and what functions one performed that the other could not perform, Mr. Cooper replied:

"They differ in this respect: The Dairymen's League handles an indefinite amount of milk while the Marketing Association deals with the details of handling the milk."

He admitted that possibly the Dairymen's League could do the marketing, too. At this point, when pressed for the real difference between the league and the Marketing Association, he said:

"It seems to me as if you are trying to tangle me up here between these two organizations. I may be mistaken, but this looks more like a prosecution than an investigation."

Dr. North and Commissioner Wallstein hastened to assure Mr. Cooper that they were only trying to get at the truth, and were going to look into the dealer's part in the cost to the consumer also.

Just before recess was taken Mr. Cooper made this statement:

"The Dairymen's League doesn't receive or ship any milk. It merely fixes prices between producer and dealer."

The hearing will be continued today.

ONE BRITISH AIRMAN FOUGHT TEN GOTHAS

Descended for More Ammunition After Lively Encounter, Then Returned to Attack.

WINGED TWO OF OPPONENTS

Admiralty Account Tells of Sinking of Submarines by Bombs of Seaplanes.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Further details of daring encounters between British aviators and enemy airmen and submarines are contained in the official records of the Admiralty published today.

The report of a Squadron Commander in the Royal Naval Air Service, who has been flying for the last eighteen months on the battle front, tells a thrilling story of attacking ten Gotha machines, single handed, 12,000 feet in the air. He fired one hundred rounds behind one of the enemy fliers at one hundred yards' range.

After the German machine began a slow spin, the squadron commander fired twenty-five more shots to make sure of his purpose. His gun then jammed and he became involved in a fast spin, but recovered in time to see his enemy crash on the ground.

The Britisher landed, repaired his machine gun, and went up after the remaining Gothas. At 14,000 feet he engaged the enemy machines in turn, from above and below, finally devoting his attention to one at which he fired 200 rounds, silencing both its guns and probably hitting the gunners. The British flier, now being out of ammunition, descended.

Another report tells of how two British seaplanes, patrolling above the North Sea, sighted a submarine traveling at about fourteen knots with two men in the conning tower. The seaplanes swooped down to a height of 800 feet, one dropping a bomb which burst on the starboard side of the submarine half way between the conning tower and the stern. The submarine slowly heeled to port, the bow arose and the craft began to sink.

The other seaplane then dropped a bomb which burst in front of the conning tower and as the submarine sank another bomb was dropped. The seaplanes circled the spot for a quarter hour in search of survivors, but none appeared.

On another occasion a seaplane, while on air patrol overheard a hostile wireless signal and soon after sighted a large submarine lying on the surface a mile ahead. Flying at the rate of eighty miles an hour, the seaplane darted over the enemy, who fired a round from his foremost gun. The shell burst fifty feet ahead of the seaplane, but the bomb which the British flier dropped exploded and tore a great hole in the submarine. As the enemy craft sank flames spurted up from the water.

Then three more submarines were sighted, reinforced by three hostile destroyers and two seaplanes. All opened fire on the British seaplane, which turned and flew over the spot where the stricken submarine had disappeared. A second bomb was now dropped, and its explosion brought up a quantity of wreckage.

His supply of bombs being exhausted, the British aviator returned to his base, but first took a photograph of the enemy destroyers and seaplanes.

AMERICAN AIRMEN SEEN IN LONDON

People Express Warm Welcome to the Officers, Mostly College Men.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—At this particular juncture, when the public mind is occupied by aerial raids and proposed reprisals, the people are warmly greeting numbers of American naval officers, dressed in khaki uniforms, who are to be seen on London streets. Many of these men are university students.

Added interest attaches to the aviators owing to the fact that recently there has been much newspaper discussion concerning the American air preparations. Frequently the Americans are halted on the streets with such remarks as "We're glad to see you."

that would be required in the accusation and defense. So to prevent Senator La Follette occupying the day, the adjournment resolution was not adopted. If Mr. La Follette should occupy more than three hours, it may be necessary to postpone adjournment beyond the hour of 3 o'clock. Senator Kellogg, who presented the resolution of expulsion in behalf of the Minnesota Public Safety Committee, will make the accusation against La Follette.

The Senate will resume tomorrow at 10 o'clock, and probably all except a few minutes of the five hours before the time fixed for adjournment will be occupied in what promises to be a historic debate and fight by Senator La Follette to justify his utterances.

In the closing days of the last session Senator La Follette and a few others held the Senate in a filibuster which defeated the war emergency measure.

SLACKER SOUGHT LA FOLLETTE

Draft Dodger Under Arrest Addressed Appeals to Senator.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 5.—Frank A. Feldman of Sebree, Ky., was indicted today for failure to register for the draft. Feldman said he was a conscientious objector. He was arrested in Milwaukee on Aug. 8. Federal officers have possession of papers which Feldman is alleged to have dropped from the jail window in Milwaukee, and from a car window on the way to St. Louis. These papers, it is stated, were an attempt to communicate with Senator La Follette and with officers of the People's Council of Defense. Among the papers was a copy of the Gospel of St. John, on the fly leaf of which was written:

"Whoever finds this, please notify Senator La Follette, that I, Frank Feldman, have been kidnapped by Federal sleuths and am denied communication."

Under Feldman's name were the words, "Member of the I. W. W."

LABOR MEN BACK LA FOLLETTE

California Federation Calls Him a Loyal and True American.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 5.—Without discussion and without a dissenting vote, delegates to the California State Federation of Labor Convention adopted today a resolution indorsing United States Senator La Follette, asking for him the right to express the views "of an intelligent minority," and expressing confidence in his integrity and loyalty "as a true American citizen."

The resolution, offered by Daniel F. Tattanham of the San Francisco Barbers' Union, contained this statement:

"Resolved, That we convey to Senator La Follette our confidence in his integrity and loyalty as a true American citizen, even though he differ with the great majority of labor and our people on some questions of the war."

BRYAN ANSWERS LA FOLLETTE

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 5.—When William J. Bryan's attention was called here today to dispatches to the effect that he would be questioned by the Senate Sub-Committee on Privileges and Elections, which will investigate utterances of Senator La Follette, he made the following statement:

"I read a statement which purported to have been made by Senator La Follette in a speech in Minnesota to the effect that four days before the sinking of the Lusitania I had notified the President that there was ammunition on board the vessel.

"When I passed through Washington last Wednesday I notified the State Deparement and also Senator La Follette that the Senator had been misinformed, and that I had not known until after the sinking of the Lusitania that it carried ammunition in its cargo."

BOND SALESMEN APPEAL.

1,000 Chicagoans Ask Expulsion of La Follette and Gronna.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—The flying squadron of 1,000 Liberty Bond salesmen of Chicago today telegraphed to Congress a resolution commanding the immediate expulsion of Senator La Follette.

The resolution follows:

"The members of the flying squadron of 1,000 salesmen selling Liberty Bonds in Chicago, giving freely and gladly of their services to the country, all appeal to you to expel from your honorable body Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin and Senator Gronna of North Dakota, whose actions and utterances have injured the cause of democracy, embarrassed the Administration, and interfered with the sale of Government bonds."

CALL MORRIS HILLQUIT THE KAISER'S SERVANT

Socialist League Denounces Pro-Germans as Traitors to Their Party.

Bitter attacks by Socialists on Morris Hillquit as a traitor to socialism and a servant of the Kaiser at a meeting of the Socialist League, which favors the war, brought on a series of disturbances at the New Star Casino, 107th Street and Lexington Avenue, last night. Adherents of Hillquit interrupted the meeting for periods of five and ten minutes by booing and hissing, and at one time crowded about the platform and threatened Jacob Cykin, Herman Simpson, and others who had denounced Hillquit. Rabbi Magnes, and others. Mr. Cykin, the first speaker, said:

"We are holding this meeting to express the views of Socialists who believe that democracy, liberty, and socialism are on the side of the Allies, and that autocracy, slavery, and militarism are on the side of Germany. Socialists who are true to the principles of socialism are compelled to hold their own meetings because the political Socialist Party, as it is organized in this country today, has become a little Germany, a crowd of pacifists of the Hillquit type."

At this point about half the audience of 2,000 began to boo and shout against the speaker, who, after order was restored, continued:

"If any of you men here don't like our meeting, you can go out."

"This is not an anti-Hillquit meeting. It is not a political meeting. It is a patriotic meeting. We believe that Hillquit and Berger are the two greatest traitors to the Socialist Party. We intend to show that clearly during this campaign, in spite of shouters for Hillquit who have invaded this meeting.

"Before this country entered the war Hillquit was a pro-German, and since this country has entered it he has made a slight change into apacifist. He and his adherents are taking their arguments in this campaign straight from Potsdam. They are on the side of darkness, slavery and autocracy; they are against liberty and enlightenment. They are seeking to uphold Germany, which is trying to crush the Russian revolution. If the program of the Socialists-pacifists goes through it means a continuation of feudalism and slavery in Europe.

"It is a sad thing that in this crisis, the Socialist Party should be so lacking in great leaders, in men of insight and principle. The Government is now doing what the Socialist Party has forever been urging, taking control of the industrial and economic forces of the Government. We should give it every aid and encouragement.

"As the Government adopts our program, the shallow and unprincipled leaders of the party switch over to the side of autocracy and reaction and endeavor to undo the work which has been achieved. If the party had been managed by men of brains and devotion, socialism would be one of the great moving political forces in the country today; representative Socialists would be on the most important commissions and would play a leading part in directing the war and the organization of the country."

WOMEN TO DO CAMOUFLAGE.

Artists Promote Organization to Offer Aid to Government.

MARSHFIELD, Mass., Oct. 5.—Mrs. Clara Lathrop Strong of Marshfield Hills announced today the preliminary organization of an association of woman artists to offer their services to the Government in camouflage work.

Mrs. Strong said that the plan had the unofficial approval of the War Department. She added that there would be no age limit for applicants for admission to the association, but that they should be physically streng and active and should have had training in landscape, mural, or scene painting, or in sculpture.

Land has been offered as a camp site for experimenting in the work of designing concealment for guns and other war material.

GERMANY TO AID SHIPPING.

Reichstag Passes Bill for a Subsidy to Shipowners.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 5.—A Berlin dispatch says the Reichstag has adopted a bill for restoration of the German merchant fleet.

Beefless Tuesdays on New Haven.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company has put in force the Food Administration's suggestion, and henceforth until the end of the war no beef will be had in its dining cars on Tuesdays. The company is also cooperating with the Food Administration, it announces, in other ways, has its menus prepared in accordance with the Food Administration's ideas, and has printed notices on the cards advising its passengers to economize on food in various ways.

GERMAN SET A TRAP FOR HUGH GIBSON

Sent Secretary Into Belgian Lines on Errand of Mercy with Intention of Having Him Killed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Friends of Hugh Gibson, former Chargé d'Affaires of the American Legation in Brussels and now on duty in the State Department, told tonight of an incident in Mr. Gibson's career in Belgium that was characterized as illustrating German methods. While General von der Goltz was in charge of the German forces in Belgium, he requested Mr. Gibson to go to the Belgian lines to intercede in behalf of a German officer who had been tried before a court-martial for the murder of civilians and sentenced to be shot. Mr. Gibson was accompanied to the German outpost by Major von Herwarth, who was formerly Military Attaché of the German Embassy in Washington.

When the outpost was reached Major von Herwarth got out, and it was suggested to Mr. Gibson that the motor car in which they had traveled, and in which Mr. Gibson was to continue the journey, within the Belgian lines be decorated with a white flag. Mr. Gibson thought this unnecessary, but gave way to the suggestion. The car proceeded and suddenly came upon what was described tonight as a nest of Belgian soldiers, who leveled their rifles at Mr. Gibson and were about to shoot when an officer restrained them.

When the officer came up and ascertained Mr. Gibson's identity and his errand, he told the diplomat that he had a very narrow escape. "In another minute it would have been all over with you," he said in effect. Mr. Gibson was curious to know why a car bearing a flag of truce should be fired on, and the Belgian officer then explained that on that day a car carrying a white flag had entered the Belgian lines and had without warning opened up fire on Belgian troops from a machine gun concealed in it.

According to Mr. Gibson's friends, the incident showed that the Germans were endeavoring to have the Belgians kill Mr. Gibson in order that they might claim that the Belgians did not respect a flag or the person of a neutral diplomat. It is believed also that the Germans were hopeful, that if Mr. Gibson were killed, the incident would arouse feeling against the Belgians in the United States.

Mr. Gibson succeeded in his errand. The German officer's sentence was commuted to imprisonment.

Martin Praises Achievements.

Senator Martin, in a review of the achievements of the session, said, in part:

"The present extraordinary session of Congress has been marked by a greater volume of legislation and the enactment of measures of more momentous import than have ever been considered in any similar period in the parliamentary history of the country.

"Any criticism, therefore, that has been leveled at the Senate and House growing out of the impatience to place the country on a war basis at the earliest possible moment, in my judgment, is unfair, and indicates a lack of appreciation or knowledge of the enormous amount of work which the two houses of Congress have performed.

"Responsibilities of long duration and momentous in character have been knowingly, carefully, and, I honestly believe, intelligently assumed by the membership of this Congress. The searchlight of industry and wisdom has characterized their work on each measure, be it large or small.

"Congress was convened in special session by proclamation of the President April 2 and has been in session, including today, 188 days, which includes Sundays and holidays. Its membership has scarcely taken time to eat or sleep because of the responsibilities which the war has imposed upon them."

Mr. Fitzgerald issued a similar statement of the session's work, in which he itemized the expenditures, both by bills and by the amounts allowed the various departments of the Government.

He stated that the largest previous appropriations for a single session amounted to $1,628,484,395.53, and were for the fiscal year ended June 30 last.

"Nevertheless," Mr. Fitzgerald continued, "complaints have been made by thoughtless people, those who do not give any consideration whatever to the problems involved, to the supposed neglect, or carelessness, or indifference, or delay by Congress in connection with this war. It has been apparent to every one who is at all familiar with the situation that the Congress of the United States, in a patriotic and effective manner, has done as extraordinary an amount of work as it was possible for men to do in the very brief time in which the work was done."

16 WEEKS' TRAINING OF WAR FORCES HERE

War Department Lays Down a Uniform Schedule of Practice for Next Four Months.

NIGHT WORK A BIG FEATURE

Actual Drill of 40 Hours a Week, with Lectures, Will Leave No Idle Time for Men.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5. — Training work mapped out by the War Department for National Guard and national army divisions before they will be regarded as ready for duty abroad is based on a sixteen weeks' course of the most intensive kind of work in the open, varied with lectures by American and allied officers who are experts in modern warfare. To insure uniformity of training throughout the entire army division commanders have been urged to see that the schedules announced today are followed closely.

Great stress is laid upon the necessity for night training. Trench raiding, scouting, trench building, and operations of all kinds which may be called for in actual combat will be duplicated at the camps through the night hours. To give the men some respite their Wednesday and Saturday afternoons will be kept free, except in the case of backward individuals or units. Target practice runs through the entire course, and the schedules call for forty hours' training each week.

A striking feature of the program is the fact that practically the entire sixteen weeks will be devoted to training individuals, platoons, and companies. Brigade, divisional, and even regimental exercises are reserved for a later period with some minor exception during the last weeks. Since the platoon, commanded by a Lieutenant, is the actual fighting unit in trench battles, the new regulations fix upon the Lieutenants of each company the responsibility for training of less than company units, so that they may get in close touch with their men and set up an understanding of each other that will be invaluable when they finally go after the Germans.

Rigid requirement is made that officers be present with their commands at all drills and clocklike regularity in carrying out training schedules is insisted upon. The whole system is to be co-ordinated and prepared in advance, so that each officer and man will know just the work to be done during the day and night before him.

New elements will be injected into the training each week so that every phase of modern trench warfare will be dealt with. The lecture program is calculated to show the soldier, not only just what he is to expect at the front, but also what will be his duties in all circumstances of war. Lectures with graphic illustrations will show all that three years of war have brought of gas attacks, bombing, and of bayonet work. First aid instruction holds a high place, for wounded soldiers today must depend largely upon themselves and their immediate neighbors in a shell-torn trench for first treatment.

The instruction starts with that of individual soldiers, changes gradually until the squad of eight men spend most of their time in joint drill, which merges into platoon operations, and finally into the school of the company. As the men harden to their work, the hours of vigorous physical exercises increase and the marching manoeuvres are extended. At regular intervals review courses will be given, and a program of test courses to determine the proficiency of each man in each phase of his work has been devised, which will give a perfect line upon every soldier's ability and be the stepping stone to promotion.

ASK EXTRA CHARGE FOR CARS

Roads Assert Extra Tariff on Those Reconsigned Would Help Relieve Shortage.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Railroads appealed to the Interstate Commerce Commission today to authorize charges ranging from $2 to $5 a day on cars diverted or reconsigned by shippers as a means of keeping freight cars in active service to meet the acute shortage.

Without a heavy charge, the railroad attorneys told the commission, shippers hold loaded cars and change destinations and consignments at will, thus contributing to the congestion of the lines.

One of the greatest factors in last Winter's coal shortage, the commission was told, was the practice of shippers in using coal cars for storage.

LOCAL BOARDS URGE CHANGES IN DRAFT

Members Here Would Not Summon Registrants Until They Are Actually Needed.

ADVOCATE UNIFORM RULES

District Board Votes to Send Several Cases to the Federal Prosecutor for Investigation.

The members of the 189 draft boards in New York City submitted to President Wilson, Governor Whitman, Provost Marshal General Crowder, and Adjt. Gen. Sherrill yesterday suggestions for the improvement of the administration of the selective draft law. The report is signed by a committee representing the 567 board members, including George Gordon Battle, Julius Henry Cohen, Lawson Purdy, Isidor Wasservogel, Irving Putnam, Henry A. Wise, Frederic R. Coudert, John D. Lindsay, Frank H. Field, Robert Grier Monroe, Henry W. Jessup, Joseph M. Proskauer, and Nathan Ottinger.

"It is our unanimous judgment," the New York boards say, "that on the whole the rules and regulations were admirably adapted to serve their purpose, and our aim in suggesting amendments and improvements is in order that their fundamentally sound purpose may be more effectively carried out."

The boards recommend that, hereafter, registrants be examined and their cases passed upon as rapidly as the Government may need them for actual service, and then find room for them in cantonments, but not in advance of those conditions. It is the opinion of the boards that the immediate examination of all remaining registered men will "in numerous cases cause accepted men to lose their employment and prevent them from procuring new employment long before they are called to arms," and will prevent eligible men from enlisting in the regular army despite the fact that it may be months before they are called for service in the national army. It is also recommended that married men, subject to draft should not be called to service until all unmarried men who are available have been drafted.

"In our opinion," the boards say, "the drafting of married men while single men without dependents are not drafted necessarily results in much intense public dissatisfaction and resentment which, as the number of such cases increases, must more and more and seriously impair public confidence in the whole principle of conscription, and to that extent the successful conduct of the war; causes the indefinite separation of husbands and wives, which inevitably tends to produce serious moral and social dangers; imposes unnecessary public burdens in increased casualty and death payments, &c. Of course, our recommendation is not intended to apply to registrants whose marriages were contracted with a view to evade conscription.

"We recommend that, subject to review by the District Board, power be conferred upon the local Board to grant a discharge to registrants who, in good faith, support dependents, whether or not the dependents be within the classes specially enumerated in the rules and regulations. Many worthy cases of this character have come to our attention. In one case a widowed and infirm aunt and in another a helpless, widowed sister-in-law and a child were cared for by a registrant. In our opinion no sound rule of public policy requires that an individual be conscripted and his dependents left upon the hands of the community."

The boards also recommend that power be granted to local boards to issue subpoenas or other process to compel the attendance of applicants and witnesses and that authority be vested in the courts, both State and Federal, to punish summarily, as a contempt, any disobedience of these processes. It is also recommended that before the next draft the forms of affidavits now in use be amended in certain important particulars.

Other recommendations include a revision of the regulations regarding physical examination, the harmonizing of the rules, so as to make them the same the country over, and finally issuing by the Government of appropriate insignia of honor for the various physicians and volunteer workers who have made possible the success of the draft law.

The District Board at its regular session yesterday afternoon voted to place in the hands of the United States District Attorney for investigation the cases of several men who have appealed for exemption. One is the case of Fredrick Fischer of 1,264 Lexington Avenue, who appealed as the sole support of his wife, according to the papers in the case. When Fischer married in January last, his wife conducted a school known as the "Schweitzer School," at the Lexington Avenue address. On the day Fischer was called for examination by his board, it is alleged that the sign was taken down, and a new one reading "Fischer School" substituted.

Louis Marshall, in discussing this case, said that advertisements had been changed to read "Fischer School," and that because of affidavits which indicated that the school was Fischer's, and not his wife's, he was exempted by his local board.

Another case was that of Henry C. Frank of 47 Norfolk Street, who appealed as the support of his father. It was alleged that a business which Frank's father was supposed to have transferred to his son had never been transferred.

Another case ordered investigated is that of William Hicks, a negro, living at 51½ Farrington Street, Flushing. He made an affidavit that he was the sole support of a wife and children. The board reports that he had been separated from his family for a year, that his wife and children were in Virginia, and that the affidavit had been signed by another woman who represented herself as Hicks's wife.

The following letter from Simon Silberstein, a drafted man, who has gone to Mexico, was made public yesterday:

The 17th day of this month I received a letter from the War Department in which I was told to appear for examination two days later. As I am not such a patriot as to be willing to die for France, and as I could not wait any longer, I decided to go to Mexico, and left New York on the 18th. I hope my letter will meet you in good condition, and I remain, respectfully yours,

SIMON SILBERSTEIN.

Isadore Cohen, 188 Middleton Street, Brooklyn, appealed for exemption to the District Board yesterday on the ground that he was a descendant of the tribe of high priests who "are forbidden to stand in the presence of death or to see blood," and he added that for that reason he was a conscientious objector.

"The Maccabees who were famous warriors were of the Cohanin," said Louis Marshall.

Cohen's appeal was denied, and he was ordered to join the national army.

make its record from the card later the same day. In this way a line at the receiving teller's window can be handled very quickly.

Work Greatly Simplified.

"In the former campaign we had so many subscribers that it seriously overtaxed the facilities of the bank, but I am hopeful that with the new system the work will be largely reduced. I have no hesitation in recommending the system unqualifiedly to any institution which expects a large number of small subscribers."

With the consent of the War Department a Liberty Loan campaign has been started among the troops of the regular army stationed in the Eastern District. The men who were approached yesterday showed a readiness to subscribe, and it is expected that a great many subscriptions will be collected. Company commanders will look after the bonds, if the men desire them to do so, especially in cases where men lack facilities for the safe keeping of securities.

Charles E. Mitchell, President of the National City Company, pointed out how the slight saving of half a slice of bread each day would result in a yearly saving of about $292,000,000. "There are approximately 105,000,000 persons under the flag of the United States," he said. "They eat about 315,000,000 meals a day. Now suppose bread were purchased at an average price of 8 cents a loaf, and that each loaf had fifteen slices. Then, suppose that every man, woman and child saved half a slice of bread at each meal. The resultant saving would be in the neighborhood of $300,000 a day, or $292,000,000 for the year. In the last campaign the women of New York State raised $6,000,000 for the loan. Thus, if they inaugurate a crusade in economy in regard to bread, they will start a movement which will save nearly a third of a billion dollars again."

Woman's Advisory Committee

Mrs. John T. Pratt, Chairman of the Women's Liberty Loan Committee of the Second Federal Reserve District, has appointed an Advisory Committee, which includes Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. William Grant Brown, Mrs. James F. Curtis, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, Miss Virginia Gildersleeve, Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, Mrs. Burall Hoffman, Miss Anna C. ## J. O. ARMOUR TAKES $2,000,000.

Chicago to End Week with $20,000,000 Subscriptions—Results Elsewhere.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—J. Ogden Armour announced today a subscription of $2,000,000 to the new Liberty Loan bond issue in behalf of Armour & Co. The subscription will be divided among the various Federal Bank districts in which Armour & Co. have interests.

The first week of the campaign will end tomorrow night with more than $20,000,000 bonds sold, according to estimates made tonight. The 1,000 trained bond salesmen who have contributed their services report that with the exception of about half a dozen million-dollar transactions the great proportion of sales have been to small subscribers.

Chicago's allotment on a $5,000,000,000 basis is $180,850,000, and the city has three more weeks to raise the difference between that figure and $20,000,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 5.—Approximately $10,000,000 was subscribed here today to the Second Liberty Loan. The largest single subscription was $2,000,000 by the Fidelity Trust Company, while the Philadelphia Trust Company, the First National Bank, and the Central National Bank each took $1,000,000 worth of the bonds. Other large subscriptions included $500,000 each by the insurance company of North America and the Mutual Assurance Company.

Other large subscribers announced today were the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities, Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, and the Girard Trust Company, $2,000,000 each; Commercial Trust Company and the Third National Bank, $1,000,000 each; Manayunk National Bank, $250,000; Germantown Trust Company, $200,000, and the Glass Bottle Blowers' Association, $40,000.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Rochester's Liberty Loan Committee announced today that subscriptions toward this city's allotment of $30,745,000 already totaled $5,000,000. The "drive" began yesterday.

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—New England cities, which stood out as leaders in the amount of subscriptions for the first four days sales of Liberty Loan bonds, according to returns received by the committee here, reported the following totals:

Lowell, $240,000; New Bedford, $168,000; Springfield, $150,000; Worcester, $130,000; Portland, Me., $405,000; Manchester, N. H., $103,000; Burlington, Vt., $228,000; Proctor, Vt., $103,000; Pawtucket, R. I., $378,000; Providence, $640,000; Hartford, Conn., $1,208,000; New Britain, Conn., $369,000; New Haven, Conn., $626,000; Waterbury, Conn., $323,000.

MANILA, Oct. 5.—The second Liberty Loan campaign is in full swing here, and committees in all the towns of the Archipelago are seeking subscriptions from the public. The Insular Government has named a committee to take charge of the work of obtaining subscriptions from Government employes. The Provincial Governments have been authorized to invest in the bonds. The Postal Savings Bank had taken $50,000 and the Government Bank $250,000. The school teachers have organized to obtain a quota of the bonds.

FAVORS SHORT-TERM PAPER.

Gov. Strong Urges Limitation of Maturity to Four Months.

Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committe of this district, sent out a letter yesterday to all banks and trust companies directing their attention to the fact that the limitation of the maturity of current commercial paper to a period not exceeding four months would go far toward strengthening money market conditions. The following statement was issued by the Money Committee, of which he is also Chairman:

"A recent letter from Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board to the Governors of the Federal Reserve Banks states that the board looks with approval upon the suggestion that commercial paper be made to run for not longer than four months instead of six months, as is frequently the case at the present time.

"This committee, in analyzing the present financial situation, considers it of utmost importance to emphasize this suggestion in every possible way. It should be made certain that the amount of commercial paper eligible for rediscount is the maximum that can be provided.

"This committee believes that the financial machinery of the United States is sufficiently sound and elastic to meet the strain incident to the forthcoming war loan and subsequent loans. It feels, however, that the handling of such vast sums as are required by the present situation calls for the most careful preparation and forethought. Any method which will obviously strengthen the money situation should be adopted. If current commercial paper is made to run for not more than four months instead of six months, as is the present general practice, the credit situation will be greatly improved."

$5,000,000 BONDS TO WOMAN

Member of Colonial Dames Here Makes Large Subscription.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Two subscriptions of significant and encouraging magnitude and importance were announced today at the Treasury Department in behalf of the Advisory Council of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee. A member of the New York Society of Colonial Dames, it was stated, had subscribed for $5,000,000 of Liberty Bonds. News of this subscription came to the Liberty Bond Division in the Treasury from Mrs. Hamilton Fairfax, Regent of the New York Society of Colonial Dames.

The subscription of $200,000, the first made by an organization of women to the Second Liberty Loan of 1917, was announced today by Miss Bina M. West, Supreme Commander of the Woman's Benefit Association of the Macabees. Miss West is a member of the Advisory Council of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee. This Advisory Council, which is composed of the Presidents of organizations with nation-wide membership of women, is one of the most important factors in the woman's campaign for the Second Liberty Loan. Miss West made the announcement in a telegram to Mrs. W. G. McAdoo, Chairman of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee. In addition to the subscription by the Supreme Council of the organization, the Woman's Benefit Association of the Macabees, whose headquarters are in Port Huron, Mich., is actively working to secure individual subscriptions to the loan from all the members of the association.

Secretary McAdoo, en route to the Pacific coast on a Liberty Loan speaking tour, tonight telegraphed Vice President Marshall and Speaker Clark urging them to invite all members of the Senate and House to devote the next three weeks after adjournment of Congress to speaking to their constituents on the subject of the new loan.

DRAFT BOARDS' POWERS.

Authority of State Governors to Request Rehearings Limited.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Misunderstanding as to the powers of Governors of the States to review the action of local or district draft boards, caused Provost Marshal General Crowder to telegraph all Governors today a supplementary explanation of their duties in that regard. The Governors and Adjutant Generals of the States have been swamped with appeals for rehearings upon which they had no authority to act.

"Only where through error in law or through the non-culpable ignorance of the registrant a man has been held for service who should have been discharged or exempted," the message said, "is authority to request rehearings by the board granted to the Governors."

The message makes it plain that the boards are the only Judges of facts brought out in the hearing of any case, and if their decision is rendered in a legal way, no power even to request a rehearing has been granted to any one to that injunction, however, the message couples warning that request made by the Governor in accordance with the regulations should receive full respect and attention from the boards.

General Crowder says there is no justification for the attempt that has been made by many registrants "to inject into the established system at this time the Governor or his Adjutant General as a new board of review."

HEFLIN REPUDIATES SOME ALLEGATIONS

Denies He Said Pacifist Congressmen Were Lucky in a Gambling Room.

REPORT ON INQUIRY TODAY

Britten Introduces a Resolution in Which Accuser's Vote on War Measures Is Given.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Investigation into charges by Representative Heflin of Alabama that thirteen or fourteen members of Congress had acted suspiciously in connection with the $50,000 von Bernstorff fund to influence Congress closed this evening after two sessions.

The report, which will go to Congress tomorrow, will reiterate that Mr. Heflin has admitted he has no information to substantiate his charges, and that he repudiates part of them as a misquotation of what he said. Members of the select committee would not indicate whether disciplining or censuring the Alabamian would be recommended.

At an afternoon session Mr. Heflin said that his suspicions against certain members were based solely on resolutions which they had introduced, bills they had proposed, or speeches they had made. He declared he never had meant to give the impression that certain members had been the recipients of money.

The testimony was more in the nature of a speech than answers to questions. As a climax Mr. Heflin's voice could be heard in the corridors outside the committee room booming that he proposed to stand unyieldingly "with his guns and behind the Stars and Stripes." He offered to make a two-hour speech telling why he regarded the conduct of certain colleagues as suspicious. But the committee indicated they believed a criticism by him of other members' public conduct was unnecessary.

Whether Mr. Heflin ever made a statement that he had heard of a gambling room in Washington where peace-at-any-price members of Congress found themselves extraordinarily fortunate at cards was disputed. He was certain he had never used the words "members of Congress." Two newspaper correspondents testified that he had used these words and that they had taken notes of them.

Representative Britten of Illinois, who was named by Mr. Heflin as one member whose official conduct might require investigating, introduced a resolution today in the preamble of which he gave the alleged record of Mr. Heflin on preparedness measures for the last several years.

"In 1912," said Mr. Britten's resolution, "the General Naval Board recommended four battleships, and Mr. Heflin voted against building even one. In 1913 the General Board recommended six first-line fighting ships, and Mr. Heflin voted against building even two. In 1914 the General Board recommended four battleships, and Mr. Heflin voted to reduce the number to one. In 1915 the General Board recommended four battleships, and Mr. Heflin voted to reduce the number to one. In 1916 Mr. Heflin voted against a motion to recommit the Navy act of 1915, which provided many increases highly desired by the navy, including the speeding up of battleships, cruisers, submarines, &c.

"Mr. Heflin also has been a consistent voter against increases in the army, as shown by his vote, Jan. 11, 1910, against the passage by the Army Appropriation bill. On Feb. 23, 1911, Mr. Heflin voted against suspending the rules to pass a bill to increase the efficiency of the organized militia, and a week later voted against the passage of the Militia bill.

"On Jan. 22, 1916, Mr. Heflin voted against an amendment to increase the appropriation for airships, and on Feb. 23, 1915, he voted against an increase in seacoast cannon.

"On March 22, 1916, Mr. Heflin voted against increasing the military establishment to 220,000 men, and on May 8 1916, voted against the Senate bill providing for an army of 250,000 men."

EXPECT ACTION SOON IN BRONX GAS CASES

City Seeks to Compel Utility Corporations to Apply for Street Franchises.

AWAIT COURT OF APPEALS

Status of Many Public Service Concerns Throughout State Depends Upon Decision.

Argument has just been finished before Justice Delehanty of the Supreme Court, in a suit begun by the city to compel three gas companies in the Bronx to petition the Board of Estimate for franchises permitting them to use the public streets. Similar suits have been brought in other parts of the State by municipalities seeking to force public service corporations to recognize the right of public officials to control the public thoroughfares, but no Court of Appeals decision has been rendered. The finding in the city's suit has been reserved, and it was suggested that perhaps it would be withheld until the highest court decides an action instituted by the town of Fredonia to compel the Fredonia Gas Company to apply for the privilege of maintaining its pipes in public thoroughfares.

The suit here is considered of unusual importance because the result will affect the standing of many public service corporations which want to continue their business without official control. The question of the franchise tax does not enter into the matter beyond the claim of the companies that the acceptance of the tax by the State is equivalent to the recognition of the right of the companies to continue business without permission of local authorities.

The three companies involved in the suit here are subsidiaries of the Consolidated Gas Company. They are the Westchester Lighting Company, the Northern Union Gas Company, and the Central Union Gas Company. They serve all of the territory in the Bronx west of the Bronx River, which contains a population of about 400,000, all dependent upon the three concerns for gas to serve the many modern purposes for which it is used. Many large factories, business houses, and stores are scattered among the numerous homes.

In other attempts to force public utility corporations to yield to local or State control threats have been made that unless the efforts ceased the service would be suspended. In order to allay anxiety on the part of the patrons of the companies the court has been asked to enjoin them from suspending operations for at least a year. The purpose of this was to enable rival concerns to enter the field in the event of the companies still refusing, in case the decision was against them.

The city also asks the court to find that the companies have no grant or franchise for any business whatever, that their use of the streets is illegal, a trespass, and a nuisance, that a receiver be appointed for the property and business who, after a year's further dereliction on the part of the companies, shall have the power to dispose of the property. An accounting is also asked in order to determine whether the city has suffered any loss from the alleged contumacy of the companies, and if so to fix the damage so that the amount may be collected.

The two Union companies were organized in 1899, when a franchise was granted to run for twenty years, and the Westchester Company was organized in 1862. The companies assert that the franchises obtained by them at the time were perpetual, and the city in reply avers that they have had no franchise for at least thirty-five years.

Attention was first called to the matter on Sept. 2, 1913, when the Corporation Counsel submitted an opinion to the Board of Estimate to the effect that the companies were operating without valid franchises permitting them to conduct operations in the streets. The board made an order requiring the companies to file verified petitions for the consent of the board by Nov. 28, 1913, but they refused and have remained steadfast in their refusal ever since.

The complaint in the action was filed in 1915, the delay having been for the purpose of giving the companies time to repent. Then there was some passages between the lawyers representing the two sides and this was also without avail, and so the suit was pressed. Samuel J. Rosensohn represented Corporation Counsel Hardy in the proceedings, and James A. Garver of Sherman & Sterling appeared for the Consolidated Gas Company.

Whatever court decisions have been rendered in similar cases have been in favor of the public, but all of them have been appealed and are pending in the higher courts. One of the suits was that of the city against the Holmes Protective Company. The company lost the suit and it is now in the Appellate Division.

Asks Aid for Widow.

The Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 68 Schermerhorn Street, has appealed for a fund of $75 to aid in the support of a widow and two daughters until the elder girl is able to find work. # MAYOR SMITH HELD ON CONTEMPT CHARGE

Philadelphian Refuses to Produce Police Records Bearing on Primary Day Riots.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—In addition to the charges of conspiracy to commit murder, aggravated assault and battery, and violations of election laws in connection with the political feud in the Fifth Ward, in which a policeman was killed, Mayor Thomas B. Smith now faces a charge of contempt of court for refusing to produce original reports the detectives made to him of conditions in the ward.

The Mayor was bound over in his own recognizance pending the ending of the present hearing of his case. If at that time he still refuses to obey the court's order, the contempt charge will be turned over to the District Attorney for submission to the Grand Jury.

Addressing Judge Charles L. Brown of the Municipal Court, James Gay Gordon, counsel for Mayor Smith's prosecutors, said the Judge, sitting as a Justice of the Peace, and no power to commit the recalcitrant witness to prison summarily. "If you had," he said, "I would ask your Honor to do so."

"And I would do so," Judge Brown replied.

The Mayor refused to produce the reports on advice of counsel on the ground that he could not be compelled to give evidence to the prosecution in a case where he was the defendant. Counsel for the Mayor denied that the reports were refused because they might incriminate the Mayor. At the request of District Attorney Rotan, Mayor Smith some days ago turned over to him copies of the reports, but so far has refused to produce the originals.

The detectives sent to the Fifth Ward before the primary of Sept. 25 to make investigations testified yesterday they found conditions bad.

The six New York men under arrest and termed by the police as gunmen were brought into the court room handcuffed. One of them, "Butch" Mascia, was identified by a witness as one of the gangsters who broke into a political club and beat him with a blackjack. Mascia is charged with the actual killing of Policeman George A. Eppley on Primary Day in trying to escape after blackjacking James A. Carey, the Fifth Ward leader.

fleeting views, of course, were presented in both houses of Congress, from the attitude of the radical who wanted to conscript wealth, to the stand taken by those who wanted to pay for the war chiefly out of loans. Compromise is mainly the basis for the final outcome of such legislation, and in this instance there were many concessions by the Senate conferees, such as the tax on munitions and the so-called occupational tax. Agreement on these sections was opposed by me and others. It must be remembered, however, that a great many bad provisions in the bill as it came over from the House were finally eliminated after patient and prolonged discussions, and that many food features were inserted.

"In criticising the objectionable, the meritorious phases must not be overlooked. I fully realize how unpopular many features will be and that it will bear unequally and inequitably in many directions. The Government had to have the money and it was agreed that it would be unfortunate if the present bill failed, which seemed probable, unless the Senate gave way to the radical members of the House.

"Other revenue legislation will be coming along next Winter and the law can be amended or modified. Personally I would be willing to have the 8 per cent. section eliminated from the bill. I opposed it from the beginning."

Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, a Republican member of the Finance Committee, said:

"That provision of the bill cannot be defended. It is unjust to professional men. It is double taxation, and I cannot understand how the conferees ever agreed to such a proposition. Nothing can be done at this session of Congress but I believe that the first thing to be done in the next session is to strike the double tax on professional men from the bill."

Representative Hull of Tennessee, member of the Ways and Means Committee, a tax expert and author of the present income tax law, has protested to Chairman Kitchin that the exemption of members of Congress is a bit of legislative folly that the country will not stand. He said today that unless Mr. Kitchin moved to correct the so-called "joker" he would do so himself.

OFFICIALS AT WORK HERE.

Collector Edwards's Force Begins Inventory of Liquor Supply on Hand

United States revenue officers in this city began yesterday to supervise the first inventory ever taken of the supply of liquors in the hotels, clubs, and restaurants of the city, under the new law requiring that the amount of goods on hand be determined to form a basis for the subsequent imposition of a tax. In many of these places a raise in the price of drinks was announced at about the time the revenue officers arrived, the amount in many places being just double that of normal times.

Many of the sellers found the job of taking stock more or less puzzling, and during the day the office of Collector Edwards was asked for information. The inquiries led Collector Edwards to issue this statement last night:

"Every container on their premises is required to bear the prescribed label, the label to show the serial number, beginning with number one and running as far as necessary, to cover the number of individual barrels, bottles, or cases, and also to show the taxable quantity of goods within the containers. The firms will be required to make a statement in detail fully describing all the inventoried articles on their premises. They will be required also to file two forms, one an inventory form, and one a return form.

"These latter two are in recapitulation form on which the amount of additional tax that these firms will be required to pay is recorded. I have these forms in the course of preparation in the printer's hands, which I was unable to have forwarded to the dealers prior to the enactment of the law. These schedules are to be made in triplicate, two copies of which are to be filed in my office and one copy to be retained on the premises for verification by an inspecting officer of the Government."

Collector Edwards said that one inquiry made most frequently yesterday was as to the affixing of labels on loose bottles. He said that the amount of work entailed by the new revenue law on the dealer and on the Collector's office, "is beyond calculation by any one, except those actually brought in contact with the work."

Collector Edwards pointed out that a number of firms engaged in more than one line of business will have to file separate bonds for each business.

Collector Edwards will mail forms to all taxpayers now registered in his district, but any one not receiving such forms by next Monday are required to make application for them at the Collector's office.

ORDER FOR NEWLETTER RATES

Post Office Department Prepares for Increase Nov. 2.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Detailed instructions to Postmasters on the increased letter mail rates which become effective Nov. 2, under the terms of the War Tax bill, were issued today by Postmaster General Burleson. They do not apply to mail to most foreign countries, the rates for which are fixed by international treaties, but they cover all domestic mail, and under that classification is included mail to Canada, Mexico, Cuba, Panama, the United States Postal Agency at Shanghai, and all persons in the military service of the United States in Europe.

The Post Office Department issued these instructions:

"Postmasters shall, on and after Nov. 2, see that postage is paid at the rate of 3 cents an ounce or fraction thereof on letters and other first-class matter, except drop letters. All drop letters, that is, letters mailed for delivery from the office at which posted, including those for delivery by city, rural, or other carriers of such office, are required to have postage paid on them at the rate of 2 cents an ounce or fraction thereof. Postal cards are required to be prepaid 2 cents and, therefore, the 1-cent postal cards must have a 1-cent postage stamp affixed to them in addition to 1-cent stamp impressed on such cards. Postcards, (private mailing cards,) bearing written messages, must have 2 cents postage prepaid on them."

CAMP DISAPPOINTED AT REORGANIZATION

71ST ALMOST WIPED OUT

Only 150 Men Left to Col. Bates—Brooklyn Organizations Fare Better in the Assignments.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Oct. 5.—The reorganization order published by headquarters at noon today, to be effective on Monday, has disappointed men of the Twelfth, Seventy-first, Fourteenth, First and Seventy-fourth Regiments, which are affected, but the opinion of headquarters that "the initial disappointment will disappear" probably will be confirmed when the hard drills begin.

The discontent is especially marked among the men of the Twelfth, which is to be distributed among eight first-line units, running from supply trains to the engineers. In the Seventy-first the order leaves Colonel William G. Bates about 150 men to command, 50 per cent. less than the strength of a company under the new table. The Seventy-first goes almost intact into the new 105th Infantry, formerly the Second Regiment, of Troy. The Brooklyn organizations fared better, apparently, than any others, for the Fourteenth is sent almost in a body into another Brooklyn regiment, the Twenty-third.

Division headquarters and the headquarters troop is not changed. The 104th machine gun battalion of four companies to be drawn from the First Cavalry is added, and Major Edward McLeer is to command it.

The First Infantry Brigade is designated the Fifty-third United States Infantry Brigade and placed under command of Brig. Gen. Robert E. L. Michie, a West Pointer. The First Regiment in this brigade is the 105th, formerly the Second. Colonel James M. Andrews is directed to continue in command, and Lieut. Col. Morris N. Liebman, now of the Twenty-third of Brooklyn, is transferred to the 105th with the same rank. It is planned to keep the old Second's enlisted personnel intact, but to bring it up to the new strength by transferring 1,375 men from the Seventy-first and 142 from the Twelfth.

In this brigade is also put the Twenty-third, redesignated the 106th. Colonel Frank H. Norton of the Twenty-third assumes command of the enlarged regiment, and as his assistant Lieut. Col. John B. Tuck of the Third takes the same rank in the 106th. The Fourteenth will transfer 1,290 of its men to the new unit.

The machine-gun battalion for this brigade will be known as the 105th, and all except thirty men from the First Cavalry will be recruits from the ranks of Squadron A. The gunners will be commanded by the squadron's present senior officer, Major William R. Wright.

Brig. Gen. James W. Lester is placed over the Fifty-fourth Infantry Brigade. The first regiment in this body is the former Seventh, which, under the title of the 107th, will get 1,800 men from the First and 320 from the Twelfth. Colonel Willard C. Fisk will retain his command, while James M. Hutchinson, now of the Seventy-first, is transferred as the Lieutenant Colonel of the 107th.

The Third, headquarters in Rochester, is named the 108th, and Colonel Edgar S. Jennings is confirmed in his rank. The present Lieutenant Colonel of the Third is assigned to another unit, not yet announced, and in his place is detailed Lieut. Col. William A. Taylor of the Second. The enlisted recruits for the 108th are furnished thus: 1,350 from the Seventy-fourth of Buffalo and 293 from the Twelfth.

To Major Mortimer D. Bryant is given command of the machine-gun battalion to go with this brigade. His command is designated as the 104th Battalion, and the gunners will be transferred from the First Cavalry.

The three regiments of field artillery are formed into the Fifty-second Brigade under Brig.-Gen. General Charles L. Phillips, U. S. A., now in command of the camp. The Twelfth will supply men for a special detachment for this headquarters.

Colonel Merritt E. Smith of the First Field Artillery is continued in command of his organization, which is renumbered the 104th. Lieut Col. James Austin is also retained. The only change in this unit is the addition of 186 men from the Twelfth.

The Second Field Artillery, now the 105th, is continued in command of Colonel Wingate, and 158 men from the Fourteenth are scheduled to be turned into artillerymen. The 106th, formerly the Third heavy artillery, will obtain 158 men from the First, Seventy-first, and Seventy-fourth.

Colonel Vanderbilt in command, the 102d Engineers will absorb 83 men from the Engineers train and 87 from each of the following: First, Twelfth, Fourteenth, Seventy-first, and Seventy-fourth. About 300 men from the Twelfth and First Cavalry are shifted to the 102d trains. No changes were made in the sanitary trains.

PRACTICE CHARGE FOR 69TH.

Irishmen from New York Make Two-Mile Drive Over Obstacles.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP MILLS, Hempstead, L. I., Oct. 5.—The First Battalion of the 165th Regiment (Sixty-ninth of New York) engaged in a practice charge this morning, which carried the Irish boys over a two-mile run across country. The route was chosen for its natural obstacles and roughness, and included plowed fields, fences, gullies, holes, ravines, up-hill and down, and barbed-wire entanglements. A thousand men made the start, with officers lined along the course to maintain guide lines.

Corporal Louis Cromberg of Company A led the charge for the first half mile, but he was overhauled by two others of the same company, Sergeant James Jensen of the Paulist A. C., who finally beat Corporal J. H. Donnelly of the Irish-American cross-country team, finishing at the head. The winning flag went to Company A, which gives each member three extra hours of leave and twenty-four hours for Jensen.

When 500 men of the Sixty-fifth Aero Squadron, en route to Camp Mills from San Antonio, Texas, reached Long Island City yesterday to entrain the women of the Red Cross chapter served the fliers with coffee and sandwiches in the Corn Exchange Bank Building.

COACHES ASSIGNED FOR ARMY ATHLETICS

Crack Collegians Will Direct the Sports—Motion Pictures to Standardize Boxing.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—With the assignment of crack college athletes from all parts of the United States to national army and National Guard camps, the work of promoting recreative athletics among the million soldiers being trained for service overseas is well under way.

The Commission on Training Camp activities, of which Raymond B. Fosdick is Chairman, has organized the coaches and placed one on the staff of the commanding officer of each big military camp in the country.

The commission plans to develop a comprehensive organization of soldiers to participate regularly in some form of athletic activity. Games and sports especially adapted to camp life and conditions will be emphasized, and contests calling for the participation of large numbers of men in semi-military events will be encouraged in addition to the more common competitive games.

Instruction in boxing will be given at each of the cantonments, not only as a form of sport and recreation, but because of its relation to modern bayonet fighting. This was impressed on officers at Fort Myer, Plattsburg, and other camps by Major Herman Koehler, West Point physical instructor, who said that the "thrust" blow was similar to the bayonet jab with the full force of the body behind it; that boxing taught quickness of the eye and of delivering the thrust, and that it drilled the men to aim for the fleshy parts of the body, where the bayonet thrust would be most effective.

The director of boxing will train specially detailed groups of men who have had previous knowledge of the sport to become assistant instructors, so they may give individual lessons to men in the military units to which they are assigned. Boxing contests among the men will be encouraged, under carefully formulated rules and close supervision.

Motion pictures will be employed to standardize the work. These will demonstrate the fundamentals of boxing and the essential elements of the bayonet drill, visualizing the close relationship between the two. Pictures of shadow boxing and contests with surplus bayonets will illustrate the value of boxing as preparation for bayonet fighting.

WOULD HUNT KAISER'S HEAD

Igorrote Private at Camp Upton Threatens a Personal Attack.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP UPTON, YAPHANK, L. I., Oct. 5.—If the Kaiser wishes to retain his head he had best flee to the Russian front when the Seventy-seventh Division arrives in France. Such is the threat of Amok, a full-blooded Igorrote head hunter from the Philippine Islands, now enrolled as a private in Company I, 306th Infantry. Amok, who never was afflicted with two names, was born 30 years ago at Bontoc, in the Island of Luzon. He received his education at a French mission in the Philippines, and came to this country, where a local draft board found him at 8 Kister Court, Coney Island.

Amok has subscribed to the Liberty Loan and is a member of the American Red Cross. Captain Earl Marshall, commander of Company I., has had several talks with Amok in the endeavor to dissuade him from seeking the Kaiser's head. Some persons, the Captain told him, believe the Kaiser lost his head three years ago. If this is true, Amok announced, he would content himself with the head of the Crown Prince.

Another claimant for honors at Camp Upton is Frederick A. Natter, who is Democratic candidate for Assemblyman from the Fifteenth Assembly District. Private Natter, whose home is at 105 East Eighty-eight Street, must conduct his campaign from the 306th Infantry in which he is enrolled, but he is hopeful of obtaining a furlough for a few days near election time. Should he win a seat in the Assembly, in all probability he can obtain his discharge.

GERMANY'S 'HEART EXPOSED'

Reprisal Air Raids Show Folly of Giving Up Belgium, Berlin Argues.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 5.—A semi-official statement issued in Berlin refers to the attacks of Entente airmen on German towns, and says they prove it is necessary for Germany to press back the enemy aerial bases as far as possible.

"If today enemy airmen had bases on the Meuse line or in Belgium, we should discover that not only Western Germany but the heart of Germany would be exposed to enemy bombs," says the statement. It draws the conclusion that Belgium must no longer be dependent in a political or military sense on the Entente Powers.

TO SEND DRAFTED MEN'S CLOTHING TO BELGIUM

Discarded Apparel Which They Wear to the Camps Will Protect Sufferers Over There.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Thousands of needy Belgians may be protected from the coming Winter's rigors by clothing contributed by the men of America's new national army under plans set in motion today by Secretary Baker, at the suggestion of Herbert Hoover, National Food Administrator, and former Chairman of the Commission for Relief in Belgium.

Men called to service under the Selective Draft law discard for army uniforms the civilian clothing they wear to the cantonments and they are asked to give this to the Belgians. Permission has just been obtained to ship 400,000 tons of clothing into Belgium, across the Dutch frontier, and the gifts of the new soldiers would be sent in under this permit.

Charles A. Engalbracht and Rodney Sackett have been named by the Relief Commission to handle the clothing situation at the cantonments and they have been assured by Major General Bliss, Chief of Staff, of the hearty co-operation of the War Department.

Commanding officers at the cantonments were advised today of the plan by General Bliss in a telegram, which read:

"Each drafted man in your cantonment could feel that by this contribution he had already begun to render most valuable service in the cause for which he is taking up arms. Give this matter earnest consideration with a view to securing as large a contribution as possible."

CONNOLLY SUES FOR LIBEL.

Asks $100,000 from Opponent in Race for Borough President.

After conferring with members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment yesterday, Borough President Connolly of Queens started an action to recover $100,000 damages for alleged libel against Robert W. Higbie of Jamaica, Fusion and Republican candidate for Borough President in Queens. Connolly is the Democratic candidate for re-election.

In a speech before the Queens County Republican Committee last Monday night Higbie in referring to the paving of Metropolitan Avenue in the Jamaica section of Queens is reported to have said that the job "was a rotten one," and that Connolly knew it when he awarded the contract. The plans and specifications for the repaving were approved by the Board of Estimate and its engineers, and the board also approved the contract when let.

Higbie had been given a chance to retract his statements, but he asserted that he had been misquoted by the newspapers. Reporters who were present at the meeting have made affidavit that they reported his remarks correctly. Mr. Connolly issued a statement last evening in which he stated that all the work was done under proper supervision, but that the difficulty was that the contractor, after starting the work, had gone into bankruptcy.

CLEVELAND SHORT OF COAL.

Mayor Threatens to Seize Stocks to Supply City's Needs.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—Mayor Harry L. Davis announced tonight that he would "seize every ounce of coal in this vicinity" if necessary to prevent suffering here. He said he first would use every other means possible to get coal not only for industries but for domestic use.

The Boys' School in Hudson, near here, is badly in need of coal and the supply at one of the city institutions is practically exhausted. Householders are appealing to the city for coal.

VON LUXBURG FLEES ON SPANISH STEAMER

German Minister Leaves Argentina Under Police Escort and Sails From Montevideo.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 5.—Confirmation was received tonight that Count Karl von Luxburg, former German Minister to Argentina, who recently received his passports because of his connection with dispatches sent through the Swedish Legation to Germany, was spirited out of Argentina this morning in a police automobile in charge of a police Captain and rushed to Tigre, a suburb, where he took a tug to Colonia, Uruguay. From there he proceeded by train to Montevideo, where he boarded a Spanish steamer.

He is said to have a Spanish safe conduct which, according to diplomats, is sufficient to protect him, but not his papers, from capture. The steamer sailed later for Spain.

An earlier report to the effect that von Luxburg had gone to a ranch of a friend and that he intended to leave Argentina in a few days was made public in order to prevent hostile demonstration against him during his passage through Uruguay. The announcement was made by the Argentine Foreign Office.

Flight was the only alternative for von Luxburg, as Argentina had demanded yesterday that he depart from the republic immediately. Uruguay, Chile, and Paraguay had informed the Argentine Government that the Count was persona non grata to those countries.

EDUCATE YOUR CHILDREN

The Training of Today Is the Hope of Tomorrow

Your Child and My Child

are the Nation's most precious possessions. Never has there been a time when so much was demanded of the child. Everybody knows that the schools alone cannot furnish a practical education for life. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE solves this great problem in the home. It is not a luxury; it is a necessity. It is not an expense; it is a saving of time, money, and mistakes. It gives the child the right to start on the road to knowledge. It teaches him the things which he ought to know, and without which he will always be handicapped in the battle of life. It brings the home and the school, the parent and the teacher, together on a common ground of effort. Can you afford to let your child do without the greatest educational help of the age?

The Book of Knowledge

The Children's Encyclopedia

"The home is the greatest educational institution," says the United States Commissioner of Education, and THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the most important educational tool in the home.

Your Child Will Grow Up to Thank You

Your child must be educated whether the nation is at war or in peace. It is the one thing which cannot be neglected, and cannot be put off. There has never been a time in the world's history when the future of the child was of such vital importance to the nation. Parents have discovered too late that their own education was unequal to the demands made upon it. Educators have known for a long time that the schoolroom is not furnishing the child of today with that practical information, that self-control, and that "desire-to-know" which alone can produce powerful, useful and happy men and women. Do not waste years of your child's precious time making him learn things which he cannot understand and read things which are far beyond his mental grasp. It will blunt the edge of his wholesome appetite for good books. In 500,000 homes today, THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE has proved, and is proving, the great new force in the life of the children. If you place this work in your home, your child will grow up to thank you.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE is the first practical work of reference for the young, arranged on an entirely new plan, as a series of delightful reading courses in the Great Departments of Knowledge,—Science, Astronomy, Physiology, History, Biography, Art and Literature. To this Great Treasure House of important, but marvelously interesting information, there have been added educational occupations of many kinds, Stories and Poems, Sports and Games. THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE supplements the work of the school, enlarges the life of the home and gives the child an education that will stand the test of life.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE educates the child spontaneously. Think what it means to you, father and mother, to know that there has been made for your child a wonderful selection of the important things which he ought to know, written so simply, and so delightfully illustrated that your boy and girl cannot possibly resist the magic of its pictured pages. They will go to bed with a volume under their pillows and remember in the morning the pages where they left off reading. It is practical, it is delightful, it is ideal. The years of greatest need are between six and eighteen. Do not keep your child needy for the help he needs NOW. The home is the greatest educational agency in the world.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—All that is needed to make the supreme baseball splash between the Giants and the White Sox a glowing success here tomorrow is about 100,000 more tickets and a million dollars' worth of good weather. As there are no more tickets and it has pelted rain all day, with a dubious outlook for tomorrow, it seems as if the opening game of the world's series of 1917 would be played before a mere handful of 35,000 under a dull gray sky.

All the preliminary bouts of the series have been fought. In crowded hotel lobbies White Sox and Giant fans have talked volumes about the chances of both clubs. As Manager McGraw and Manager Rowland insist they do not know who will pitch the opening game, the crowd had to take the responsibility on their own shoulders and, according to the loudest argument, it seems a sure thing that Ferdinand Stubblefield Schupp, the Louisville kid, will match his left-handed tangents against the far-famed knuckle ball of Eddie Cicotte.

Here in Chicago there seems to be just as many ways of pronouncing Cicotte's name as in New York. Some call him Cheekotee, others warble it Cy-Kot, while Cicotte seems to think that his name should be pronounced See-Kot. Those in favor of Cheekotee vote "nay," and those in favor of See-Kot vote "yea." The "yeas" have it, so See-Kot it is.

Both teams planned to warm up at Comiskey Park, but the weather was bad and the field wet, and neither manager cared to risk turned ankles or broken legs, so the players were sentenced to worry through the day reading what the experts had to say about just how they should behave in the big affray tomorrow.

Indulge in "Skull Practice."

The only baseball the players had was what baseball men call "skull practice." This consists of the players swarming into a room, locking all the doors and windows and indulging in a mental wrestling match with the various intricate plays suggested by the manager. This mental exercise is a severe task for most players.

Former stars recalled an exciting "skull practice" which was held by the New York Yankees under Manager Clark Griffith. Teacher Griff put the problem to his pupils, "What would you do in a game if there was one out, two men on bases, and Larry Lajoie at the bat?" Charley Hemphill raised his hand to answer the question, and said, "I'd shoot him."

Not since the days of Jiggs Donohue and the hitless wonders, eleven years ago, have White Sox fans had a chance to get excited as they have over this club of Clarence Rowland's. In spite of the downpour and the possibility of no game tomorrow, there was no dampening the enthusiasm of White Sox partisans. They will crowd into Comiskey Park at 2 o'clock ready to yell themselves hoarse to see McGraw's Giants humbled.

The eve before the battle betting found New York fans more willing to wager than Chicago backers. White Sox fans are all holding out until the last minute, hoping to get better odds. The hundreds of Giant partisans who are in the city for the series will wager all the cash Chicago fans want at even money, but they will not offer odds.

New York fans are confident that the Giants will win because they figure that McGraw's club has the greater drive. With an uphill fight the Giants have shown time and again this season that they have the necessary punch to overcome mighty obstacles and land in front.

No Fear of Cicotte.

The visiting enthusiasts figure that Chicago's greatest assets are Eddie Cicotte and Ray Schalk. Cicotte the Giants do not fear, relying on their ability to concentrate enough batting strength at some stage of the game to break through Eddie's mythical "shine ball." All season long this shine ball has been a constant menace held over White Sox opponents, but it has been stripped of much of its mystery, and the Giants believe they can hit it and hit it hard.

Another point which Giant fans emphasize is that the New York attack is more varied. The long experience and strategy of McGraw, they believe, will enable the little Napoleon to outgeneral the younger leader, Clarence Rowland. On his left-handed pitchers McGraw will depend almost entirely, although in the matter of pitching staffs it looks like about an even thing. The Giants' outfield should prove more effective in offensive play.

There seems little difference between the mechanical assets of the teams. Giant supporters believe that the tremendous driving power of McGraw's machine under stress will be the deciding factor.

Of course with White Sox fans the argument switches just the other way. It is argued that the White Sox won their pennant against stronger opposition than the Giants found in the National League, and that therefore it is a stronger club.

Long Hits Count Most.

Buck Herzog, the field Captain of the Giants, is confident that New York will win by long hits. "Nearly every one of the last half dozen world series," said Herzog, "has been won by a long hit. Don't you remember Home-Run Baker, Harry Hooper, Duffy Lewis, and Hank Gowdy? In a short series, the long hit is the most effective weapon a club can have.

"I believe we have the better array of hard hitters. Burns, Kauff, Robertson, Zimmerman, Holke, and McCarthy are liable to smash out an extra base crack any time. I think we have the edge on the Sox in this feature of the game, and I believe it is going to be the thing that will win.

"If the Giants win it will be a short series, but if the Sox win it will be a long-drawn-out battle, for we will fight to the last ditch."

Benny Kauff is another of the Giants' players who is sure that New York will triumph. Benny bases his judgment on observations while scouting the Sox for McGraw. Benny says he realizes that the Sox were not showing all they had, but the thing that impressed him was the uncertain manner in which White Sox batsmen faced left-handed pitchers. He believes that the Giants' southpaws will be able to curb the White Sox batting enthusiasm.

Chicago hotels are doing a land office business. It is just as easy to get accommodations in the United States Mint as it is in the half dozen leading hostelries tonight. In most of the hotels it was impossible to get reservations, and the few [illegible] which were [illegible] brought big prices. One of the largest and newest hotels was asking $8 for a room.

City Decked for Occasion.

The world series crowd, which has flocked here, is crowding the restaurants and theatres, and the city has taken on a holiday appearance. In all the shop windows White Sox pennants are prominent, and hawkers are on every corner selling pictures of Rowland's players.

Not in many years has there been such a representation of minor league baseball men. They have flocked here from every bush circuit in the country to see this great baseball battle between the East and the West. The sad part of all this jubilee is that many folks who have traveled a long distance to see the series will not be able to get inside of Comiskey Park.

The only worthy evidence of actual ticket scalping which officials have been unable to unearth is the sale of several box seats, marked at $15 for the three games, at $60 a set, or at the rate of $20 a game.

No Tickets for McGraw.

The club officials are in a quandary about supplying tickets to friends to whom the pasteboards have been promised weeks ago. McGraw invited several friends here to see the first two games, and he learned this afternoon that it would be impossible to fill his order. Many persons, hearing that McGraw's request had been turned down, realized that it was impossible to hope for tickets, so gave up the search.

Even the New York players were surrounded by anxious friends in a vain attempt to separate them from tickets. Each player was allowed to buy a pair of tickets for each game, and one of Slim Sallee's neighbors from Higginsport, Ohio, where Slim is Sheriff, offered the lanky southpaw $150 for the two seats. Slim turned down the offer.

Benny Kauff had two tickets in his inside pocket for which he was offered $100, but he said he would not part with them for any price, since they were for his father, who had been waiting all Summer for tomorrow's big event. Benny's dad comes from Middleport, Ohio, and he has told his young offspring that if he expects to receive any kind of a reception when he comes back to the old homestead this Fall he had better get in there tomorrow and knock the cover off the ball.

FANS LINE UP IN THE RAIN.

Chicago Patrons Have All-Night Vigil for Games.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Although it was raining hard here, hundreds of baseball fans braved the weather and formed a line outside of the bleachery gates at Comiskey Park tonight. One of the first fans in line was Charley Cain, who arrived early, hoping to get the place of honor among rabid bugs. He found, however, that there was one fan ahead of him, so he edged into second place.

The rain fell so heavily that the fans had umbrellas, raincoats, and even blankets to protect them during their long vigil. Most of them were well bundled up and came prepared to steal a few hours' sleep when they got a chance. The water-soaked fans will have a long wait, as the bleacher seat sale will not begin until 10 o'clock tomorrow, when 15,000 seats will be placed on sale.

OUTSIDER LAUREL WINNER.

Courtship Surprises Talent by Taking Haig Handicap.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 5.—This was a day of surprises at the racetrack, with the greatest one of all reserved for the Haig Handicap, at a mile, which was the feature of the card. G. A. Marshall's Courtship, a three-year-old colt that was supposed to be outclassed in the fast field, was well handled by W. Collins, and after keeping up with the pacemakers came away in the stretch and lasted long enough to beat Priscilla Mullens. Hauberk, another outsider, finished third, while the fancied candidates, Sunflash II. and Ed Cudihee, finished outside the money. Better than 30 to 1 was obtained by those who played Courtship.

The victory of Courtship was followed by the success of two other long shots, Kilts in the sixth, and Ella Ryan in the seventh race. W. M. Jeffords's Red Sox beat a good field of two-year-olds for the Prospect Purse, the other event for juveniles going to B. Williams's Paganini.

IRVIN COBB WILL DESCRIBE SERIES

War Correspondent and Humorist to Tell Times Readers of Baseball Games.

By IRVIN S. COBB.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—In the matter of appraising the chances of the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox in the forthcoming world's series the attitude of the man who means to write daily reports on the hostilities from the front-line trenches should be marked, I take it, by the same unbiased mentality which characterized the North Carolina mountaineer who, sitting on the roof of his log cabin watching a battle going on down below between his wife and a full-grown black bear, remarked to himself:

"The fust gol-darned fight I ever see in my life wha' I didn't give a hoot which side won!"

At the same time it is going to be almighty hard for a man no matter how impartial he aims to be, to avoid having his personal preferences. For one thing, local pride must enter into the equation. I am, or was, until lately a fellow-townsman of Mr. McGraw. I have known him long and favorably. On the contrary, I have never enjoyed the acquaintance of Mr. Rowland.

I remember, though, the shock which passed through the baseball world three years ago when it was announced that Mr. Comiskey had selected as the manager of his team a person whose first name was Clarence.

Had the gentleman's first name been Launcelot the jolt could hardly have been more profound. It didn't seem possible!

Biblical Names to the Fore.

Somehow in the realm of sport, the records and traditions of deeds of daring had ever been associated with gentlemen bearing staunch stalwart Biblical first names such as Jeremiah and Tyrus, such as Timothy and Malachi, such as Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John.

Mr. Rowland emerged from the tall grass of the bush league and entered fast company with a severe handicap. He must be given all due credit, therefore, not only for constructing a championship contender team within less time than it has taken for the Kaiser to find out he can never enter Paris except under arrest; but also for offering practical demonstration to his countrymen that the circumstance of his having been harnessed up at the baptismal font with the name of Clarence does not necessarily imply that an individual thus burdened laces up his union suit with baby ribbons. It is high time, anyhow, that these unaccountable prejudices should die. The games man I ever knew was named Bertie, and the roughest man I ever saw was called Gussie—but not to his face. And now we are to have a Clarence directing a team in a world series.

I shall leave it to seasoned experts to figure out in advance the prospects of the rival clubs as predicated upon the comparative merits of the opposing players, the individual and team averages, and other data and statistics available for such purposes. I have noticed that in their predictions on the eve of a world series the experts usually allow themselves the same latitude that is employed in the average weather prediction.

Let the Experts Prophesy.

In other words, a Fullerton or a Runyon stands ready to prove to you as a matter of mathematical exactitude that the Giants are sure to walk away with the pennant unless the White Sox do this, that, or the other thing; but, on the contrary, that the bunting is already practically in possession of Mr. Comiskey's brave boys provided only the Giants do not exhibit a certain something in finesse, strategy, or boldness which they are liable to exhibit. Reversible cuffs are out of fashion, but reversible forecasts on the outcome of a world's series continue to be popular.

Since I lack the ability to indulge in any such calculations as these, touching on the players themselves, it occurs to me that perhaps I might fill the space allotted to me in today's paper with some remarks concerning the rival managers.

Mr. McGraw is a short, broad gentleman. His stream line is shorter than that of Mr. Rowland, but his total displacement is considerably greater. He is a good dresser on and off. Personally he is one of the most attractive men of my acquaintance. Were he to offer himself as an aspirant for public office, I am sure he would command the hearty support of all who know him well, with the exception of the members of the umpiring staffs of the National League.

Mr. William Klem, for example, would be found heartily campaigning for the opposition candidate. Mr. McGraw's talent for repartee is famous throughout the nation. In uniform, or out of it, he is never at a loss for the right word in the right place. I shall never forget the historic occasion when he spoiled for Mr. J. J. Evers what promised to be a very pleasant afternoon. One of those disputes which so frequently come up in a baseball game had arisen between Mr. McGraw and Mr. Evers.

McGraw Is Sarcastic.

Departing for the moment from the purely technical and professional aspects of the controversy, Mr. McGraw, having in mind the fact that Mr. Evers had but a short time before retired from a retail merchandising enterprise in his home city of Troy, N. Y., suddenly remarked with biting emphasis, "And so you're the smart business man that ran a shoe store into a shoe string!"

If Mr. McGraw deserves the title which he wears of the Little Napoleon of Baseball, Mr. Rowland has proven his right to be called the Talleyrand of the Diamond. One, as I know, is prone to seize upon the expediency of the moment, to snatch at opportunity as it arises, to change his whole scheme of campaign with an instantaneous dispatch, to meet the present emergency or the next one, whatever it may be.

The other, so they tell me, is more given to shaping his plans in advance, adhering to them no matter what complications may develop until such time as the unforeseen problem requires him to call on genial Kid Gleason to make up his mind for him. In such case he might go further and fare worse. The venerable Gleason is a mighty wise old owl. Borrowing two words which the present war have made popular, one might say, therefore, that Mr. McGraw excels in barrage fires, but that Mr. Rowland knows more about camouflage.

Anyhow, we should all know more about how the first game of the series is going to turn out, along about 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Another week should reveal the winner, and following that it will be time to take up the customary ticket scandal in New York and Chicago and thrash it out in the sporting columns until the opening of the football season drives thought of lesser things from the popular mind.

No world's series is complete without a ticket scandal looming up in its afterglow.

HOCKEY IN CANADA HIT.

Prospects for Professional Ice Sport Contests Are Dubious.

According to reports in Canadian newspapers, the prospects of professional hockey in Canada during the coming season are decidedly slim.

Following the positive announcement of Ottawa Hockey Club directors that they would not guarantee salaries and that they would resume only if the players came in under a co-operative basis, news comes from Quebec that the ancient capital will not have a team.

The plans of the National Hockey Association called for a four-club league, consisting of Ottawa, Wanderers, Canadiens, and Quebec. However, with Quebec out the possibility of continuing is minimized. Toronto is a back number as far as professional hockey is concerned, at least until after the war, and there is no other place where a franchise could be exercised.

THRILLS BY TICKER LOCAL FANS' FATE

Progress of First Series Game a Thousand Miles Away Will Be Watched Eagerly.

New York fans are grumbling under an unusual condition this year, since it is the first time in four world's series in which the Giants were one of the contesting parties that the October classic has been started away from the metropolis. However, New York fans are accustomed to adjusting themselves to existing conditions, and during the grumbles there are plans for ticker parties, elbow jostling in front of bulletin boards, and a general exodus from business during at least two hours this afternoon.

Street corner arguments around Times Square all favor the Giants to come back to New York for the third and fourth games with a comfortable lead. Many of these optimistic enthusiasts are firm in their belief that Benny Kauff, Heinie Zimmerman, Georgie Burns, and a few more slugging satellites on the National League champions will rub the shine off Eddie Cicotte's mystery ball by clubbing the really inoffensive sphereoid to the far corners of Charles Comiskey's South Side pasture. A half minute of these conversations makes it apparent that New York is with the Giants and convinced that John McGraw finally has fitted together another world's championship aggregation, after twelve years of endeavor.

Although police edict will prevent any unusual gatherings in the streets of the city there will be several chances for the fan to learn about the minute details of the game. At Madison Square Garden and the Seventy-first Regiment Armory two immense bulletin boards have been installed, and the game will be displayed in each place. At all of the army encampments around New York a bulletin service has been arranged for, and the soldiers will get first hand information about the bats of New York and the dents made in Chicago's defense.

There was little betting on the outcome of the series since the flood of New York money went begging, as no Chicago adherents could be found. In Wall Street odds fluctuated from even money to 6 to 5 that the Giants would win the series.

New York's end of the world's series has been unusually quiet to date because of several reasons. Unlike the case of Brooklyn last year when the Dodgers were started to their Boston downfall with a parade, blare of syncopated brass and red fire, the Giants bid New York a temporary farewell almost a month ago, and have not been home since. Many of the New York followers of the team who went to Chicago to see the opening games left quietly and unobserved. This lack of outward cheering, according to most fans, means a whole-hearted, city-wide determination that New York is to be the home of the world's champions once more.

Plans are under way now for a welcome back home to the team Monday evening. Several prominent Giant fans want to arrange a reception to the returning team, but Harry N. Hempstead, President of the Giants, is against such a proceeding. He declares that the men will be brought back to New York for the second and third games as quickly and quietly as possible, and that there will be no opportunity for any outward display.

The game will start in Chicago today at 2 o'clock—or 3 o'clock New York time. Tickers will begin to tick about 2:30, and crowds will gather at that hour. New York is going to enjoy its world's series even if the games are played in Chicago to start the annual title struggle.

TWO CHAMPIONS WIN.

New York Lawn Tennis Doubles Go to Misses Wagner and Moore.

Miss Marie Wagner, women's national indoor tennis champion, and Miss Bessie Moore, a former national champion, won the doubles tournament at the New York Lawn Tennis Club yesterday afternoon when they defeated Miss Helen Bernhard and Miss Helene Pollak in the final round with the score 7—5, 6—4. It was by no means an easy victory, the championship pair being forced to display the finest quality of their tennis skill to successfully combat the determined attack of Miss Bernhard and Miss Pollak.

The complexion of the first set held during its mid-course far from a roseate hue for the eventual winners. Accurate driving that had pace as well as control placed Miss Bernhard and Miss Pollak within a game of the first set, when they led at 5—3. It was at this point that Miss Wagner forced her way into the fray with more determination. She was not content to match deep court against deep court play, and, coming to the barrier, volleyed and smashed so brilliantly that Miss Bernhard and Miss Pollak were forced to see their opportunity for victory slip away and disappear in the eventual success of Miss Wagner and Miss Moore, who ran off three straight games against opposition that was determined but futile.

In the second set the games alternated until the games were four all. Here the brilliant play of Miss Wagner again became a decisive factor, and the next two games were secured by herself and Miss Moore.

In the semi-final round Miss Wagner and Miss Moore defeated Mrs. W. H. Pritchard and Mrs. W. G. Conklyn at 6—2, 6—4.

MORAN VICTIM OF LEONARD.

Champion Adds Another Knockout to His Long List.

Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, added another easy knockout victory to his already large list, at the Harlem S. C. last night when he stopped Vic Moran, the New Orleans lightweight in the second round of their scheduled ten-round bout. Leonard completely outclassed his rival, and there was never a doubt during the short contest as to the ultimate outcome.

The champion contented himself with outboxing his rival in the opening round and did nothing but dance in and out to avoid the few blows Moran timidly aimed at him. In the second round Leonard increased his speed and went after Moran so that the Southerner was kept busy dodging effective blows. After about one minute's sparring, Leonard caught his opponent with a sweeping left hand hook to the chin as Moran was going away from him, and the latter went reeling to the ropes.

Leonard took his time following up the advantage, but near the end of the round shot out his right like a flash and Moran crumpled up on the floor of the ring. Referee McPartland had reached a count of four when the bell sounded. When Moran's seconds, after assisting him to his corner, advised the referee that the bout was over as far as Moran was concerned.

In the other scheduled ten-round bout Clay Turner, the Indian heavyweight, stopped Jack London of Harlem in eight rounds, the referee halting the uneven bout.

YALE TO FOSTER SPORTS.

Professor Corwin Officially Outlines Year's Athletic Policy.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 5.—Professor A. N. Corwin, chairman of Yale's athletic board, in a statement printed today in the Yale Daily News, officially outlines the New Haven university's athletic policy. His comments follow in part:

"There is no plan to discourage or curtail athletics, but rather to give it a specific aim and to make it available and useful to every man who is looking for service. But we ought to make it clear to ourselves that we cannot make athletics serve a military purpose unless we give it all possible support.

"I have been asked to outline our athletic problem. This I am glad to do, for in this we have a task, which, though by no means simple or easy, will be as successfully met as have been our other problems if clearly understood and grasped in time.

"Those in highest authority in Washington have stated that universities can best help the cause by a continuance of athletic training and athletic sports, since these are an essential part of military training and discipline. At the Summer meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association a special plea was made to the universities that they should maintain athletic sports, in view of the importance of these sports in the military task before the country. Moreover, explicit orders have been issued that athletic exercises should be maintained and encouraged in the army and navy.

"These statements and orders seem to make the duty of the university clear in the matter of athletics, and our Board of Control and those undergraduates most closely identified with athletics agree that it is our duty to make athletic sports subservient to military training.

"Yale's problem is, therefore, to give our athletics a military basis and purpose during the term of the war. This cannot be done by reviving our old-time intercollegiate schedules or devoting all of our resources to the development of nine or eleven men of surpassing skill and endurance. What is needed is rather recreation and exercise for every man who is physically fit so that he may be better equipped for serving his country and the cause of humanity in this time of peril. But we ought to make clear to ourselves that we shall not make athletics serve a military purpose unless we give athletics all possible support under the conditions prescribed. As President Hadley said at the matriculation service, 'Every man of us is constructively in service,' and a man cannot take his physical exercise vicariously any more than he can get his military training at second hand.

"It seems to me, therefore, that it is up to all Yale men who are interested in athletics and believe that athletics is essential to college life and to military life to understand that there is no plan to curtail or discourage athletics, but rather to give it a specific aim and to make it available and useful to every man who is looking for service."

VIOLET TEAM LOSES COACH.

Assistant Coach Wall will handle the team today at Troy in the opening game of the Violet against Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

FOREST HILL WOMEN WIN.

Defeat Their Hackensack Rivals on Links by 7 Points to 3.

The women's golf team of the Forest Hill Field Club made a determined bid for the leadership of the North New Jersey division in the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association team matches yesterday by defeating the leading Hackensack team by seven points to three, in a match played at Forest Hill. Hackensack suffered its first defeat of the season in this struggle, and now has a record of seven victories and one defeat. Forest Hill has won six matches and lost two. Each have one more match to play, Hackensack against Glen Ridge, and Forest Hill against Montclair.

Mrs. H. B. Salmon is Captain of Forest Hill, since Mrs. B. H. Blood withdrew from the club. As Captain, Mrs. Salmon helped her team's chances by defeating Mrs. William Kain by three points. Mrs. Thomas Hucknall also exhibited her sterling golf worth by disposing of Mrs. T. H. Thomas, Captain of Hackensack.

In the other match of the New Jersey sections Hollywood defeated Baltusrol by eight to two, and complicated the southern situation, since Baltusrol was leading by a small margin to date over Cranford. Only Mrs. S. P. Nash was able to count for Baltusrol. Plainfield defaulted to Trenton and Englewood defaulted to Montclair.

LITTLE NEARER IN VAN AT AQUEDUCT

Defeats Muckross by Head in Long Race Run in New Record for Track.

R. H. Ahles's noted long-distance performer Little Nearer ran one of the best races of a long turf career when he won the third race at Aqueduct yesterday and set a new track record for a mile and five sixteenths of 2:13 2-5. The race appeared to be made to order for the aged son of Golden Maxim, but under selling conditions he had to pick up 121 pounds, and gave away lots of weight to every one of the starters. The big task undertaken by Little Nearer and the thrilling race which resulted in its execution made the event the feature of the day, placing in the background the performance of John Sanford's George Smith, which galloped to an easy victory over Paddy Whack in a two-horse race that was alleged to be the star attraction.

Little Nearer has gained such a reputation over distances in excess of a mile and a quarter that, opening at even money, he was backed until he started an odds-on favorite in the field of five. Strange to say the most serious opposition to the old gelding was provided by Mrs. E. Arlington's Muckross, a three-year-old that carried the lightest weight and was the outsider at odds of 10 to 1; and there were many who held the opinion that with a stronger rider than G. Walls in the saddle the outsider would have spoiled the best thing of the day.

Wild Thyme set out at a pace that was far too fast for Little Nearer, but was closely followed by the others. The top weight dropped further and further behind, until at the far turn he was ten lengths behind the leaders. Troise called on his mount then to make up some of the lost ground, and Little Nearer responded so gamely that at the stretch turn he was within hailing distance. Little Nearer gained so steadily that at the eighth pole he was practically on even terms with Muckross and Pierre-A-Feu, which had deprived Wild Thyme of her position in the van. Then came the surprise, for just when the admirers of Little Nearer expected him to gallop away from his rivals he fell back as the despised Muckross shot to the front. Muckross appeared to have the speed of the older horse, but the latter was game, and as Troise applied the whip he gave up his best, and that was enough to lead Muckross to the line by a head. The previous record was 2:14 1-5, made by G. W. Glick's Shyness last year.

There was a rattling race in the steeplechase, which finally went to A. J. Davis's King Simon, second choice in the betting. Old Salt was well out in front in the last lap and stood off the challenge of Reddest, the favorite, on the far turn. When King Simon tackled Old Salt two jumps from home the aged fencer had nothing left. Reddest came again in the stretch, but failed to catch Lady Edwina, which took the place, a length behind the winner.

Handicapper Vosburgh brought about another finish with three horses heads apart in the fifth race, a handicap for all ages at six furlongs. Good sprinters were engaged, with Samuel Ross's Ultimatum the choice. Ultimatum managed to get in front in the stretch, but in a whirlwind finish he was relegated to fifth place, and J. E. Widener's Pickwick, Ima Frank and Sharpshooter finished in the order named. Mr. Ross made amends for the defeat of Ultimatum by winning the last race, for two-year-olds, with The Porter, a handsome son of Sweep.

ARMY TEAM OPENS ITS SEASON TODAY

Cornell and Dartmouth Other Big Elevens Scheduled to Start Gridiron Fray.

NAVY ALSO TO APPEAR

Midshipmen Will Meet West Virginia University—Two Local Contests.

Football again is on a firm footing in the collegiate world. Only Harvard, Yale and Princeton still adhere to their policy of no intercollegiate contests until after the war. Generally every big institution in the East and West is represented by an eleven, probably not as strong as in former years, but in every case one with a latent power which should develop an exhibition of the gridiron sport equal to that of the past.

In the games listed for today the powerful and heavy Army eleven, under the leadership of Captain Elmer Q. Oliphant, will start its competitive season in a game against Carnegie Tech. The Pittsburgh college is not heralded as greatly as is its neighbor Pittsburgh University, but Carnegie always manages to place a team in the field which is troublesome to opponents. Reports from the Army have it that West Point again is graced with enough football power to carry it through another successful year. West Point was undefeated last season.

The Midshipmen at Annapolis also are preparing for a struggle today in which West Virginia will furnish the opposition. The Navy had little difficulty winning its first game of the season last Saturday and since Pitt manhandled West Virginia on the same day, it is expected that the Navy will continue triumphantly. It is not definitely decided that the Army and Navy are not to meet this year and it may be that the Red Cross will bring the teams together in New York.

Only two local teams will be active. New York University opens its season away from home against R. P. I. at Troy. Coach Eustis, in the short time he has been in charge, has developed a strong team out of fairly inexperienced material. Stevens, weakened by the loss of three regulars, will oppose the usually good Haverford eleven at Hoboken.

Cornell and Dartmouth enter the competitive field for the first time today. Cornell has lost many of its last year's stars, but is determined to keep football alive at Ithaca.

FORDHAM ELEVEN TRIUMPHS

Individual Play of Ambulance Squad Fails Against Team Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ALLENTOWN, Penn., Oct. 5.—Constant fumbling by the back field enabled Fordham to win over the United States Army Ambulance team on Muhlenberg Field today by a score of 19 to 7. More than 3,000 soldiers from the concentration camp saw their team of former college stars tear through the Maroon line for repeated gains only to lose the ball on a fumble or penalty.

Although outweighed, the New York boys, by more varied and open attack, showed that teamwork will win over individual ability. Forward passes and end runs accounted for all of Fordham's tallies. Fordham's touchdowns came in the first and third quarters and the Army touchdown in the third quarter.

The line-up:

| Fordham. | Positions. | Ambulance Corps. |
|---|---|---|
| Dumoe | L. E. | Gano |
| Christensen | L. T. | Johnson |
| Kendricks | L. G. | Moore |
| Crowley | C. | Wick |
| Fogarty | R. G. | O'Donnell |
| McGrath | R. T. | Boys |
| Fitzpatrick | R. E. | Emmanuel |
| Brennan | Q. B. | Dunn |
| Frisch | L. H. B. | Irwin |
| Dempsey | R. H. B. | Conn |
| Colletti | F. B. | Beck |

Touchdowns—Fitzpatrick, (2.) Frisch, Johnson. Goals from touchdowns—Brennan, Johnson. Referee—Crowell, Swarthmore. Umpire—Okeson, Lehigh. Linesman—Houck, Ursinus. Substitutions: Army—Kramer for Beck; Beck for Conn; Conn for Beck; Huston for Clark; Farrell for Boyd; Clark for Irwin. Fordham—Gulick for McGrath; McGrath for Fogarty; Galligan for Dempsey; Abbott for Crowley.

HARVARD LOSES TWO MEN.

Snow and Church of Football Team to Go in the Navy.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 5.—Harvard's "informal" football team, which has sent virtually all of its veteran material into the war, is to give up two more of its most promising members, this time to the navy. Captain Snow, the 'Varsity guard, and Church, the half back who was last year's freshman Captain, announced tonight that they would play their last game for Harvard tomorrow before entering the Naval Cadet Training School next week.

The school is at present located at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but will be moved to Harvard. It will not be an official part of the university, however, and unless eligibility rules are changed Snow and Church will be unable to play on the Harvard team. The eleven opens its season with Dean Academy at Franklin tomorrow.

HAUGHTON TO COACH AGAIN.

Famous Harvard Mentor to Teach Football to Soldiers.

AYER, Mass., Oct. 5.—Percy Haughton, President of the Boston National League Baseball Club and Coach of Harvard football teams, will act as coach for the regimental football eleven that is to be selected in competition at Camp Devens to represent the cantonment in games with college, army, and navy teams.

Arrangements are being made for a game on Braves' Field, Boston, on Thanksgiving Day, when it is expected that either the University of Pittsburgh or a team from the naval reserve battalion, at Newport, will be the opponents of Camp Devens.

RUTGERS TO MEET SOLDIERS

Only Hummel Missing from Regular Lineup of Team.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 5.—Rutgers's football team is in good condition for the game with Fort Wadsworth here tomorrow afternoon, with the exception of Hummel, right end, who is suffering from a wrenched shoulder. His place will be taken by Breckley, who only recently came out for the football team. Coach Sanford has announced his lineup as follows: Right end, Breckley; right tackle, Rendall; right guard, Rollins; centre, Gray; left guard, Newschaffer; left tackle, Feitner; left end, Robeson; left half back, Kelly; right half back, Gargan or Lawes; full back, Whitehill; quarterback, Baker.

ONLY SOLDIERS ON ELEVEN.

Tad Jones, Yale's Football Coach, Puts His Foot Down.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 5.—"No man who is physically fit and is not a member of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps or some branch of the military service will be permitted to report for football."

The above appeared in the Yale News signed by Tad Jones, the head football coach. Football has always been one of Yale's greatest sports. A man physically fit for the game was always welcomed in former years by the coaches.

Now all that is changed. A man may be physically fit, but he has got to be a soldier or he cannot be a football man at Yale.

THEOSOPHY'S WAR SOLACE.

Reincarnation Belief Heals Grief, Society's President Says.

The war will offer an opportunity for the believer in the mystical creeds of theosophy to liquidate many of the moral debts or "Karma" incurred by bad or unrighteous acts, according to several hundred members of the sect attending the thirty-first annual convention of the American Section of the Theosophical Society at the Park Avenue Hotel. Death on the battlefields, they argued yesterday, would not only relieve a man of all his "kirma," but the sheer nobility of the sacrifice which he had made for his country would launch him forth into increasingly beautiful reincarnation. A. P. Warrington, president of the American Section of the Theosophical Society, devoted part of his annual address to this theme yesterday. He said the time was one which required theosophists to come forth from their seclusion and share in the work of national service. They could do so, he declared, by carrying the consolation and promise of happy reincarnations to families that may be bereft of their dear ones.

"But don't be queer about it all," Mr. Warrington said. "Being 'queer' has too long been the characteristic of the theosophist. Because of that fact, it has been an extremely difficult matter to make the public take theosophy seriously. Believe and spread the doctrines of 'kirma' and reincarnation, but do not make them the subject of incessant and idle conversation."

Mr. Warrington declared that the converts to theosophy were increasing steadily. The American section, he said, had now 6,500 members, more than 5,000 of whom were constantly engaged in spreading the propaganda of theosophy.

PRISON FOR DRAFT FRAUD.

Physician Sentenced to Two Years in Atlanta and Fined.

Dr. Henry Seligman, Lazarus Jacobson, and Nathan Ehrlich, who were convicted on Wednesday of conspiring to obtain a draft exemption for the payment of $200, were sentenced yesterday by Judge Veeder in the United States District Court in Brooklyn to serve terms of two years each in the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. In addition, Dr. Seligman was ordered to pay a fine of $3,000. Addressing Dr. Seligman, the Judge said:

"In your case, Seligman, I impose an additional punishment in the shape of a fine of $3,000 because you are a man of mature years and a member of a profession from which the community expects exemplary conduct."

Judge Veeder instructed Marshal Power to keep the men within the jurisdiction of the court to allow the attorneys to begin proceedings for a writ of error.

HAS FIVE SONS IN THE ARMY.

Roosevelt Writes Congratulatory Letter to Paterson Widow.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Oct. 5.—Mrs. Alice Redyke, a widow with five sons serving in the Fifth New Jersey Infantry, now the 120th Infantry, U. S. A., has received this letter from Colonel Theodore Roosevelt:

Oyster Bay, Oct. 1, 1917.

Dear Mrs. Redyke: Good for you and your five sons. You may well feel proud of them. Yours sincerely,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Three of the Redyke boys are Sergeants, one is a corporal, and the fifth is a private. Mrs. Redyke said today that although she needed the support of the boys, she realized that their country needed them more than she did, and she would not stand in their way. Her remaining son, Paul, 16 years old, has said that as soon as he is old enough he will join his brothers.

NAVIES IN FULL ACCORD.

British-American Team Work Perfect, Says Secretary Daniels.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Co-operation between the British Admiralty and Vice Admiral Sims and other American naval officers, Secretary Daniels said today, has been complete since the outbreak of the war.

"The spirit shown at the Admiralty," Secretary Daniels said, "has been one of perfect frankness and co-operation. Our officers have had access to every bit of information which Admiralty officials have had in relation to submarine warfare. They have opened every door to Admiral Sims and his associates."

Reports of lack of co-operation between the two services, Secretary Daniels thought, arose from an incident early in the war, when a British manufacturer of a patented device wanted by the American Navy asked what was regarded as an exorbitant price. The matter was referred to the Admiralty, and the device is now being furnished at a reasonable rate.

W.H.MAXWELL OPERATED ON

City Superintendent of Schools is in a Serious Condition.

City Superintendent of Schools William H. Maxwell, who was operated upon on Thursday at the Flushing Hospital after a sudden intestinal attack at his home, 88 Franklin Place, Flushing, was said to be slightly better last night. Though apparently on the road to recovery, his condition must be considered as serious because of his advanced age, the hospital authorities said.

Mr. Maxwell is in his sixty-fifth year, and has not enjoyed good health for several years. The Board of Education recently granted him a leave of absence.

Phillips Exeter Alumni Dine.

Graduates of Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., dined at the Wellington last night. Amout thirty guests attended, among them being Thomas W. Lamont, an old Exeter man, now member of J. P. Morgan & Co. Several short addresses were made, Mr. Lamont being the speaker of the evening.

Signs Bill Repatriating Americans.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—President Wilson today signed the bill repatriating Americans who enlisted in allied armies before the United States entered the war.

THEATRES LIKELY TO RAISE PRICE TO $3.00

EXCLUSIVE OF THE WAR TAX

Winter Garden and Century, Also Homes of Big Musical Shows, Are Considering New Rate.

What is believed to be the first step toward a general increase in the price of theatre tickets will be taken in this city during the forthcoming engagement of Fred Stone at the Globe Theatre, when $3 will be charged for all seats in the orchestra. Two other theatres which will house big musical productions, the Century and the Winter Garden, are considering a similar increase. Exclusive of opening nights and New Year's Eve, $3 never has been charged in this city for regular theatrical attractions.

Bruce Edwards, general manager for Charles Dillingham, discussed the purposed step at the Globe yesterday in the absence of Mr. Dillingham. He declared that the cost of production had about doubled since the beginning of the war, and that theatre tickets were the only commodities which had not advanced in that time. A production such as the Fred Stone show, he said, which would have cost about $50,000 to stage three or four years ago, now costs about $100,000, and can no longer be profitably offered, in a theatre the size of the Globe, at $2 or $2.50.

The price of $3, in the case of the Globe Theatre, will be exclusive of the impending war tax of 10 per cent., so that after Dec. 1, when the tax becomes effective, the price of two orchestra seats bought at the box office will be $6.60. Lee Shubert said that no decision had yet been reached as to the scale of prices at the Winter Garden, but that if prices were raised to $3 the management would pay the tax out of that sum, thus getting only 20 cents more than the former price of $2.50. The tax measure now pending specifies that this tax must be paid by the patron.

Both Charles Dillingham and Florenz Ziegfeld were out of town yesterday, and Harry Askin, manager of the Century Theatre said that an increased scale for that house had been discussed, but that no decision had yet been reached. Marc Klaw said that no immediate increases were contemplated at the New Amsterdam Theatre, which houses big musical productions at $2.50.

The old figure of $2 has long been abandoned by the producers of musical shows, and even non-musical attractions now ask $2.50 on Saturday nights. The first show to fix upon $2.50 as the regular box office price was also a Fred Stone show, "Chin-Chin," which introduced the custom at the Globe Theatre three seasons ago. The general taking up of the plan by other managers is cited to indicate that the $3 rate will become equally popular, and that it will soon be the general admission price at all musical shows.

Two Opera Singers Arrive.

Two singers and the prompter of the Metropolitan Opera House arrived yesterday from Italy at an Atlantic port for the season, which commences next month. Minnie Egener, an American soprano, has been in Milan studying new rôles, and Giulio Rossi, Italian basso, has been home to visit his relatives. He was accompanied by Mario Marchese, the prompter.

MUSIC NOTES.

Lieutenant John Philip Sousa's concerts for the Red Cross will be given at Carnegie Hall this afternoon and tonight. He will appear at the head of the Great Lakes Naval Band, an organization of about 250 enlisted musicians.

Guy Maier and Lee Pattison will be heard at Aeolian Hall on the night of Monday, Oct. 15, in a program of compositions for two pianos.

Lillian Ammalee, an American pianist, will make her New York debut in a recital at Aeolian Hall on Friday night, Oct. 19.

Harold Bauer and Jacques Thibaud will make joint appearances at the Punch and Judy Theatre on the afternoons of Nov. 8, 15, and 26, when they will play the complete set of Beethoven sonatas for piano and violin.

Frederick Gunster, tenor, will give a song recital at Aeolian Hall on the night of Oct. 26.

Dai Buell, an American pianist who was heard in New York last season, will make her second appearance at Aeolian Hall in a recital on Thursday night, Oct. 25.

Mme. Elizabeth Rothwell, the original Madame Butterfly in Henry W. Savage's production, will be heard in recital at Aeolian Hall on Monday afternoon, Oct. 22.

The Zoellner Quartet, who are making their sixth tour of America this season, will give two recitals in New York and one in Brooklyn.

FOR NEW RULES FOR STREET

Chief Magistrate McAdoo Seeks Facts Concerning Pedestrians.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo urged in a statement yesterday that, in order to furnish statistics as a basis for further street regulation of automobiles and pedestrians, policemen making reports of accidents should set down on their reports their best opinion as to where the blame belonged. In his statement the Chief Magistrate says:

"How many pedestrians are actually careless in the use of the streets? How many pedestrians, for instance, cross the streets at other points than the regular crossings? We have no means of ascertaining figures as to this question unless there is a rule forbidding it, to be enforced by the police. How many pedestrians disregard the rules of the road, walking on the sirewalk in various ways? We do not know. But, on the other hand, we have accurate figures as to the number of chauffeurs, drivers and motormen brought into these courts each month for violating the laws of the State, the ordinances of the city, or the traffic regulations of the Police Department."

Magistrate McAdoo asserts that there will be no safe basis for making laws regarding the manner in which pedestrians should cross the streets until statistics have been gathered in the way he suggests. He adds that the practice of having the policemen find the cause of an accident prevails in European countries and is avoided here only to save the policeman trouble when accidents result in damage suits.

PAPER APPEARS AFTER RAID.

Federal Officials Examine Papers Seized in Freie Zeitung Office.

Government officers began an examination yesterday of the papers and documents seized in the offices of the New Jersey Freie Zeitung on Thursday night, when the two proprietors and three editors of the paper were arrested. The Government raid was not intended to prevent publication of the newspaper, which was issued yesterday morning as usual. It contained an account of the raid without comment.

Bail was furnished promptly for all of the men who were arrested, and they at once returned to work.

According to the Government officials, the articles complained of appeared between Aug. 6 and Sept. 15. In a column conducted in the English language by Benedict Prieth, there appeared on Aug. 15 this reference to the Pershing expedition to France:

"A French Port: American troops have landed here. As the boys left the transport they shouted: 'Are we downhearted? No!—News Item. If the boys are not downhearted in six months they may consider themselves lucky."

Otto A. Stiefel, attorney for the Freie Zeitung, went to Washington yesterday and filed a brief with the Postmaster General in answer to the action to show cause why the paper should not be barred from the mails.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Arrangements have been made by the Shuberts to build another theatre in Philadelphia, to be called the Sam S. Shubert Memorial Theatre. It will be constructed on the site of Horticultural Hall, at Broad and Manning Streets, and will cost approximately $1,000,000.

Merceita Esmonde, who has been acting in motion pictures recently, will return to the stage in Michael Morton's forthcoming play, "On with the Dance."

Harry and Emma Sharrock, a well-known vaudeville team, will be in the cast of the Justine Johnstone revue, "Over the Top."

Kate Douglas Wiggin, co-author of "Mother Carey's Chickens," will discuss her play at a meeting of the Maine Woman's Club at the Waldorf-Astoria this afternoon.

The complete cast for "The Barton Mystery," which the Shuberts will offer at the Comedy on the night of Oct. 15, includes A. E. Anson, Charlotte Granville, Mary Malleson, Jane Wheatley, Beatrice Prentiss, Marion Morgan, Henry Stanford, G. W. Ahson, Thomas O'Malley, and Arthur Row.

Sigmund Romberg, composer of the score of "Maytime" and of much of the Winter Garden music, has been drafted and ordered to report next Tuesday.

Claire Vernon, an American girl who has studied dancing in Russia, will be in Adolf Bolm's ballet in the Century revue.

"The Family Exit" will be withdrawn after tonight's performance at the Comedy. The theatre will remain dark for a week, and "The Barton Mystery" will be produced there on Oct. 15.

Henry Miller made his first appearance in the East in "Anthony in Wonderland," Monckton Hoff's comedy, at Buffalo last night. In the company are Joseph Kilgour, Florence Shirley, John L. Shine, and Marguerite St. John. The play will be the first attraction at the Henry Miller Theatre in November.

Word has been received from Jacques Copeau, who is in Paris, that he will arrive here with his company on Nov. 1. The Theatre du Vieux Colombier, of which Mr. Copeau is to be the director, will open on Nov. 20.

"A Cure for Curables," with William Hodge as the star, opened last night at the Trent Theatre, Trenton. The piece is a comedy by Earl Derr Biggers and Lawrence Whitman.

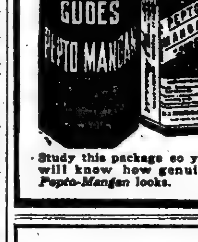
Your Child Must Be Strong

Nature starts most children right, and it is the parents' duty to keep them so. Happy spirits—eager appetite—deep refreshing sleep—the love of vigorous play—all these things a child must have in abundance now, if the budding man is to be adequately equipped to conquer in life's battles.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan

"The Red Blood Builder"

This time-tried tonic promotes energy and health by enriching and purifying the very stream of life—the blood. If your child is pale, nervous, and easily exhausted; if he is a spectator rather than a participant in the health-making games of childhood try a course of Pepto-Mangan. A beneficial result can be expected unless the child has an organic disease.



Study this package so you will know how genuine Pepto-Mangan looks.

Pepto-Mangan wards off anemia, and strengthens the constitution by putting iron in the blood, and creats multitudes of vigorous red blood cells; the poisons which generate in thin, sluggish blood are driven out. Rich, red blood invites robust health, and the invitation is usually accepted.

Children like Pepto-Mangan because of its sparkling color and its pleasant aromatic taste. It cannot impair digestion or injure the teeth.

Friendly Warning: Make certain that you get genuine Pepto-Mangan—Gude's, as there are many counterfeits. True Pepto-Mangan is never sold in bulk; it comes only in packages and bottles as pictured here. Read the circular wrapped around the bottle.

NOTICE TO MR. BENNETT.

The refusal of the New York Republican Committee, by a vote of nearly 4 to 1, to approve the candidacy of Mr. BENNETT indicates strongly, yet faintly in comparison with the real facts, the Republican sentiment of Manhattan. The majority in the Committee is by no means proportionate to the majority in the party in Manhattan. The devotees of "regularity," the politicians true to that somewhat pre-Adamite tradition, were there in force. Doubtless, too, many men eager to have Mr. MITCHEL nominated preserved their record of regularity by voting for the resolution, sure of defeat, indorsing Mr. BENNETT'S nomination. They approved mechanically the work of the primaries. None the less they see, as everybody sees except Mr. BENNETT, who pretends blindness, that he has no earthly chance of election. What is the use of being "regular" when "regularity" means that Judge HYLAN will be the next Mayor?

On the same night Judge HYLAN opened his mouth and spoke. It is to be hoped that there will be several repetitions of this self-disclosure before the next meeting of the Committee on Oct. 18. If it then approves the nomination of Mr. MITCHEL, it will follow the majority of the Republican Party. To help restore Tammany to the City Hall, to install there a Mayor whose unconscious comic genius seems to equal WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON'S, to betray honest city administration by creeping after a hopeless "regularity," is what no Republican politician of more than dawning intelligence will think of doing, which the mass of Republicans will have no hand in doing. Let alone the enormous injury to the city from a Tammany victory, let alone the "dark forces" behind the candidacy of Judge HYLAN, a decent regard for the welfare of the local Republican Party should prevent, and presumably will prevent, any Republican local organization, any Republican district leader with a head on his shoulders, from contributing to that end.

All the Republican County or Executive Committees have indorsed Fusion. Their votes to that effect are, as Mr. JOE HEDGES puts it, "just as regular as the primaries." The longer the campaign goes on, the lonelier will Mr. BENNETT find himself. The action of the New York County Committee is to be taken as a decorous and deliberate method of notifying him that the organization, that the Republicans of Manhattan, accept all the Republican ticket but him. No doubt the other County Committees will follow suit. The wisest thing he can do for himself, remembering the fine example of CHARLES LAMB damning his own play, is to say that while the law compels him to stay on the ticket, he would be obliged to his friends if they won't vote for him. Only a few Republicans need the advice.

FOR WAR IN THE AIR.

While the Germans were dropping four and a half tons of bombs on the roofs of London, intent upon the slaughter of noncombatants, the Entente Allies were dropping 207 tons on ammunition stores, military railways, and fortified places behind the German lines. Their work was less spectacular, was not in the line of "frightfulness," but was vastly more effective in a military sense. The Germans have killed too many persons in London, however, and destroyed too much private property. If the losses they have inflicted seem trivial from a military point of view, British indignation at the savagery of the assaults is amply justified. Retaliation in the circumstances is inevitable and the Allies are prepared to retaliate in a most effective way. Simultaneously with the official announcement by General SMUTS of the plans for the new aerial campaign in Europe is the publication of Secretary BAKER'S report of the progress made on this side of the Atlantic toward the establishment of effective forces for air warfare.

Under the law appropriating $640,000,000 for aviation, contracts have been let for the building of 20,000 war airplanes. Only 5,000 of these will be constructed in foreign workshops. The others are building here. Many American aviators are in France undergoing intensive training behind the battle line, while a large number of the air experts of the Allies have come to this country to instruct the thousands of young American fliers in our schools and on our huge aviation fields. The preparations for an extensive and powerful air service are going on in every branch. There will be no needless delays. The new motors will be ready as the other parts of the machines are assembled. We are to have flying batteries as large and as powerful as the Caproni's.

Mr. BAKER speaks most encouragingly. The results of the work are not yet visible, but it is enough to know that we shall soon be ready to reinforce our allies in their great campaign of air warfare against the deadly enemy who has been using his big machines chiefly to horrify civilians, to kill and maim women and children and old men. The war may not be won in the air. The blows we shall presently strike on the land, together with our allies, may be the principal factor in the victory that is sure to come. We have a navy eager to get into the fray. But the American program for military aviation shows that we shall be ready, when the time comes, to combat with all the Taubes and Gothas the Germans can send aloft, to put new obstacles in the way of the German artillery, to pass over the enemy's lines, and let the Germans know that we have not entered this war without a firm determination to do our share in all the operations and the means to put it into effect.

THE ARMY OF SMALL INVESTORS.

The millions subscribed to the new Liberty Loan by rich men and great corporations speak the patriotism of the comparatively few and look large on the record, but it is the piled-up small subscriptions of the many, it is the fifties and hundreds and five hundreds and thousands of the people, that must fill and overfill the loan. Millions by the millions, that is the only way in which the Government can get the money, the only way to win in the next three weeks this battle against Germany, for such it is as much as if our men were fighting in Flanders today. Every subscriber to the loan is a soldier of democracy. This, too, is an army of democracy. Let it be multitudinous, irresistible.

Corporations and companies, partnerships and individual employers, are making arrangements so that their employés may buy bonds easily by installment payments. The labor unions, with their sure democratic instinct, are urging their members, who need, at least, as little urging as anybody, to support with their money, as they are already supporting by the work of their hands and brains and by their contingents in the army and navy, the cause of equality against caste, of secure, industrious, lasting peace against the continual mulcting of pocket and life which undefeated German militarism would bring, as it has brought, upon the free world.

This is the fight of the common man. All of us are bound to take a part in it to the best of our ability. We must not be deceived by fat subscriptions, we must not flatter our reluctance to give up some luxury or superfluity, we must not yield to the old American habit of "Easy come, easy go." It is the people, and only the people, who can make the loan splendidly successful. It is their war. They must win it.

But why dwell on that save to make active and concrete the patriotism of the community? Within the reach of all but the very poor lies the best investment in the world for the best cause. Take all of it you can. Take it at once. A United States Government bond is the prime security. Buy $50 worth, buy $100, buy $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, all you can. You not only show your patriotism, but you get well paid for it and will never lose any sleep over its soundness. Fifty-seven per cent. of the subscriptions to the first Liberty Loan were in sums from $50 to $10,000. It was well done. The people can do better this time. Buy a Liberty bond! Be in this second drive against the Kaiser and all his works!

GERMAN VIEWS OF CZERNIN.

When a German paper comments on an Austrian utterance it has to keep one eye on Austria and bridle its tongue. What they think in Germany of Count CZERNIN'S Budapest speech their printed comments will not reveal. The Zeitung am Mittag uses the language of compliment, but compliments so worded as to bring up other ideas than those the newspaper appears to convey, if its readers should be at all cynical. "It is good," it says, for instance, "to hear a practical statesman pronounce views that heretofore were only heard from the lips of pacifists and Utopians." Is "good" what it means? And it explains with unnecessary meticulousness that if his speech appears to resemble "WILSON'S message of Jan. 22," there are yet great differences.

The Lokal-Anzeiger passes all its eulogies in its opening, and then proceeds to pull down the edifice it has erected. It points out that CZERNIN'S disarmament proposal is nothing more than what the Czar proposed in 1899, when he called the first Hague Conference, and that it was found impossible then. As for his idea that this will prevent "wars of revenge," the Lokal-Anzeiger refuses to entertain it; not because Germany will be revengeful, of course, but because the Allies will.

The Vossische Zeitung, too, places its compliments in the show window and then shows delicately the futility of an agreement for disarmament and arbitration. A new international law will be created by the war, and about the way to guarantee it the Vossische Zeitung does not leave its readers in doubt. It will not be by disarmament, for a disarmed nation will have no power, and consequently decisions by courts of arbitration will have behind them no means of enforcement. "After this," says the newspaper, "it will be impossible to rely merely on "international treaties." Not because Germany has violated any treaties, but because England has, through her plot with Belgium to despoil Germany.

It is not necessary to follow the other comments, among which only the Tageblatt fails to sprinkle deftly a little poison in the bouquet. It is very difficult to believe that Count CZERNIN spoke as he did in good faith. His artless proposal that the war be ended by a disarmament agreement which would not be carried out during the life of "the present generation" too strongly suggests the real German-Austrian purpose back of that whole disarmament camouflage. But, if he sought to deceive the enemy and the neutrals, he plainly went too far to suit Germany. Germany prefers the Michaelis-Kühlmann way, which is to deceive the enemy only by the emptiest generalities. It does not like the Czernin way of descending to details. If the German way shows a more profound contempt for the enemy's intellect, if it treats us as children while the Austrian treats us as being at least half-grown, yet Germany has great confidence in her method.

A MILITARY NECESSITY.

Senator MCCUMBER is mistaken, of course, in his opinion that the elevation of the commander of our expeditionary forces and the Chief of Staff to the rank of General is merely a matter of social distinction. The phrase, we gather from Washington dispatches, is the Senator's own. But the present revival of the rank of General in our army is not for distinction's sake, but a necessary measure of military regulation, as we are entering a great war with armed land forces numbering nearly 2,000,000. Obviously, the fact that the armies of our allies are commanded by Field Marshals and Generals is not the only or the principal reason why the head of our most important field army is raised to a high rank. With a field commander ranking as General, it seems essential that the Chief of Staff, who is the military head of the whole establishment, should not have a lower rank.

Probably at least two more Generals will be appointed in due course, the rank to be held in each case only for the duration of the war. Similarly, the new Lieutenant Generals will return to their lower rank when the war is over. That is true of most of the newer Major Generals. We have never before had a military force comparable to that which we are now getting into shape, and its size and many branches demand the temporary appointment of officers of higher rank than we have had hitherto. These are war appointments, and the American citizen who looks with disfavor on rank and show need not fear that democracy is in danger. In the navy the rank of Admiral has been revived in a similar way. All fleet commanders are Admirals while they hold the command. When they are superseded they become Rear Admirals again.

THE COHALAN EVIDENCE.

The Government at Washington promptly responded to the resolution of the New York Legislature asking that the evidence in its possession tending to show the unfitness of DANIEL F. COHALAN to hold the office of Justice of the Supreme Court in this State be forwarded to Albany. Meanwhile, the Legislature adjourned. It is intimated that should the Governor consider the evidence of sufficient weight, and the case sufficiently grave, he may summon the Legislature to meet in extraordinary session to take up the accusation they have against Justice COHALAN.

The evidence is already in the hands of the Governor, it was in the hands of the Legislature. Washington could do little more than supply documentary proof of the authenticity and correctness of the published memorandum found in the papers of the German spy, VON IGEL, who was an employé of Captain VON PAPEN. Justice COHALAN has denied the charge that he urged Germany to undertake in Ireland warlike operations against England. Any statement made by a Justice of the Supreme Court must receive great consideration. Ordinarily a presumption of truth would be overwhelming. In this case, we must seriously weigh the evidence and probabilities.

Some aid to the formation of a fixed belief may be gained from a comparison of the tone and substance of the von Igel memorandum with the contemporary public utterances of Justice COHALAN. If the sentiments of the memorandum are wholly at war with the views known to be entertained by the Justice, the presumption must run powerfully in his favor. Let us make the comparison. We append in parallel columns the von Igel memorandum and some extracts from the speech delivered by Justice COHALAN at a meeting of the Friends of Irish Freedom at Pittsfield, Mass., on April 30, 1916, thirteen days after the date of the memorandum:

THE VON IGEL MEMORANDUM.

New York, April 17, 1916. Judge COHALAN requests the transmission of the following remarks: The revolution in Ireland can only be successful if supported from Germany, otherwise England will be able to suppress it, even though it be only after hard struggles. Therefore help is necessary. This should consist primarily of aerial attacks in England and a diversion of the fleet simultaneously with Irish revolution. Then, if possible, a landing of troops, arms, and ammunition in Ireland, and possibly some officers from Zeppelins. This would enable the Irish ports to be closed against England and the establishment of stations for submarines on the Irish coast and the cutting off of the supply of food for England. The services of the revolution may therefore decide the war. He asks that a telegram to this effect be sent to Berlin.

THE PITTSFIELD SPEECH.

The central outstanding fact of the whole situation is that England has failed and is beaten in this war. The rising in Ireland is the greatest and most effective blow that had ever been directed at England. * * * Their fight, [the allusion is to the Easter revolt in Dublin,] although they may be beaten, has succeeded. * * * It has shown the hollowness of English power and has demonstrated that a united Ireland is of necessity a free Ireland. It will awaken the Irish all over the world to the real condition of affairs—in America, in the colonies, in Great Britain itself, and in the army and navy. It will destroy the confidence of her allies and redouble the energy of her foes. It will spread all over the British Empire with Gallipoli and Kut-el-Amara, win the Indians, hearten the Egyptians, and show Japan upon what a weak reed she leans. It will give Ireland and her cause a place at the councils of nations and will make her again an empire and not a British island. In a word, it has started her on the real road to freedom and liberty and made certain that she will emerge again among the nations of the world.

So we find that on April 30 Justice COHALAN was expressing views, opinions, and desires identical with those to which he gave expression in the von Igel memorandum dated April 17, thirteen days earlier. The identity is unmistakable. The Sinn Fein revolt had failed. He points out in the von Igel memorandum how it can be made successful, the only way. Germany must support it by landing troops, arms, and ammunition in Ireland, and possibly officers from the Zeppelins; there should be aerial attacks in England, a diversion of the fleet to aid the Irish revolution. In the Pittsfield speech he insists that although the Dublin revolt was put down, nevertheless it will destroy the confidence of England's allies and "redouble the energy of her foes." The memorandum points out specifically in what direction the energies of England's foes should be applied—by landing armed forces in Ireland, by aerial attacks in England and by the use of the fleet against her. The speech and the memorandum taken together are entirely consistent, they obviously form parts of one conception, there is a presumption which it would require positive and direct evidence to remove that they are the fruit of one mind, of one trend of thought.

We do not see how the Legislature could fail to act on such evidence as this. The author of the memorandum urged Germany to land troops in Ireland and to murder British subjects by dropping bombs from airplanes. With England and with Germany at that time we were at peace. In urging one of these Powers to attack the other in this manner Justice COHALAN violated the laws of the United States.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Indubitable Evidence of Progress.

Much more significant than the relation between the number of British prisoners taken by the Germans on the western front since July 31 and the number of German prisoners taken by the British in the same time is the fact that in those two months the British have captured 332 heavy and field guns, while the Germans have not succeeded in depriving their most hated enemies of even one weapon of that sort. That the German prisoners in British hands numbered 51,455, as against 15,065 going the other way, is, of course, a highly satisfactory showing for the Good Cause, but, in itself, the difference might indicate nothing more than that in one particular encounter the British happened to be notably successful or that a single German division had been as notably unfortunate. It would prove little as to the general progress of the war.

The difference as regards captured cannon is an essential difference, for, in itself, it does demonstrate beyond question that during this period no German assault has been pushed even temporarily beyond the advanced trenches of the British—has never penetrated deeply enough to reach the places where the artillery is posted. On the other hand, it demonstrates that the British have never done worse than hold their own, and that again and again they have advanced so rapidly and so far that their foes were unable to accomplish the first duty of a retreating army—the withdrawal of their guns to a place of safety. That this evidence only confirms the information derived from other sources is true, but it emphasizes as well as confirms the tenor of the daily dispatches, and leaves no doubt that the motion of the line of contact between the two forces has been steadily, and not always slowly, toward the east. Yet the Germans continue to talk of the military situation as favorable to themselves! They know better, or at any rate their Generals and probably all their other officers are well aware that their military situation, if not immediately desperate, contains no possibility of victory, and is more than ominous as to the practicability of prolonged resistance.

There is a point beyond which an army cannot retreat and remain a fighting force, and that point, according to invariable experience, is reached long before the retreating army has been reduced to nothing.

A Procession Without One Critic.

New York has seen many parades in which the number of marchers was greater than in the one that moved down Fifth Avenue on Thursday. Occasionally there have been parades that attracted larger crowds of spectators, and there have been a few which, considered merely as spectacles, might have been more impressive to the eyes of a stranger ignorant of the nature of the occasion. That much admitted, however, one can begin to use superlatives in describing the parade of the Red Cross women. Indeed, comparatives are hardly applicable to a demonstration that was in so many ways without precedent.

Women have marched before, of course, though it was only a few years ago that we had our first opportunity to see what they could do in an activity previously regarded as distinctively masculine. The suffragists, without material inaccuracy, can be called the first to break the ancient ban, and the effectiveness with which they did it on a well-remembered day won the sincere admiration of many an observer who was unsympathetic with their demands. That it converted many to their cause is doubtful, but it did do not a little, probably, for them by earning reluctant admission that courage, determination, and organizing power had been strikingly demonstrated by the marching thousands.

What the suffragists did then the Red Cross women did Thursday, and they had in their favor the fact that for them there was no antagonism to overcome, that fullest sympathy and approval were theirs to start with, and that every observer wished them success in the undertaking to which they had devoted their energies, and, if necessary, their lives. It is no wonder, therefore, that they walked proudly, with heads held high, and that they took the continuous applause of the deeply interested multitudes with the air of conscious desert.

There was, too, a splendid pulchritude about this parade that more than made up for the absence of the gleaming splendors formerly shown, but shown no longer, by soldiers. The Red Cross uniforms have the beauty of color and the beauty of simplicity. They have the charm of direct adaptation to purpose and the successful attainment of it. Best of all, they are designed for peace as well as for war, and serve equally well in both.

Supply Is More Than Price.

There would be more of public confidence in the Fuel Commission, and more of public gratitude would be accorded to its members, if they were to convince the anxious millions now confronting the approach of a hard Winter that the supply of coal as well as its price was to receive effective attention from these great men.

It does the householder or the manufacturer not much good to assure him that he is not to be robbed this Winter by ruthless exploiters of his necessities. That is all very well, of course, but he is even more interested in getting coal than in getting it cheaply, and there lurks deep in his troubled mind the suspicion that no means has yet been invented for making men sell coal if they are not satisfied with the price they are permitted to charge for it.

Already the dealers are talking about going out of business if the Commission's schedule of rates is not raised. If they do, how are they to be coerced, and how are houses to be heated withal?

War Duty of Peace Lovers.

It is said authoritatively that the German soldiers wear a medal with the head of the Deity upon it and the inscription, "Smite to kill—no questions asked on the judgment day."

For pure, animal-like ferocity this cannot be beaten, and the one enemy to world peace is this spirit, which must be eliminated. One drop of Prussian yeast would leaven an entire universe; so, as Chairman of an American (not pro-German) peace organization, I beg that every peace league will do as we have done. When war was declared we suspended automatically, and will not resume peace activities until such a time as our efforts are needed to help reconstruct a war-worn world. There must be no distortion of facts, no fanaticism.

The public conscience thoroughly aroused is seldom in the wrong. It has spoken. We must march with it and help to mitigate the sufferings of war.

War? No, this is a crusade for peace with righteousness. We want no other kind. We Americans, nourished on the blessings peace has given us, must give back to the motherland that has sheltered us all that we have and are, spirit, and body, too, if needs must be. ANNIE J. GILBERT,
President Universal Peace League.

Germany Afraid to Speak.

Germany is working out a publicity plan of establishing the delusion that she is the prime peace mover and seeker and wisher of the world. It is for home consumption, to keep the German people content with their Government and policies, or it is to furnish a topic of conversation and newspaper articles to take the attention of this country off the more important object of preparing to win the war.

What is the special point at this time in noting any peace talk from Germany until she comes down to a statement of terms which are somewhere within reasonable bounds of what the Allies would consider? Germany cannot do so now. It is evident to the whole world. She knows that it would cause such a change in the rearrangement of issues at home that the Government could not possibly survive it.

Mrs. Catt to the Anti-Suffragists.

Mrs. Catt's letter to the ladies of the Women's National Anti-Suffrage Association reminds me of a similar letter which she sent two years ago to the Executive Committee of the Man Suffrage Association Opposed to Political Suffrage for Women. The suit threatened then was never brought. We still live, full of compassion for the hysteria which always invades the suffragist leaders toward the close of a political campaign, and more convinced than ever that it is for the public welfare that women should keep out of politics. Far better the red cross which I have just witnessed on the nurses' breasts than the yellow suffrage banner.

CAPRONI AIR LINERS.

Their Plan for a Rome-New York Service After the War.

Before the year 1915 the name of Caproni was scarcely known by anybody. It has now become a common noun in the Italian language and it bids fair to become as well known throughout the world as the name of Marconi. The latter gave wings to words, the former is giving steady wings to men. It is not what Gianni Caproni has done and will continue to do during this war that will immortalize his name. For the present he is devoting his untiring energy and his genius to the prosecution of the war and is doing all he can to facilitate victory for the Allies, but what is nearest to his heart is aviation after the war.

His program for the post-bellum period is grandiose, spectacular. I had a vision of it one evening last March. I went to see the Caproni brothers, Gianni and his faithful collaborator, Federico, at a hotel in Rome, just before leaving for America, with the intention of asking them for an interview, about their work, for the American press. They refused to grant it, saying, in their modesty, that they had nothing to tell me that could interest the American public. We started to talk, however, and our conversation soon turned on the subject that is predominant in their thoughts. Their words were like the words of a dreamer; but there was nothing in the tone of their voices or in their expression that bespoke the visionary. They were calm, they showed no enthusiasm; in fact, they were entirely unconscious of the sense of bewilderment that they were causing in my spirit as they proceeded in the revelation of their plans.

I am not authorized to say much about those new monsters of the air; most of what I heard was confidential, but it will not be long perhaps before the whole world will hear of them. What I can say for the present, without betraying the confidence of any one—especially since I have seen statements somewhat to the same effect in the American press—is that shortly after the cessation of the war I am perfectly convinced there will be established "air lines" between Italy and England and between Italy and America. The distance between Rome and New York will be covered in a little over thirty hours' continuous travel. There will be two stops, one some place in Portugal and the other on one of the Azores Islands. The schedule time for the trip will probably be forty-eight hours. In addition to the passengers, these "air liners" will carry, it seems, mail and newspapers, as well as small luggage for the passengers. A direct line between London and Halifax is also contemplated, without an intermediary stop. This distance will be covered in about twenty hours.

I need not make any comments on these plans. Astounding as they may seem, I think that the readers, in view of what has already been accomplished, will have no difficulty in believing in the possibility of their execution.

The name of Caproni, I am confident, will give as much lustre to Italian science and daring as did the names of Columbus, Amerigo Vespucci, and the Cabot brothers at the beginning of modern history.

Silence on War Measures.

I was very pleased to notice a letter in your issue of Oct. 3 entitled "Enemies Are Listening." I can not only confirm what the writer says about the warning signs posted in all public places in France, but would also like to call your attention to the same state of affairs in Italy. In that country notices read somewhat as follows:

"To Military Men: It is the duty of every officer and enlisted man to refrain from speaking of or mentioning matters which might be of use to the enemy.

"To Civilians: It is the duty of every good civilian to refrain from asking questions or seeking information of military or naval men."

These are not the exact words of the notice, but the sense is the same. Mr. Smith's experience of overhearing information which might be of great interest to the enemy is a common one at present. We in the United States are apt to underestimate the value of care in such matters.

HOMELESS.

Since there is nowhere sanctuary more
For any living thing, in lair or nest—
No refuge from the ravening wolves of war—
Where will the nightingales, flight-weary, rest?

In crimson horror vestured, from the trenches
Death, furious, leaps; the vine, with flaming flail,
Beats down; from ancient roots, the forest wrenches,
To thrash his harvest, human, stark and pale!

While grim on every crag and mountain peak
Which guards the approach to southern paradise,
Embattled hosts their adversaries seek,
And man alone, where eagles dare not, flies.

Frail nightingales, loved songsters, must they perish
With so much else of beauty, doomed to feel
War's curse which falls on all men most should cherish,
Prey to war's thieves that from the future steal?

Then will a glory pass from Spring in Devon,
Remembering through the blossom-fragrant night;
The changeless palm beneath a silent heaven
Will wait in vain her minstrels of delight.

Then nevermore their sweet, memorial spell
Will charm a sigh from Keats' yew-guarded urn;
Alas! if we must weep for Philomel!
If, like his brother, he shall not return!

Or, sadder, if in some scarred vale surviving,
His shall not be Love's utterance supreme,
From rapture unto rapture heavenward striving,
But Grief's, where winds of desolation scream

About such ruins as a fiend might toss
Above the relics of a god new-slain,
His tree of song, a shrapnel shattered cross
Whereon Christ bleeds once more—oh, bitter pain!

For nowhere there is sanctuary more
For any living thing, in lair or nest—
No covert and no housing and no rest!

HOUSING A WAR PROBLEM.

Proper Shelter for the Army of Industrial Workers an Undertaking Too Big for Private Capital.

By CHARLES HARRIS WHITAKER,
Editor, The Journal of the American Institute of Architects.

Mr. Hoover has wisely observed, I believe, that victory in this war will rest with the side capable of feeding itself the longest. May I submit, with all deference, that shelter is equally important?

Our preparations for war cannot be halted. On the contrary, they must be expedited to the utmost. Therefore, shortening the period in which we can bring our full strength to bear will enable us to save in our food consumption. As the shortness of that period is dependent upon our skill in producing war equipment, and as that in turn is dependent upon our ability to provide housing accommodations for our workers, it can be seen that shelter is a vital question.

Of the gravity of this question the Administration at Washington is fully cognizant. The shortage of industrial housing accommodations and the congestion in war centres have increased at a pace which was not looked for and which very possibly could not have been anticipated. Our industrial expansion has moved with such rapidity that conditions have arisen to produce congestion in an unexpected manner. That it now hampers our war production is known to all who are in any way familiar with this phase of the war. That immediate measures looking to its relief are now under way is a source of the greatest gratification.

Unhappy as the reference may be, it is now pertinent to observe that the application of science to the housing of workers, as carried out by Germany during the last two decades, was no more than a part of her great scheme of war preparation. She foresaw the demands that industry would make upon war, both in preparation for and in the conduct of it. Thus her vast housing enterprises, which have been cited the world over as examples of wise governmental enterprise, had their definite part in the great purpose.

England has had to learn these lessons, and the extraordinary house building undertakings which she has carried on under war pressure are one of the remarkable developments of the war. Under the Defense of the Realm act, the British Government has had large powers under which to deal with this question. No such powers exist in the United States, at the moment, but it has become imperative that they be conferred. The present emergency is so serious that its solution is impossible without Government intervention. In spite of the housing undertakings now in progress, financed by private capital, no adequate measure of relief is possible unless Government funds are made available. Here, as in England, private capital is deterred from this form of investment, because of the uncertainty involved. England has advanced funds to manufacturers, for the purpose of building houses, wherever proper arrangements could be consummated, but in the main she has employed her own Ministry of Munitions as the director of the great housing undertakings which the war made necessary.

Early in the war England prohibited the raising of rents. This has acted as a stabilizing factor to a high degree. Under the Defense of the Realm act, she acquired the right to take land for housing, and to take unused buildings. Later, under the Billeting act, she was given the right to fix prices for lodgings, but this act is so recent that no estimate of its value can be made.

The problem in the United States will be solved only by enabling the Government to take land for housing purposes and by providing Government funds with which to erect, or aid in the erection of, houses for workers. It has been said to me, in discussions of this subject, "Suppose that after the war these houses prove a total loss?" The answer to which is that no loss so suffered can possibly be challenged in face of the saving it would effect. At the same time, with care and careful analysis, it will no doubt be possible to make these houses a permanent asset. England has built but little in a temporary manner. She found that the difference in cost between temporary and permanent housing, taking into account the application of the public utilities such as water, gas, light, streets, and the usual community accessories, was so little as to make it too wasteful to build temporarily. This was done only in cases where time left no alternative.

Lack of proper housing is a crucial defect in our scheme of production. Plain business prudence demands that it be remedied quickly and along lines which will give the minimum of labor instability and the maximum of industrial productivity. And time is the essence of such a program. It is impossible to overstress the necessity for taking the promptest action. Industrial organization is a key to the duration of the war. The key to industrial organization is proper living conditions.

UNIFORM DAYLIGHT SAVING.

England, Canada and United States Should Keep Time Together.

I spent several months last year in England and Scotland. Every place that I visited the daylight saving of one hour was much appreciated by all classes of the people. For the first time a Daylight Saving bill was passed in Newfoundland this year, and came into operation on June 11, when all clocks and watches were put forward one hour. Time will be put back on Sunday night, Sept. 30; 9 o'clock will become 8 o'clock. On account of the lateness in opening the Legislative Assembly of Newfoundland the bill only provided for 1917. The Prime Minister, Sir Edward Morris, is in New York at the present time.

In conversation with him a few days ago I found he was strongly of the opinion that a uniform bill for all time should be passed to conform with that of Great Britain, which begins in April and ends in September. That is to say, the United States Congress, the Government of the Dominion of Canada, and the Government of Newfoundland should pass a bill to be uniform with the Daylight Saving bill of the British Isles.

We only want the United States and Canada to join the rest of the world in conferring one of the greatest blessings that possibly could be given to the millions of people in these two countries, without money and without price. I am convinced that in this country, its vastness beyond the ken of man, the passing of the Daylight Saving bill would conduce to the physical, mental, moral and financial welfare of the nation, and that it is deserving of the support of all classes of this great country.

It was estimated that the saving to Great Britain by the operation of saving daylight for the Summer 1917 would reach about $20,000,000, equivalent to the interest at 4 per cent. on $500,000,000. What the saving in artificial light and other economies would mean to a country like the whole of the United States in one hour for each day for six months would be a very difficult problem to arrive at. If a saving of $20,000,000 for Great Britain is a fair estimate, then we might assume that, in a country like the States, where everything is done on such a large scale, the saving would reach the enormous sum of $100,000,000. Capitalized at 4 per cent. this would mean $2,500,000,000.

I understand, not many months ago, at the Hotel Astor, there was a great meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, at which every important Chamber was represented, and that resolutions in support of a Daylight Saving bill for the country were carried unanimously with the greatest enthusiasm. I believe one effect of the bill would be a prolongation of life to millions of people. All attempts to deride it or laugh it out of court have failed.

I was associated with the late Mr. Willett of London from 1907 up until he died in 1915. He did not live to see his pet scheme put into operation. Enormous mountains of prejudice, of apathy, of impatience, and of incredulity have been removed. One reflection surely is sufficient to justify this bill in any one's eyes. We have only to imagine the spectacle presented by the country, say, at 8 o'clock on any June morning. If it were possible for any one spectator to see the whole of the country spread before him as it would be, for instance, if he flew over it in an airplane, he would see that, while nature was in her most beautiful dress, while the light was clearest, while the air was the freshest, with the exception of agricultural laborers, &c., here and there, the entire population of the country was sleeping behind bolted doors and covered windows. We shut up our windows, lock fair daylight out, and make ourselves an artificial night! Then, if the same spectator could see only New York at 11 o'clock at night, he would see practically the whole population still awake, working by artificial and costly light.

I shall look forward with much pleasure and interest to Congress passing a Daylight Saving Bill—uniform with that of England, Canada, and Newfoundland. Any objections to the bill, then, must be ill-considered and not properly understood.

Once a German, Now an American.

I have received from Carl Sholz of Chicago, a prominent German-American of that city, a letter which contains several paragraphs which seem to me so pertinent that I have asked and received his permission to publish them. DOUGLAS W. JOHNSON.
New York, Oct. 3, 1917.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 24, 1917.

My Dear Sir:

I was born and educated in Germany and came to this country on a visit some thirty years ago, and, after several months' stay, decided to remain, and in due time became a citizen.

I have always from the beginning, and many years before the war came up, respected this country as my own, because I liked the people and the form of Government, even though at times I did not agree with some of the phases thereof. I cannot understand why any one who has left a country for the purpose of bettering his status elsewhere should have any particular ties to the country he left. To me it always seemed like the man who obtained a divorce and later on married some one else. He divorced his first wife because he was not satisfied with her, and I am sure the new wife would not appreciate any strong affiliation for the discarded one.

I am not at all in accord with the methods of warfare which Germany has adopted, and the difficult thing for me to realize is that my former play and class mates should be engaged in warfare so brutal and fiendish. I am sure that it is not the wish of the people, but that the governmental power is supreme. CARL SHOLZ.

Section 209 and Partnerships.

Not only does Section 209 penalize enterprise and talent by taxing earned incomes at a much higher rate than unearned incomes, but the exemption of $6,000 is itself a "joker." A careful reading of the act shows that if several persons are engaged in a partnership only one exemption of $6,000 is allowed. In case of a firm of architects or lawyers, for example, composed of three members, the exemption provided is not $6,000 for each member, but $6,000 for the three. Consequently each, in reality, must pay, in addition to all other income taxes, 8 per cent. on all his professional earnings above $2,000.

It should also be noted that this supertax on the fruits of labor is imposed in entire disregard of whether the earnings exceed or fall short of the earnings during the "pre-war" period.

Members of the professions have demonstrated their willingness and ability to render patriotic service, usually at great personal sacrifice. Do they not deserve at least as fair treatment in the matter of taxation as "remittance men" who have income but no occupation? REID L. CARR.

Sailors Want Knitted Garments.

I am writing you, as a sailor who is acquainted with the facts, in order to offset the bad effects of a rumor that was circulated recently throughout the country.

This report led a great many citizens to believe and understand that the sailors could not use the woolen outfits that our patriotic mothers and sisters have been for months so patiently knitting. The rumor stating that they do not keep out the cold and that furthermore we, the sailors, would not be allowed to wear them. And the worst of it is some people who would like to knit (still "do their bit") still believe this to be true.

Nothing is further from the truth than this false report or rumor that has already done so much harm. Our sailors and the soldiers, too, are allowed to wear these woolen clothes; they want them, they need them, and to pull through the Winter as one they must have them, and more than ever before, because Government clothes that are suitable and which fit well are so scarce and so difficult to get when most urgently needed.

If any people already think that the sailors are all supplied with warm Winter clothes, this is not so. Some boys have outfits, but many others have no one to knit for them. Our enlisted men in the navy who come from the Southern States feel the cold more than the Northerners, and there are many of them who would be glad to write a letter of appreciation to some one who would donate to them a woolen outfit.

Gorgeous Symbolic Episodes of Nations, with America as Rousing Climax—Cause Aided $50,000.

All social roads led yesterday to the National Red Cross pageant held at the Rosemary Open Air Theatre, on the estate of Roland B. Conklin at Huntington, L. I. More than 5,000 persons witnessed the spectacle, which proved to be one of the most elaborate dramatic events ever staged out of doors. The proceeds of the performance, estimated at about $50,000, will go to carry on the work of the Red Cross on the battlefields of Europe.

A film was also made of the production, to be shown all over the world, and it is expected that the cinema will roll up many thousands more for the cause of humanity.

The pageant was the personal offering of the foremost players of the stage, and several hundred professionals and society girls took part in the various episodes.

Nature also contributed largely to the success of the undertaking, for the spectacle was unfolded against a background of natural beauty that would be hard to surpass, and under ideal atmospheric conditions. The sun went under the clouds during the Russian episode, but this only added to realism of the scene, and the purplish mist from Long Island Sound, which rose as the afternoon waned, afforded an appropriate setting for the symbolic pictures.

King John in Royal Barge.

A lagoon, with bluish cast waters, divided the natural stage, from the amphitheatre where swans swam in royal leisure, where beautiful maidens and fierce-looking Tritons disported in symbolic scenes, and where King John came sailing in his royal barge. There were many theatrical surprises throughout the performance. A waterfall gushed forth from the rocks, under a picturesque stone bridge, during the Italian episode, and at the close of the first part a curtain of steam and mist rose thirty feet into the air, behind which a change of settings was made.

There were thrilling moments also, especially when one of the six chargers in the French episode came near plunging itself and rider into the lagoon. One of the most effective scenes was when Jeanne D'Arc, represented by Ina Claire, alone on the stage, as a simple shepherd girl, listened to the voices.

While the spectators were assembling, coming by motor and special train, Lieutenant John Philip Sousa led his Great Lakes Naval Training Station Band of 250 men on the rockclad green overlooking the great amphitheatre. Boy Scouts escorted dowagers and debutantes down the steep incline, and pretty society girls and actresses, in Red Cross garb, sold programs.

Orchestra Hidden in Trees.

An orchestra of fifty pieces, selected from the Symphony Society of New York and conducted by David Mannes and Victor Kolar, played on a rocky prominence, concealed by Romanesque pine and poplar trees, for the pageant. There was much enthusiasm during the scenes that tapped the assembly's patriotism. Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the Red Cross War Council, viewing the pageant from one of the $250 boxes, declared it to be the most magnificent he had ever witnessed.

Two special trains from the Pennsylvania station brought the players and musicians out during the forenoon. But the first returning special was an hour late in leaving Huntington, and did not arrive in the city until after curtain time. En route a representative of the Red Cross announced that if any of the players would be affected by the delay the Red Cross would protect them.

Welcome Genius of Enlightenment.

It was 2:30 when the action of the first part, a series of symbolic scenes illustrating the achievements of the allied nations, commenced. The stage was set with a great central altar. In the prologue, the pupils of Florence Fleming Noyes, in filmy costume and bare feet of the Greek vestals, danced in welcome to the Genius of Enlightenment, impersonated by Edith Wynne Matthison, whose fine voice rose clear as a bell. Invoking the powers of earth and of the skies, she dedicated the altar to peace.

Then came the first episode, the Flemish, in which Douglas J. Wood appeared as the Herald. Ethel Barrymore, as Flanders, entered with her escort, followed by the four cities, Bruges, Ghent, Ypres, and Louvain, with Kitty Gordon, Margaret Moreland, Adelaide Prince, and Olive Tell as the leading figures.

The Italian episode, with Paul Chaflin as Director, was fraught with symbolism. The gigantic figure of the Alps, Dr. Montgomery Irving, poised on the stone bridge, released the waters of the Mediterranean and the Adriatic, symbolized by Annette Kellermann and Josephine Drake, who swept through the lagoon, both with two vast tails, the former in a net of gold.

Meantime, a huge banner of tapestry revealed a group of historic personages, Ernest Lawford as Dante, Reginald Mason, as Giotto, and Frank Craven, Lorenzo di Medici, who bowed the knee to Italy, represented by Clara Joel, and then deposed each a symbolic subject, upon the altar, as Flanders had deposited the symbol of the fleece. Irene Fenwick appeared as the Herald.

English Episode Colorful.

The English episode was colorful and dignified, with action, too, when King John tried to destroy and then craftily signed the Magna Charta. Norman Trevor was Herald, and George Backus a stately King. Marjorie Wood appeared as the Queen, Maclyn Arbuckle as Fitz Walter, and Lumsden Hare the Archbishop of Canterbury. Frederic Truesdell and Frank Keenan were also in the royal group. Of course the great charter was also placed upon the central altar.

There was a riot of color and action in the Russian episode, of which Mrs. John Alden Carpenter was the director. When John Barrymore as the tyrant, on a palanquin supported by slaves, passed sentence upon the fugitive, impersonated by George F. Smithfield, at the village fair, the effect was like a Bakst frieze. A religious procession, with a quartet of men's voices, added to the realism. The peasant dancers were from Adolph Bolm's company. Grant Stewart was the Herald, and Alexander Carr and Barney Bernard the Cossacks.

The French episode was one reflecting gorgeous luxury and staged by Ben Ali Haggin. The familiar story of Jeanne d'Arc was told with power and beauty, after Eugene O'Brien had appeared as the Herald.

Guy Favière appeared as the Dauphin, and Vincent Serrano was the Chamberlain, who posed as the King. William Rock, as the Jester, and Frances White as the Page, were entertaining features of the court life with its background of mail and blooded horses. Mrs. Ben Ali Haggin and Clifton Webb danced the pavane before the King prior to the coronation. Others in this episode were Hal Burrows, Edward Boring, Harry Davenport, Ivy Troutman, Aimé Dalmores, Brian Hooker, William Faversham, Jr., Edward Ireland, and George Palmer.

A thrilling episode brought the first part to the close, with the triumph of war. Paul Swan appeared as war, and the dance of fulfillment was interrupted by smoke and thunder, while the warriors of Mars scattered the offerings of the nations from the altar of peace.

The Drawing of the Sword.

The "Drawing of the Sword," the second part, was a dramatic statement of the Allies' cause in the war.

Alice Fischer recited the prologue, [illegible] (Blanche Yorska,) Liberty, (Gladys Hanson,) and Justice, (Howard Kyle,) took their places in the high court, before which the allied nations plead their cause. First, Serbia, typified by Tyrone Power, then Belgium with her orphaned children and stricken people. Ethel Barrymore, as Belgium, clad in black, feelingly pleaded her cause, and to her defense came England, with E. H. Sothern as the leading figure, and France, represented by Rita Jolivet.

The cry of Armenia (Helen Ware) was heard, and Eva Le Gallienne sprang forth as the new Russia when the haughtey leader of imperialism (Richard Bennett) was overthrown. Japan, Poland, Portugal, and Rumania, made their appeal.

Then came the climax when Liberty and Justice called to America, and the great assembly rose to its feet when Marjorie Rambeau, with a detachment from the Fighting Sixty-Ninth, entered and saluted her allies, pledging her sword to their common cause, while the hills rang with the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The book of the pageant was by Joseph Lindon Smith of Boston and Thomas Wood Stevens, President of the Pageantry Association of the United States. Daniel Frohman was Chairman of the casting committee.

Mrs. Robert Bacon was Chairman of the Board of Patrons and Patronesses, which included two hundred prominent men and women of society.

EXPLAIN WHITE RATS SUIT.

Goldie Pemberton's Action Aimed at Former Officers Only.

In connection with the suit of Goldie Pemberton, a member of the White Rats Actors' Union, for an accounting from former officers of the organization, in which it is charged that $200,000 has been misapplied by these officers, it was pointed out yesterday that the alleged misapplication occurred before the present officers were elected.

This statement was made in justice to James William FitzPatrick, International President; Edward Clark, the composer, who is International Vice President, and Harry Mountford, International Secretary-Treasurer.

It is conceded that the alleged diversion of funds occurred in 1911 and 1912, and that when the present officers took charge they were helpless to remedy the condition.

INSURANCE BILL APPROVED.

Adopted by Senate in the Form Proposed by the President.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The last important measure on the program for adjournment of Congress tomorrow, the Administration soldiers and sailors' insurance measure, was made ready for President Wilson's signature tonight with the adoption by the Senate of the conference report, already approved by the House.

As finally drafted, the bill is in substantially the form as proposed by the Administration. On the so-called Smoot amendment, increasing to $25 monthly the pension allowances of widows of civil and Spanish war veterans, the conferees limited its operation to widows of officers and enlisted men killed in line of duty or who died subsequently from injuries received in line of duty in those wars.

The slightly reduced disability and family allowances provided by the Senate were retained by the conferees.

TOWNSMEN PROTEST IN RECTOR'S BEHALF

PETITION TO BISHOP GREER

Clergyman Resented Attempt to Dictate Length of Service So as to Please Golfers.

Vigorous protests against the causes which led to the resignation of the Rev. Dr. G. A. Carstensen, for fifteen years rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Riverdale, were voiced last night at a meeting of the Kingsbridge branch of the Home Defense League, held at the Kingsbridge Police Station. Dr. Carstensen gave up his charge because of the opposition of some vestrymen who objected to some of his policies and to the presence of children from a nearby negro orphan asylum at the church services.

A petition urging Bishop Greer to interest himself in keeping Dr. Carstensen in this vicinity was framed, and it will be circulated among the residents of every denomination in Kingsbridge and Riverdale. A similar protest meeting will be held next Tuesday night by the Riverdale branch of the Home Defense League, and it is expected that all the neighborhood organizations will combine and hold a mass meeting in Riverdale soon.

In a statement last night Dr. Carstensen said that one of the members of his vestry tried to dictate to him the proper length of the service so as "to accommodate golfers," and had interfered in various other ecclesiastical prerogatives.

Dr. Carstensen has received the assurances of George B. Cortelyou and Darwin P. Kingsley, two of the vestrymen, that they will do all in their power to aid him in his difficulties. Among the other vestrymen of the church are Edward C. Delafield, John Ross Delafield, Archibald Douglas, Frank S. Hackett, Nicholas Kelly, Edwin B. Strange, John M. High, and Thomas N. Cuthbert.

Objected to Negro Worshippers.

The resignation of Dr. Carstensen was the climax of a series of trying experiences. The rector had consented to allow the colored children to visit the church at the request of the Superintendent of the orphan asylum. Prominent among those who objected to the presence of the children, according to those conversant with the situation, was Edward C. Delafield, President of the Franklin Trust Company, Treasurer of the church.

Dr. Carstensen is said to have called Mr. Delafield's attention to the inscription over the door of the church, which read, "My house shall called a house of prayer for all people," and the Vestryman is said to have replied that it made no difference, as he did not want to "mingle" with negroes. Mr. Delafield said last night he had not heard of the inscription incident and that he had no statement to make.

Bishop Greer heard of the trouble about the children and wrote to the Vestrymen asking that no action be taken until consultation was had with him. He received a reply saying that the Vestrymen had already decided on action. The Bishop wrote again, and as soon as the letter was received it is said that the orphan asylum Superintendent was notified that his children were no longer welcome at the church, and Bishop Greer was notified that it was too late for an interview.

Bishop Burch yesterday declined to discuss the trouble, as he said it was strictly "a parochial matter." He admitted, however, that both he and Bishop Greer had not hesitated to declare that Dr. Carstensen was correct in allowing the colored children to enter the church.

"Bishop Greer and I upheld Dr. Carstensen in the controversy regarding the orphans," said Bishop Burch. "We believed he was right in permitting the children to enter the church. I know Dr. Carstensen is a loyal and faithful worker, a fine scholar and an unusual preacher."

Tells of Secret Vestry Meeting.

Dr. Carstensen was very reluctant yesterday to discuss his resignation, but he finally consented to make the following statement of his position:

"In October, 1915, a prominent member of the vestry organized a self-constituted committee of himself and two other Vestrymen, who, with their wives, waited on Bishop Greer and petitioned for my removal, a wholly irregular and unprecedented thing to do. They kept their action secret. No one knew of it until I discovered it in December. Then the leader of the trio attempted to get a meeting of the vestry without my presence, to which his colleagues would not consent. So I attended the vestry meeting and told them that I was willing and ready to resign. They refused to consider my resignation, and rebuked the three persons who had resorted to irregular procedure.

"Another thing that makes it unpleasant for me was that the same member introduced a resolution forbidding the rector to give the congregation the opportunity to contribute to the missionary work of the church. The gentleman has defiantly disregarded the authority of the Bishop. He has made disobedience to the Bishop the test of my loyalty to the vestry, one of his frequent adjurations to me being that I should 'stand by my vestry.'

"He has tried to dictate to me in the matter of the ritual the proper length of the service to accommodate golfers, and has interfered in various other perogatives for which I was under no responsibility to any but my ecclesiastical superior.

"I was obliged to say to the gentleman before the vestry once that I could not fight him, because he could not fight unless he hit below the belt; I could not play with him, because he would not play unless he stacked the cards.

"It came to the point where I might stay in Riverdale and save my livelihood, but I would lose my manhood. I preferred to resign and save my manhood at the risk of losing my livelihood.

"It gives me positive grief to leave Riverdale. It has been the scene of my greatest sorrows, for my wife and only son died there. My greatest joys, however, have been experienced in Riverdale. I have made some enemies, for which I have no apologies to offer, but I have made some of the strongest and dearest friendships any man could have been blessed with. I bear no ill-will to any man, even those who have shown ill-will to me, but there is no church on God's footstool big enough to contain one member of the vestry and me at the same time."

FLOOD IN SUBWAY STATION.

Heavy Rain Causes Considerable Damage in Upper Manhattan.

The heavy rain last night caused some damage in the upper part of the city. The entrance to the subway station at 157th Street and Broadway was inundated and considerable water lodged in the subway at that point.

The water in front of the building at 819-821 Riverside Drive in places was eighteen inches deep, and the overflow ran into the cellar at 821 Riverside Drive, doing considerable damage.

The fire in the oven of a large bakery at 1,735 Amsterdam Avenue was on the verge of being put out, as the water poured into the place so rapidly. The flow was stopped in time to permit the bakery to continue in operation, but the bakers said they would have to wear rubber boots. Other cellars in the vicinity were also flooded.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Thomas Carnell and Arno B. Pallme, Socialists, were indicted by the Federal Grand Jury today for making disloyal utterances. Carnell was arrested when making a speech. It is alleged Pallme said to a draft board: "We Socialists are opposed to this war and are advising everybody to keep out of it. If they force us to go we will not fight."

WARNS FUTURE CITIZENS.

Court Says Freedom of Speech Is Not License to Incite Disorder.

Justice Tierney of the Supreme Court, in addressing 250 applicants for citizenship yesterday, said that the right of free speech would never be taken away from the people of this country, but that this right did not include the license to stand on street corners and provoke or incite disorder, to blaspheme, or to scold. During the week the court has admitted 1,000 aliens to citizenship, more than ever before in a similar period. The greatest number ever admitted before in one week was 600.

Justice Tierney told yesterday's applicants that if they wanted to accentuate their allegiance to this country no better way could be found than by buying Liberty bonds. He advised those with money to invest to use some of it in helping this democracy of which they were now a part.

"You have been received here," said the Justice, "where every privilege is extended to citizens regardless of race and where men, of one religion are recognized by the law as being as good as those of another. I feel sure that you will respond to the sentiments which this country holds for you and that you will respond generously, cordially, and unevasively."

HERRENHAUS IS RE-FORMED.

Deplore Use of Cause of Ireland as Excuse for Sedition.

It was announced last night that at a meeting of Division Seven, Ancient Order of Hibernians, held at 21 East Forty-fifth Street on Wednesday evening, a resolution was adopted which said, in part:

"Be it resolved, That we request that a thorough investigation be made by this Government to secure evidence either of offenses against neutrality committed in this country before it entered war or treason to it since war was declared. If any such evidence be found we demand that the guilty parties, if any, receive the fullest punishment known to the law, as we emphatically condemn all efforts to make alleged devotion to the cause of Ireland an excuse for sedition or treason to this our adopted country to which we have sworn allegiance.

"Be it further resolved, That owing to the challenge which has been made in the public press to Irish societies to draw the line and show whether they stand on the side of their adopted country in this war, we direct that copies of this resolution be sent to the Secretary of State and published in the newspapers of this country."

SAYS M'KINLEY SAW OUR WORLD POSITION

DAY OF OUR ISOLATION PAST

No Solution of Present War Crisis Worthy of Our History Except Defeat of Militarism.

NILES, Ohio, Oct. 5.—"We could not keep out of world politics if we would. That which affects the world affects us. The Monroe Doctrine is becoming a more serious limitation upon European action than ever before."

This was the declaration of William H. Taft in the principal address here today at the dedication of the marble memorial building and monument erected to the memory of William McKinley, who was born in this town.

The martyred President was credited by the ex-President with being "the man who saw most clearly, when others were blind to it, the real position of the United States in the world."

"Were McKinley alive today, how his patriotic heart, his broad vision, and his vibrant words would be united in supporting the Government in its constructive measures to carry on the great world struggle to victory," Mr. Taft said.

"With what firmness he would reject all propositions to compromise by proposal of a patched-up peace. He would not fail to see that in the present issue no peace is possible until secured by victory—that no solution is worthy of our history but a defeat of militarism."

War with Germany Inevitable.

Mr. Taft declared that it was better to fight Germany in company with the Allies than to fight her alone later. He insisted that had we been able to stay out of the war we would have found ourselves in continued friction with Germany "until she thought the opportunity had come for her to strike."

"Our present situation is a mere development of the disclosure of our real situation in the world which McKinley recognized and made preparations to meet," Mr. Taft continued.

"McKinley began a new era in the life of the United States. His successors in office followed him in this. The contrast between the situation of the country in Washington's time, when the policy of isolation was adopted, and our present position answers every objection to recognizing the part we must play in the family of nations.

"The day of isolation is past. This is what McKinley saw. This is what has brought us into this war. This is what has made it necessary for us to win the war as an ally of the democracies of the world, to make, in President Wilson's words, 'the world safe for democracy.'

"We encountered the conquering militaristic spirit of Germany in the Philippines, and we found there the English sympathy which prevented a breach of our relations at that time.

"The itching of the military caste for expansion by force has now involved all Europe in a vortex of war and destruction. It has murdered American citizens on the high seas where they had a right to be, in order to secure Germany the unembarrassed use of the submarine as a means of conquering England and France.

"The exigency of Germany and her disregard of decency and honor and international law have entangled and involved us, as might have been anticipated, in the war itself. It is well that it is so. Were Germany successful in this war, had the United States been able to stay out, we would have found ourselves in continued friction with Germany until she thought the opportunity had come for her to strike."

Unveiling by Miss McKinley.

Miss Helen McKinley, sister of the late President, unveiled the twelve-foot statue of McKinley, which is set in the court of the Memorial Building.

Other speakers were Myron T. Herrick, former Ambassador to France; George B. Cortelyou, who was private secretary to McKinley and a member of McKinley's second Cabinet; the Rev. C. A. Manchester, who was McKinley's pastor; Joe Mitchell Chapple of Boston, and Joseph G. Butler, Jr., President of the McKinley Birthplace Memorial Association.

Senators Harding, Pomerene, and Philander C. Knox, who had been invited to speak, could not attend because of work incidental to the closing hours of Congress.

The memorial to Ohio's former Governor and President is a building 232½ by 136 feet and is built of Georgia marble. It contains a statue of McKinley twelve feet high, carved by J. Massy Rhind from a solid block of Georgia marble weighing thirty-five tons. The building contains a library and an auditorium which seats 1,000 persons. # ANNA ROBINSON DIES INSANE

Actress, Once Wife of Lord Rosslyn, Was on Ward's Island.

Anna Robinson, the American actress who became known to the public in "Shenandoah" and married Lord Rosslyn in 1905 and divorced him two years later, died yesterday morning in the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane on Ward's Island. She became insane about two years ago, after she had lost the money she had saved from her success on the stage. She came to New York almost penniless about two years ago and sought to retrench her fortunes by appearing again on the stage, but was unsuccessful, and a few weeks ago friends sent her to the New York Hospital. Two weeks ago she was sent to the psycopathic ward in Bellevue for observation, and after she had been adjudged insane was sent to the Manhattan Hospital on Sept. 21. Se was 47 years old.

Soon after she came to New York from Minneapolis to try to get on the stage Anna Robinson was engaged by Charles Frohman to play the part of an ingénue in "Shenandoah," and her success was so great that she was retained by Frohman in his productions for many years. Then she left to play with William H. Crane. She was noted for her beauty and vivacity, and her engagement to men of wealth had been reported many times before she married the Earl of Rosslyn, who had achieved much notoriety in Europe because of his gambling at Monte Carlo.

Edward Bartlett Nitchie.

Edward Bartlett Nitchie, founder and President of the New York School for the Hard of Hearing, at 156 Fifth Avenue, died in the Post Graduate Hospital yesterday. Mr. Nitchie was born forty years ago in Brooklyn, and after his graduation from Amherst College in 1889 took up the study of lip reading, having been very deaf at the time.

INQUIRIES FOR J. D. WRIGHT.

Friends Telephoned Police They Heard He Was in Auto Accident.

After friends of J. Dunbar Wright of 1 West Sixty-seventh Street had telephoned to Police Headquarters last night asking for particulars of "the automobile accident in which Mr. Wright was killed on Long Island," all stations on Long Island were asked for a report on such an accident. No information was sent in, and the police have sent out an inquiry to nearby Connecticut and New Jersey towns for a report on accidents.

At Mr. Wright's home it was said that he had left early in the morning without telling where he would be if calls came during the day. He is a member of the Racquet and Tennis, National Arts, New York Yacht, Automobile, Aero, and the Brook Clubs, but no information upon any accident had been received by them.

A report reached this city late last night that Mr. Wright had been killed when his car skidded and struck a telegraph pole on the road between Port Jervis and Middletown, N. Y., but it was impossible to confirm it at his home, and no one had heard of the accident at any of his clubs. According to the report Mr. Wright after making a steep descent in the road had tried to avoid a rut, but in doing so his car skidded and turned over, pinning him beneath it.

Mr. Wright is the son of J. Howard Wright of this city and a member of the Standard Oil Company. He was born in 1862. He resigne dhis connection with the Standard Oil Company in 1898 and since that time he had devoted his time to painting, being the owner of a valuable collection of canvasses.

Lost Ground Is Recovered by Numerous Issues—Better Sentiment Prevails.

Yesterday's stock market was irregular, and for a time it looked as though the slump which carried prices down so easily on Thursday had lost none of its momentum, but the closing was made under much more favorable conditions, with many prominent issues showing substantial gains for the day. The recovery was based more on the theory that prices had gone too far by way of discounting the new situation created by the enactment of an unscientific tax law than on any new development, although the report from Washington that many members of Congress favored a revision of the law at the December session in the event that the Treasury Department shall construe the provision which apparently inflicts an additional tax of 8 per cent. on individual earnings over $6,000 per annum to apply to all salaries proved helpful as showing that some of the worst features of the new measure may prove short lived.

Expert opinion in brokerage circles holds that the market ought to have a rally simply because the decline has gone too far in a short space of time, but few traders are bullish on stocks even at these prices for a long period. Such opinion is subject to revision, of course, if it shall develop that the additional taxes are not as burdensome as the Street now expects them to be. Bank executives are generally agreed that the new taxes mean a contraction in activity in many lines. With the prices of material and the cost of working it up now at abnormal levels, borrowers operating on a limited amount of collateral are asking for banking accommodations far in excess of their ordinary requirements, and the necessity for providing large amounts to meet the new tax levies aggravates their demands. Facing so many uncertainties, manufacturers have been applying to their banks for loans which are proving, in the aggregate, much greater than the institutions are able to advance, and this situation can only mean sharp curtailment in many industries.

It usually proves that what appear at a distance to be insurmountable difficulties are surmounted or avoided when reached, and it may happily prove that business will be able to readjust itself to this newest complication of war without the distress that now threatens. The kindest thing that bankers can say for the new legislation is that Congress recognized its inability to devise a scientific taxation scheme and accepted the Simmons-Kitchen makeshift, blindly hoping that it would work. It should be possible to obtain amendments curing the most flagrant inequalities of the law after a brief trial.

A drive at United Cigar Stores carried that issue down to 105⅝ yesterday, from which level it reacted to 108⅝. Midvale was another object of attack, dropping back to 48⅝. Steel sold again at 105⅜, but recovered to 108⅝ at the close, up 2¼ for the day. The Liberty 3½s sold down to 99.76, and the Bordeaux, Lyons and Marseilles 6s all weakened, the City of Lyons bonds touching 88½, with later sales at 90.

LONDON MARKET IS ACTIVE.

Latest War News Gives More Strength to the War Loans.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The stock market was more active today. The war news imparted strength to the war loans, colonial bonds, and home rails, in which a large business was transacted. Rubber stocks and East Rand mines were active features, and shipping shares and American Marconi were steadily bought. Brazilian and Chinese issues were the best in the foreign section. Argentine rails and Russian securities were dull and lower.

Government disbursements made money plentiful. Discount rates were easy.

Prices Firm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Prices were firm on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 60 francs 10 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan 88 francs 35 centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

French Municipals Decline.

Three of the four French municipal bonds on the Stock Exchange suffered declines of 3 points each in yesterday's dealings under somewhat greater activity than has been noted for several weeks. City of Bordeaux 6s receded from 93 to 90, and a corresponding change occurred in the Marseilles issue. City of Lyons 6s moved from 93 down to 88½ and late in the day recovered to 90. Of the total authorized issues, amounting all told to $60,000,000, approximately $35,000,000 were sold here last year. The initial demand for them was not as active as for the $50,000,000 City of Paris bonds brought out previously, and it was supposed in the Street that yesterday's selling represented in part the liquidation of several large blocks in dealers' hands. The City of Paris bonds closed at 91, at this level showing a decline of no more than a half point from Thursday's closing price.

Waiting for Oil Prices.

The oil stock market devoted considerable attention to news from Washington that Western producers were conferring with Government officials over price fixing. Hope has been maintained by owners of oil stocks that the quotations for crude and refined products for Government use would not be much lower than those now current, inasmuch as they have not risen in unusual fashion since Jan. 1. There have been persistent reports for several weeks that a price of 17 cents a gallon for gasoline at Eastern seaboard points would be established, but nothing beyond rumors has been heard. Oil shares yesterday moved irregularly, without indicating a definite trend.

Liberty Loan and Stock Prices.

While many predictions are heard in brokerage circles that the poor market for stocks and corporation bonds will hurt Liberty Loan subscriptions in the financial district, it is too early yet to tell whether this actually will be the case. The agreement among the banks to finance Liberty bond purchases at 4 per cent. interest helped this week to relieve some of the pessimism, as numerous brokers who had thought of cutting down their subscriptions because of possible stiff money rates were moved to reconsider the matter. In fact, brokers were found yesterday who were preparing to subscribe for more bonds than they had planned for originally. What the brokers can do in the way of financing their Liberty bond purchases they may advise their customers to do in cases where shrunken security prices are causing the latter to hold back. Wall Street is not blue about the country's response to the loan, but it desires to do a little more than hold its own end up.

Stock Prices in the Seventies.

Some reminiscences of an old-timer in Wall Street were published in this column recently regarding the low records made by various rail stocks in the late seventies, after the panic and depression of '73. Another reader has since sent in a newspaper clipping relative to the phenomenal rise in prices which came in 1880-81, listing a number of these same stocks and comparing their prices in 1877 with those in 1881. Burlington, for example, sold at 78 in the first year and 182½ in the second; Lackawanna went up from 30⅝ to 131. Erie from 5 to 52⅝; St. Paul from 11 sold up to 129⅛, and Jersey Central from 6 to 112.

Interest on Deposits.

In reply to inquiries, Controller of the Currency Williams has sent out a letter to national banks expressing the view that his office considers 4 per cent. a decidedly high rate to allow on deposits under existing conditions. "My suggestion," he says, "is that you take no action towards raising the rate of interest until you are in a better position to determine exactly what the effect of the offering of the Liberty bonds may be upon your deposits. If there should be large withdrawals of deposits for investment in Liberty bonds and you should require funds to meet these withdrawals or to supply your customers for their legitimate business needs, these funds can readily be obtained from the Federal Reserve Banks of your district at favorable rates—at present from 3½ to 4½ per cent. per annum—and against the money so obtained from your Federal Reserve Bank you do not, of course, have to carry reserve as you do for deposits."

Reducing the Car Shortage.

Between May 1 and Sept. 1 the Special Committee on National Defense of the American Railway Association has succeeded in reducing the number of unfilled car requisitions by more than 78 per cent., but there is still no surplus of cars. The Bureau of Markets of the United States Department of Agriculture issued a bulletin yesterday urging the most efficient use of cars by shippers of perishable farm products in view of the existing congestion. "The present is a time," it says, "for the closest cooperation of all interests for the most efficient utilization of cars. Shippers should load and unload cars promptly, and should place diversion orders at diversion points before the arrival of cars to be diverted."

SOUND RATES TO STAY UP.

Steamship Lines Will Maintain Present Tariffs Through Winter.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Under the terms of an Interstate Commerce Commission order today steamship lines out of New York for New England ports are permitted to keep in effect, during the Winter, Summer passenger rates, instead of making reduced Winter rates, as heretofore.

A reduction of 75 cents in the fare between New York and Fall River, Mass., has been made each Winter. The order states that the full rate of $3 may be charged next Winter. Rates from New York to interior points in New England, via steamship and the New Haven Road, will be affected to this extent.

Trading Quiet, with No Particular Movement Noticeable in Either Direction.

The cotton market had a comparatively quiet day yesterday, with no particular movement perceptible in either direction. The effects of the poor crop report seemed to have spent themselves entirely, for although there was a brief early advance in the morning, no strength developed in the market and virtually all the gain was lost again, the general list closing somewhat irregular, but fairly steady, from 15 points higher to 14 points lower than Thursday's closing. About the only outside news that had even a momentary effect on the market was the weather report, and this only caused a little nervousness.

October contracts sold off 10 points on the very opening, but short covering and considerable foreign buying started the other active months at slightly higher prices. There had been, it soon developed, considerable selling for a reaction on Thursday, and traders who had taken this position began to show signs of uneasiness. It soon appeared, however, that covering would not be difficult, and although some months rose up 30 to 40 points late in th morning, January reaching 25.50, there was no sustaining force, and hedge selling soon drove it back to the 25-cent level.

The weather report showed low temperatures in the Northwest, and there was some discussion around the ring of the possibility that this area would work down into the belt, where it would unquestionably find a large proportion of the crop in no condition to stand frost, owing to the unusual lateness of the season. Immediate weather conditions, however, were considered very favorable.

Southern spot markets were reported irregular yesterday, with prices ⅛ cent higher to ¼ cent lower. Exports for the day were 47,534 bales, making 889,675 for the season, against 1,000,810 a year ago. The weekly figures showed an increase of 50,000 bales in the stock of American at Liverpool.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

Commenting on the condition of trade and the business of the banks, Dun's Review says:

Progress toward better business has been unmistakable in some important branches which recently experienced halting, and more optimistic views of the general situation are possible. With the gain in actual transactions, which in some lines has been conspicuous, there has come an increase in the working force at plants which had been running less actively, or not at all, and further price recoveries are witnessed in certain quarters where there had been rather sharp yielding.

Largely because of the contraction in speculative activity, as compared with this time a year ago, bank clearings this week at New York show a moderate falling off as compared with last year, the loss being 2.9 per cent., but as contrasted with two years ago a gain appears of no less than 22.5 per cent. On the other hand, substantial improvement continues to be a conspicuous feature at almost all cities outside the metropolis, and the total at all points for the week amounts to $5,714,269,419, an increase of 8.4 over last year and of 30.7 per cent. as compared with 1915.

Bradstreet's says:

Ordinary distribution is featured by good trade in general staple merchandise, luxuries being eschewed, and little is heard of holiday business, while it is also conceded that demand for civilians' dress clothing, as distinguished from workmen's garments, seems to have eased up. Industry is active, though new buying in the iron and steel trade is conspicuous by its absence, dullness intervening, of course, until the full schedule of fixed prices comes out next week. But business in machinery and tools is of extraordinary proportions.

DRY GOODS TRADE IS STRONG

Shipments Are Running Far Ahead of Those a Year Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Marshall Field & Co. in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale shipments of dry goods for the week are running stronger than in the corresponding period of last year. Road sales for immediate delivery equal the very heavy volume of a year ago, while road sales for future delivery are slightly smaller. Fewer customers have been in the market during the week. Collections are in excess of the same period of 1916. The cotton market is strong and advancing."

Government Wants Blankets.

S. M. Kaplan of the Committee on Supplies of the Committee on National Defense, announced yesterday that he would be at his office, 7 Vestry Street, telephone Canal 9066, tomorrow (Sunday) morning from 9 to 12. He wishes offerings of overcoatings, twenty ounces and over, suitable for emergency blankets. Also he will look at offering of field blankets or any other description of woolens suitable for blankets, weighing over three pounds, for spot delivery.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

In the afternoon trading on the Consolidated Stock Exchange practically the entire list moved forward. Buying orders came in steadily from commission houses, and at the close the principal stocks were well above the preceding finals. The exceptions were the tobacco stocks, which had broken 2 to 4 points earlier in the day and succeeded in regaining only a part of their losses.

WHEAT.

The movement of wheat continues disappointing, and receipts are being eagerly absorbed where available. Reports from milling centres in the Northwest said that the Government was buying flour, and it was also evident that a considerable export business is being done in flour, which adds to the big milling demand for wheat. Weather conditions have been very favorable of late, and The Modern Miller said that plowing and seeding in the Southwest and plowing in the Northwest have, up to the present time, surpassed all previous records. Plowing in Western Canada is on a larger scale than ever before. On the whole, it looks as if farmers are complying with the Government's request to prepare for record crops next season, and this is doubtless partly responsible for the small movement.

CORN.

The corn market was comparatively quiet, but prices were firm, closing at the top with net gains of ⅝c to ⅞c. Just how the market is going to act when offers increase is not yet apparent. The apathy on the part of traders was explained in part by a disposition to assist the Government report on Monday and the action of the conference in Chicago on Oct. 11 in regard to the question of changing the maximum price. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $2.07 and No. 2 mixed $2.03, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

There was comparatively little feature to the oats market, but prices were steady. The advance in corn had a sustaining influence, and receipts at primary points were again moderate. Farmers are not selling freely, and there is comparatively little pressure on the market in the way of hedging sales. Export demand was slow, and no business was reported. The local cash market was steady; standard quoted at 67½c; No. 2, white, 67 to 67½c; No. 3, white, 66½ to 67c; No. 4, white, 66 to 66½c; fancy clipped, white, 68½ to 70½c; ordinary clipped, white, 66½ to 68c; all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was dominated to a considerable extent by the firmness in lard, which experienced a fair advance on reports of further buying by the Belgian Relief Commission. Price changes were somewhat feverish, however, and an easier tone to hogs served to check bullish operations. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 8,000; estimated for Saturday, 5,000; Kansas City received 1,500, and Omaha, 4,200.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The cottonseed oil market was firm and higher, closing with net gains of 15 to 25 points. Commission houses were on the buying side, and the strength in the market was due largely to the sharp upturn in lard and reports that the Belgian Relief Commission was again making purchases of lard in the West. Crude oil in the South was also very firm, and there was an absence of more than very moderate selling, which could be construed as hedging against crude holdings. Total sales for the day were 30,500 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

The coffee market was more active yesterday and steadier, although there was some irregularity due to further scattering liquidation, particularly in the near months. The business included some switches from near to late deliveries, with the close showing a net advance of 1 to 3 points. The local spot market was irregular, with quotations on basis of 8⅛c for Rio 7s and 9⅝c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

There were no sales in raw sugar, although Thursday's total business was about 10,000 bags of Cubas, prompt shipment, at 5⅞c, cost and freight, to local and Philadelphia refiners. Refiners here and also Canadian interests were buyers, the former bidding 5⅞c, cost and freight, while Canada would, it was believed, pay ⅛c advance. Holders, however, were not offering, and the market was at a standstill. The situation in refined sugar is still very acute, local refiners limiting sales to the most urgent cases only, owing to the fact that their raw supplies are running very light, and already two refineries have closed down, with a prospect that others will shortly follow. Prices remained unchanged at 8.25c@8.50c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 8,609 boxes. The general tone of the market is still easy. Buyers are operating very cautiously, and in many stores there is small accumulation of stock. The Exchange sales included 745 tubs creamery extra at 45¼@45½c, and the business on the street was in line with these figures. The undergrades are about ¼c lower and unsettled. Renovated, ladles, and packing stock are pretty well sustained. EGGS.—Receipts today, 10,178 cases. The market continues generally unchanged. Strictly fine to fancy fresh gathered, containing a large proportion of new-laid stock, are scarce, and the few such arriving are taken with reasonable promptness at sustained prices. Many of the usually fine marks are running a little off in quality, and the market for the general offerings continues dull, weak, and irregular, although the full range of values shows no material change. Storage eggs are very dull and quotations continue nominal in the absence of important movement. Nearby white eggs of fancy quality are scarce and firm, mixed and lower qualities move slowly at a wide range of prices. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 45@46c; extra firsts, 42@44c; firsts, 39@41c; seconds, 37@38c; thirds and poorer, 35@36½c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 36@36½c; No. 2 and poorer, 32@35½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 33@34c; undergrades, 30@32c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 38@39c; firsts, storage and insurance paid, 37@38c; seconds, storage and insurance paid, 35@36½c; lower grades, storage and insurance paid, 34@35c; refrigerator, State whites, 41@43c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 60@63c; ordinary to good, 48@58c; gathered whites, good to fine, 45@60c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 42@48c; hennery browns, 48@52c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 42@46c.

BIG TRUST COMPANIES JOIN FEDERAL RESERVE

Equitable and Metropolitan Directors Authorize Applications —Guaranty a Member.

The Equitable and Metropolitan Trust Companies, it was announced yesterday, have decided to join the Federal Reserve system. Directors of each have authorized their Presidents to file the necessary papers. A week ago the Guaranty Trust Company applied for membership, and all the formalities have since been completed, and it has today a full membership. With the admission of the Equitable and the Metropolitan, four New York trust companies will be members, the Broadway Trust Company having entered early in the organization of the Federal Reserve Bank. Two small up-State trust companies are also members.

The Equitable Trust Company has about $188,000,000 deposits, and the Metropolitan about $55,000,000.

It is known that next week at least one other large trust company will apply for membership, and it is quite likely that a number will make applications.

Ever since this country declared war against Germany officials of the Government and members of the Federal Reserve Board have urged trust companies to increase the nation's banking power by joining the Federal Reserve system. Many of the trust companies have decided to join on patriotic grounds, while others have done so because they desired to take advantage of rediscounting and other facilities that the Federal Reserve system offers to members.

AIMS AT GERMANS IN SOUTH AMERICA

Washington Plans to Cut Off Coal for Those Operating Public Utilities.

DEPENDENT ON OUR SUPPLY

Industries Would Have to be Run by Governments—Law Gives Full Embargo Power.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Public utilities in several of the South American republics which are controlled by German interests may find it impossible soon to obtain coal with which to continue operations, if the United States decides to adopt a step now under consideration in connection with the world embargo plan to "quarantine" the Central Powers from all other nations.

Under the provisions of the Trading With the Enemy act recently adopted by Congress the Administration has power to refuse coal shipments to these pro-German interests, and none is being supplied now except under license. The State Department and Exports Administrative Board, it is understood, has before it the proposition to exercise the law to the full and deny further supplies unless the public utilities involved are taken over by the Governments of the South American countries and the large profits of the pro-German interests cut off.

Ambassador Naon, representing Argentina, which would be seriously affected by such a step, held a hurried conference at the State Department yesterday, and it was reported that the fate of the German-owned public utilities was one of the important matters under discussion. These public utilities are entirely dependent upon American coal, and once the supply is cut off electric lighting systems would go out of business and electric railway cars would be stalled in the majority of South American communities.

Law Covers the Situation.

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida, one of the framers of the Trading With the Enemy act, said tonight that it covered the situation in full and made it possible for the Administration, while strictly adhering to the letter of the law to shut off coal supplies to the concerns in which Germans had an interest, if it was shown that they were in any way contributing to the cause of Germany or her allies. The Senator, however, is in no way involved in any of the international phases of the situation.

It is understood that the United States Government has plenty of evidence to show that the earnings of pro-German capital in public utilities and factories of South America—and it is said that no less than $500,000,000 is invested in Uruguay, Argentina, Brazil, and Chile—have not only contributed to the spreading of pro-German propaganda in South America, Mexico, and the United States, but placed large sums to the credit of Germany in some of the northern neutral countries of Europe. Moneys thus earned, it is said, also have been used for the purchase of South American supplies, with the hope in view of getting them to Germany.

The problem now under consideration in diplomatic negotiations is this: "Why should the United States give coal to such German-owned concerns when its laws provide for an absolute check, unless it is demonstrated beyond a doubt by the nations in which these investments are located that Germany is not profiting and shall not profit?"

By forbidding the shipments of coal the United States can force the German-owned lighting and railway companies to fail in carrying out franchise provisions, and thus make it possible for the Governments to take over the concerns in order to obtain the service essential to their normal existence. Adjustments later might be made in the courts, but these would take a long time and the steady flow of money to Germany and the funds necessary for spreading pro-German propaganda would be cut off.

Bunker Coal Ruling Effective.

The decision of the Exports Administrative Board yesterday refusing to give bunker coal to tonnage carrying supplies from South America to the northern neutral countries unless they were passed upon favorably by United States agents, have effectively ended the hope of Germany of obtaining further aid in the shape of foods or minerals from that source. The shutting down on the ability of Germany to earn money in South America with which to foment trouble by propaganda and establish credits for the Central Powers is looked upon by some officials as the next logical step in isolating Germany and all who represent its interests.

It is probable that a decision will soon be reached in the negotiations now in progress. South American countries, several of which already have been outraged by Germany, will be called upon to give assurances that German activities shall stop, it is said tonight, or the United States will take drastic action.

Neutrals' Case Up to Wilson.

The diplomatic situation developed because of the position which the Government is reported to have taken in regard to a concerted embargo against shipments to the northern neutral nations of Europe which will not abandon their trade agreements with Germany reached an acute stage today, and it was said that all of the facts had been placed before President Wilson by Vance McCormick, Chairman of the Exports Administrative Board.

Representatives of the Dutch Government descended upon the offices of the Exports Administrative Board today for long conferences concerning eighty or more vessels loaded with grains and fodder which are tied up in American ports. It is understood that a lively protest was made that Holland was placed in a false light. There has been no denial of the general terms of the agreement published in last Sunday's TIMES showing that Germany received by far the greater percentage of fats, vegetables and most of the other essentials of Holland.

As far as could be learned the Dutch received no assurances that any of their cargo ships would be released, and the negotiations today, it was said, had to deal largely with the disposal of these vessels. The ruling probably will affect all of the Northern European neutral tonnage which has been held in check. The Dutch, according to one report, are unwilling to turn their ships into other channels of trade which would benefit the United States and its allies, because of the belligerent attitude which Germany might assume in such an emergency.

The most serious problem, it is said, is whether the Government is prepared to follow out so drastic a procedure as the seizure of neutral tonnage unless every other course is closed.

The Dutch are seeking a quick agreement of some kind because the valuable cargoes are rotting in the ships. They are asking now only for wheat for human consumption, it is understood, and endeavoring to justify their requests. As far as could be learned, there has been no statement that the Netherlands was prepared to break the trade agreement with Germany.

Reported threats by some Dutch and Swedish interests that cattle will be slaughtered in great numbers and shipped into Germany and other commodities released in larger quantities unless the embargo restrictions are withdrawn are falling on deaf ears here, it is said.

GOLDWATER FOR GARY PLAN.

Former Health Commissioner Sees in It Proper Child Development.

Dr. S. S. Goldwater, Director of Mount Sinai Hospital and former Health Commissioner, gave out an interview yesterday supporting the Gary school plan. He said he had formed a sort of Gary system for his own children when they reached school age, because he thought the regular course in the public schools was not healthful.

"Scientific medicine and plain common sense are both on the side of work, study, play," he said. "I approve the plan because it gives children opportunity for a full, free, and properly balanced life, wholesome for body and mind. The old plan meant fatigue at work, and danger afterward. A growing child, bending over books and writing pad hour after hour, overstrains his eye muscles, wearies his brain, fails to expand his lungs fully, and is unable to give his abdominal muscles free play; in consequence, his digestion is impaired and his vitality diminished.

"It is absurd to refer to the work-study-play plan as a fad or even as a novelty. It may be new to the local public school system, but it provides precisely such a well-ordered life as most intelligent and well-to-do parents have long aimed to provide for their children.

"The problem of providing a normal or nearly normal environment for the New York child is insoluble except through the adaptation of the public schools. The records of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the Department of Health show how widespread is the condition of malnutrition. Watch the children pouring out of any big, old-fashioned public school at the end of any school day and see how exceptional is the child in exuberant health. The normal, round-faced, rosy-cheeked child is the exception and not the rule. No doubt there is insufficient food in the homes of many of these children, but this is all the more reason for bettering a system of study which favors indigestion, malnutrition, and anaemia.

"The opponents of the Gary plan make much of details of the system which are not to their liking, and which have not yet been perfectly worked out perhaps in all of the work-study-play schools of New York. Dissatisfaction over such details should not be permitted to cloud the main issue, which is nothing less than the development of a system of learning and living during childhood and adolescence which will permit every child to develop all of its faculties in the safest and most natural way."

CENTRALIZED CONTROL FAVORED BY WILSON

Advocates One House Committee to Oversee Appropriations, But Action Is Postponed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Chairman Fitzgerald of the House Appropriations Committee made public today the following letter from President Wilson:

"My Dear Mr. Fitzgerald: Thank you for your kindness in sending me House Roll 157, to centre the control of all appropriations in a single committee in the present emergency. The proposed action has my hearty approval. Indeed, I feel that there is no other means by which we can prevent very serious mistakes in the matter of appropriations during this very critical period where coordination is above all things else imperatively necessary."

The House Rules Committee, after hearing Mr. Fitzgerald in two long sessions, declined to submit the proposal to the House for a vote. Apparently, the deciding factor in the decision was the argument of Majority Leader Kitchin that the session had gone too far to take up so revolutionary a measure.

Mr. Fitzgerald pointed out, as an instance of present looseness in appropriating, that Congress had authorized expenditures of $2,600,000,000 in excess of the Government's income. He declared he had no personal interest in the matter, and offered to resign his present post rather than bear such an imputation.

Mr. Kitchin said he believed that pressing the matter would lead to bad feeling by the Chairmen of the various committees whose principal work and prerogatives would thus be taken from them.

"I do not believe it would pass the House," he said, "and in my judgment it would be dangerous to report it now."

Representative Padgett, Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, said he thought the plan was "fundamentally wrong," in that it placed too great a responsibility on one committee. He declared that it might easily lead to extravagance rather than economy.

Chairman Dent of the Military Committee argued against "snap judgment" on the matter. Chairman Small of the Rivers and Harbors Committee was impassioned in his opposition. He declared the true principle of appropriating money called for expenditures on a "representative rather than a centralized plan." He saw in the proposal a means by which the executive department of the Government might gain an undue influence over Congress. He argued that such influence could much more easily be imposed on a single committee than on several. Chairman Flood of the Foreign Affairs Committee opposed action on "so short consideration."

The only Chairman of the so-called "pork-barrel committees" who failed to appear was Representative Clark, head of the Public Buildings Committee.

While Mr. Fitzgerald had no comment on the committee's action, his publication of the correspondence between himself and the President was generally taken to mean that he would reopen the fight at the beginning of the December session. His letter to the President follows:

"Dear Mr. President: Inclosed herewith is a copy of a resolution which I introduced on the 29th ultimo to centre control of appropriations in a single committee during the present emergency.

"This proposition is in line with the declaration of the Democratic platform, and is particularly important at this time in view of the very extraordinary sums which are required for the maintenance of the public service.

"Knowing your many years of careful study of procedure in the House, as well as your knowledge of governmental method in other countries, together with the fact that the country looks to you as the leader of the party in control of the Government, and for a commanding part in all movements designed to improve the public service, and to safeguard the public funds, I should be very glad if you would favor me with an expression of opinion as to the feasibility and the desirability of such a reform as is proposed within the resolution, with the understanding that it might be used in such a manner as would be deemed proper."

Marking Time in Children's Wear.

The recent rise in temperature has had the effect of checking quite noticeably the demand for infants' and small children's wear in the local market. The early buying was liberal enough from all accounts and, when the September cold snap was on, the duplicate business placed was not bad. Now, however, buyers appear to be marking time. One reason for their willingness to wait for the consumer demand to pick up before buying again is the hand-to-mouth policy of replenishing stocks that has grown out of the current high prices. This is practiced quite generally, despite the shortage of help in the manufacturers' shops and the resultant possibility of delayed shipments. One of the few features of the moment is the way military effects have come to the fore in small girls' clothes. This is especially true of coats, many of which show the use of little capes, braid, and brass buttons.

Women Buying Better Shoes.

According to local shoe manufacturers' agents, there has been a decided tendency this season toward the better grade shoes for women. The big feature of the Fall trade in the staple lines is said to be the high topped shoes with buttons, those of the lacing type playing second fiddle. Military heels are becoming more popular, it seems, though, of course, the high French heels still occupy first place. In models for afternoon wear, the season has produced a number of novelty features, the most favored of which is said to be strap fastenings and ribbon bows. For evening, pumps of satin and of contrasting materials, with lacing and strap arrangements over the instep, are the most in demand.

Bank Grants Extra Compensation.

The National Bank of Commerce announced yesterday that it had decided to pay its employes an extra compensation "in recognition of the prevailing high cost of living and loyal services rendered." This additional payment will amount to 20 per cent. of the annual salaries of employes receiving less than $2,000 a year and 16 per cent. for employes receiving up to $4,000 per annum. The first payment will be made on Nov. 5, the distribution being completed in six equal installments. About 900 employes will share in the bonus. Several other large banks, among them the National City, the Central Trust Company, and the Bankers Trust Company, have been helping their employes to meet the high cost of living by extra disbursements.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday...5½@6 per cent. for the best names
Thursday...5½@6 " " " " "
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Suggests Standard Wool Mixture.

"If all-wool fabrics are to go," said a local manufacturer of clothes for men, "and manipulated stock is to be used instead, it should be accomplished by Presidential decree. It should be stipulated by official authority just how much wool as a maximum should be allowed in fabrics, and there should be a severe penalty by law for exceeding it. Thus every one in the trade would have a uniform standard to go by, and no unfairness or uncertainty would result.

Look for Record Prices.

In spite of the fact that certain gray cloths in the local market have been selling practically on the basis of 30-cent cotton for several days, opinions were heard in the market yesterday that, barring an unexpected reversal in cotton, an era of record prices has commenced. In one instance, in fact, the prediction was made that 38½-inch 60-48s would sell as high as 10 cents before the rise was ended. As this means the tacking on of at least a cent a yard to the present figure, this view was not fully concurred in. However, it was made clear that not the slightest disappointment would be felt by the mills if the prediction were fulfilled.

Silk Stocking Sales Doubled.

Reports from a number of the department stores of the city disclose the fact that, since the opening of the Fall season, the demand for silk stockings has almost doubled over other years. It is said that though the short and tight skirts, which are the mode of the hour, might be responsible in part for this increased demand, they could not account for it all. The opinion is held in most quarters that the explanation is to be found in the greatly increased number of women in business and their greater purchasing power. Furthermore, the silk hosiery situation is pointed to as an indication of what may be expected to follow later in other items of women's wearing apparel.

Hosiery Mills Can't Catch Up.

In the hosiery market the delivery situation continues extremely poor with no indications of relief in the near future. Orders are being accepted by the mills for delivery next Spring, but for sooner than that they cannot and will not promise. They point to merchandise coming through now which was ordered in many instances as long as ten or twelve months ago. Due to these conditions, trade is necessarily restricted, and there is said to be no reason to expect a revival until some of the mills see their way clear to fill the orders they already have on their books.

Skirt Demand Keeping Up Well.

Local skirt manufacturers report the season to be progressing very favorably to their business. Demand has been general, covering a wide variety of styles and fabrics, and retailers stocks are said to be moving very rapidly. Brocaded satins and faille silks in the higher priced garments are said to be attracting a good deal of favorable comment, and to be resulting in an increasing number of sales. The observation is frequently heard among the trade these days that side pockets are not as popular as they once were. In colors, plaids and stripes and solid bright shades are still well sought, though the darker shades predominate.

They Like Conservatism.

Paradoxically enough, the statement was made yesterday that individuals and firms which make a business of collecting bad accounts are just as anxious as credit men are that credit be given conservatively. While the other view naturally would be taken by the average person, due to the possibility of more work being given the collector by carelessness on the part of the credit office, one of the best-known collectors in the city says this is not the right one. More work is given, he admits, but as results are either to be had only in part or not at all, his efforts are wasted more or less in cases of this kind. And, working on commission, the wasting of time and effort on a very bad acount means reduced earnings.

Gray Goods Demand Fair.

Buying had a fair amount of snap in the local gray goods market yesterday, and higher prices were established on several varieties of goods. For 1917 deliveries of 39-inch 56-44s, 8½ cents was paid, with the same construction sold into early 1918 at an eighth less. Some further business was done for this year on 38½-inch 64-60s at 10¼ cents, though this trade was held back by the unwillingness of some mills to sell at that level. The same thing was true of 39-inch 68-72s at 11¾ cents. For 27-inch 64-60s several mills are firm in their demands for 7¾ cents. Ten cents was paid for 38½-inch 64-56s for shipment in the nearby months, while at 7 cents 44-40s in the same width sold for similar delivery. The call for sheetings was none too heavy, but prices were firm on a basis of 13 cents for four-yard 56-60s. Liberal business was reported on 40-inch drills at full prices. Printcloths closed this way:

URGES TAXPAYERS TO AID GOVERNMENT

Commissioner Roper Appeals to People to Help Him in Enforcing the War Revenue Law.

CONFRONTS A GREAT TASK

Persons Affected Must Find Out What Their Liabilities Are and File Returns—Penalty for Slackers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The new war tax law is straining the resources of the Internal Revenue Bureau to the limit. Daniel C. Roper, the new Commissioner of Internal Revenue, is confronted with what is said to be the largest and most intricate revenue measure ever conceived in the history of the world. Many new clerks will be needed in the offices of Internal Revenue Collectors throughout the country in order to keep pace with the vast amount of business that will attend the collection of the many new taxes.

The new law puts the taxpayer at once on notice that he must go to the revenue collector and find out what his liabilities are for the purpose of taxation. Failure to perform this duty involves liability to severe penalties.

All liquor and tobacco dealers have had due notice of the increased tax on liquor and tobacco, and have been advised to make inventories promptly, so that they may not be caught with the new heavy tax while they continue to sell at old prices.

The large force in the Internal Revenue Commissioner's office began today working overtime to prepare for the collection of the new taxes. From soda water to floor taxes, which appear in the new law, the Government officials are confronted with great prospect of trouble. Commissioner Roper gave out a statement tonight in which he rests the new law, with all its manifold burdens for the people, squarely on the necessity of winning the war against Germany. He says:

"Upon every citizen rests the responsibility of contributing to the utmost of his ability toward the successful termination of the war. The War Revenue act represents the judgment of the United States Congress as to what is the proper share for each citizen to contribute. This share is based upon the ability of the citizen to contribute. It is the unquestioned duty, therefor, of every true American citizen not only to pay the full tax the law requires of him, but to remove every possible obstacle to the successful administration of the law by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Under the circumstances, it is a high privilege for every citizen to comply strictly with the terms of the law and to make it a part of his duty to see that every other citizen does likewise.

"The new law affects all individuals receiving incomes of more than $1,000 a year; all corporations, joint stock companies, and associations, all distillers, rectifiers, wholesalers and retailers, holders of distilled spirits intended for sale or to be used for manufacturing purposes, and all dealers in fermented liquors or malt liquors, wines, cordials, liqueurs, domestic and imported; all dealers in soft drinks, table waters, and carbonic acid gas; all manufacturers of and dealers in cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, snuff, and cigarette papers; all carriers of freight, express or passengers, and operators of pipe lines; all dealers in life, marine, inland, fire, and casualty insurance; all manufacturers and wholesale dealers in motor vehicles of every kind, music instruments, motion picture films, jewelry, boats, sporting goods, perfumes, cosmetics, medicinal prearations, chewing gum, cameras; all proprietors of amusement places, including cabarets; all persons executing legal documents of any type; all traders on produce or stock exchanges and boards of trade; all importers of merchandise, and all manufacturers or importers of playing cards.

"In addition to original and additional taxes that will apply to articles or commodities manufactured, imported or produced on and after October 4, 1917, the law provides for a 'floor tax' on certain articles. This is a tax upon articles or commodities held in stock or in storage by manufacturers, dealers and holders. The floor tax is in the nature of an additional tax on taxpaid articles or commodities, and is an original tax upon articles or commodities that have not heretofore been subject to the internal revenue tax.

"In some instances the floor taxes are at different rates than the rates prescribed for the same kind of articles manufactured or produced on and after October 4, 1917. Collectors of internal revenue have been fully instructed as to the requirements of the law and the procedure to be followed in assessing and collecting taxes. All persons affected by the law should communicate with the nearest internal revenue officer and ascertain specifically how they are affected and what they must do to comply with the law.

"The law makes it the duty of every person, firm, or corporation whose possessions or incomes are taxable to make true and correct returns upon which the tax may be assessed and collected. Severe penalties are provided for failure upon the part of any person, firm, or corporation to make the correct inventories and returns required.

"In the collection of the tax that will apply to articles or commodities in stock on Oct. 4, 1917, it is the purpose of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to make, through its field force, preliminary inquiries of every person liable to tax, to ascertain his possessions in the way of taxable goods and the amount of tax he is liable to pay. This preliminary inquiry will be conducted over a period of probably a week.

"Within thirty days from the date of enactment of the new law every person, firm, or corporation, liable to floor tax, must file with the Collector of Internal Revenue a true and correct inventory, under oath, of goods in his possession subject to this tax. Attached to the inventory must be a synopsis of the inventory and a statement of the amount of tax to be paid on the goods covered by the inventory.

"This is known as a taxpayer's return. Upon the basis of this return, and an analysis of the information disclosed by the preliminary inquiry and the taxpayer's inventory, the proper amount of tax will be determined. Payment of the tax must be made to the Collector of Internal Revenue at the time of filing the return, but payment may be extended to a date not exceeding seven months from the passage of the act, upon the filing of a bond for payment. This bond must be given with an approved corporate surety company in a penal sum of not less than double the amount of the tax, and in no case less than $1,000.

"The penalties for failure to comply with the requirements of the law are for slackers."

EASY MONEY WOMAN GUILTY

Mrs. Hyman Offered 50 Per Cent. a Month and Got $500,000.

Mrs. Rae Hyman, proprietor of a so-called "money factory" at 300 East Fifty-sixth Street, was convicted yesterday of grand larceny in General Sessions. It was alleged that her victims numbered more than a thousand and that she had taken in more than $500,000.

Reuben Hein, a skirtmaker, of 615 Sackman Street, Brooklyn, one of the chief witnesses, said he had met Mrs. Hyman last January and that she had said she represented a number of Wall Street operators.

"She said the men she represented had many munition contracts with foreign Government and that the profits were so great that they were paying 50 cents a month on every dollar invested," the witness testified. "She said she would accept an investment from me and give me interest at that rate, and I gave her $250.

"A month later I went to her house and she gave me $125 as my first month's interest and said it was a shame I did not have more money to invest, because such profits could not be made for long. I gave her back the $125 and told her to invest that and to invest my interest every month as it came due. The next time I went to look for her was in June. I wanted to get a little money to pay some expenses, but she was gone and so was my money."

Mrs. Hyman put in no defense. She was remanded to the Tombs for one week for sentence.

NEW DEAN AT CATHEDRAL.

The Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins to Preach First Sermon Tomorrow.

The Rev. Howard Chandler Robbins, formerly of the Church of the Incarnation, will preach his first sermon as Dean of the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine at the 11 o'clock morning service tomorrow.

Dr. Robbins formally entered upon his new duties last Monday. There was no service of induction, but Bishop Greer will introduce the new Dean to the Diocesan Convention meeting in November.

Dean Robbins takes the place of the Rev. William Mercer Grosvenor, who died last Fall.

Good progress has been made in the construction work on the Cathedral during the last Summer. The chapel of Saint Ansgarius, the final unit of the Seven Chapels of Tongues, has been completed. This chapel, soon to be consecrated, was erected in memory of William Reed Huntington, rector of Grace Church from 1884 to 1909.

'ORDERED OUT,' WALDE SAYS

Husband Quotes Mother-in-law in Breach of Promise Trial.

Prof. Raymond Walde, teacher of science in the Scarsdale High School, was a witness yesterday in the suit brought by his wife, Mrs. Gladys Teed Walde, against Dr. Francis D. Griffin, a dentist, for $50,000 damages for breach of promise. He told a jury before Justice Giegerich that the reason he left his wife the day before the suit went to trial was because his mother-in-law "ordered him out."

Prof. Walde, who was called as a witness for the defendant, said that Mrs. Teed asked him whether he intended to testify for or against his wife and he said he told her he would tell the absolute truth. He alleges that Mrs. Teed replied: "Under those circumstances I will keep no traitor in my house. Your board is up tomorrow night and you must get out."

The witness said he then went to the chapter house of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity at Columbia, of which he is a member. His examination will be continued on Monday.

Petitions Against Dyestuff Company

Petitions in bankruptcy were filed yesterday against the Federal Dyestuff and Chemical Coporation by the H. H. Johns-Manville Company, a creditor to the amount of $2,461; the Hardinge Conical Mill Company, $955, and Frederick Hildebrandt, $161. The Federal Corporation is the defendant in several equity receivership suits.

Private View of Arctic Pictures.

A private view of the photographs and specimens brought back by the MacMillan Crocker Land expedition will be given at the American Museum of Natural History on Wednesday evening, Oct. 10. There will also be a reception for the members of the expedition.

ENGINES FOR FRANCE TURNED OUT ALREADY

First American Rolling Stock Made Within Twenty Days After Design Is Received.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—American manufacturing enterprise again has demonstrated its ability to meet the extraordinary demands of war. It was disclosed today that within twenty days after the War Department delivered designs for special locomotives and cars for the troops in France, the first of 680 engines and the first of 6,000 cars were ready for shipment.

French railroads will not stand the weight and length of standard American rolling stock. The special engines weigh 166,500 pounds, and the new cars are only thirty-six feet long, owing to the short curves of French roads. They are equipped with French couplings, and the French cars can be used in trains with the American equipment. The engines are eight-wheel-drive type, giving them great traction for the heavy loads they will haul to the American front.

The railway equipment sent from the United States will be painted battleship gray to make it inconspicuous as possible. The first engine bearing the marking "U. S. A. No. 1" soon will be in operation on the French lines.

It is understood that five engineer regiments, composed largely of railway men, will handle the new equipment. Flanged wheel rims have been provided for many American motor trucks and trailers so that they can be used on the line. This scheme was tried by Pershing's forces in Mexico with good results.

At the main American army base, among other equipment, will be a complete railway repair ship for all classes of rolling stock, fitted for work on both American and French engines and cars. Trained railway mechanics of long experience on American roads will do the work. Construction of the shops is said to be well advanced.

CALL FOR DOCK CLERKS.

Government Has Work for Men at Ports in France.

Speaking for the Government, Captain M. A. Kerwin said yesterday at the Army Building in Whitehall Street that there was immediate need of dock clerks, checkers and time keepers, familiar with cargo work, to go to France at once to manage the discharging of transports and supply ships.

The rate of pay will be according to grade, from private to sergeant of the regular army, and those who prove themselves efficient will be eligible for commissions. The applicants who are accepted will be enlisted for the war and be attached to what is called the Stevedores Regiment. In addition to their pay the men will receive their uniforms, equipment, and board and lodging from the Government.

An important deal just below the Times Square section, involving one of the largest transactions in connection with the trade paper publishing business, was closed yesterday in the purchase by the United Publishers Corporation, Horace M. The building is within easy access to both the New York Central and Pennsylvania stations, and only three blocks from Times Square. The first floor is occupied by the Times Square Station of the New York Post Office; three floors and basement are occupied by the Federal Printing Company, the printing department of the United Publishers Corporation; the four other floors are occupied by the publishing offices of the United Publishers Corporation.

New Million Dollar Chemical Company Buys New Jersey Plant.

The Reade Manufacturing Company of Hoboken, N. J., has purchased through J. I. Kislak a modern chemical plant at New Market, N. J., consisting of a building 310 by 125, and about eleven acres of ground.

This purchase is the result of an agreement between the company and Dr. C. G Richardson, metallurgical chemist, to refine cobalt, nickel, and arsenical ore.

At the present time there is no establishment in the United States refining this ore, nor producing cobalt from the ore. The only other countries in which cobalt is being produced are Saxony and Canada.

The plant just purchased was erected about two years ago for the manufacture of barium salts and contains the most modern chemical apparatus. The advantage the Reade people perceived in securing this property was in the fact that much of the apparatus contained in this plant is impossible to secure at the present time, and by purchasing it they will be able to produce their new products thirty days after taking possession.

Cobalt is one of the rare metals which is coming into extensive use, and finds use in the dye industry as well as in the hardening of various steel-cutting alloys.

The new company will incorporate for a quarter of a million of dollars, and proposes to start operations at once.

Cartier, jeweler, who recently acquired the Morton F. Plant mansion at the southeast corner of Fifty-second Street and Fifth Avenue, has sublet his former quarters at 712 Fifth Avenue for ten years to Forth & Powell, jewelers, successors to Ralph Dewey of New York and Paris. George R. Read & Co. were the brokers.

Baltimore Firm Leases Additional Space.

Henry Sonneborn & Co. of Baltimore, Md., who recently leased through M. & L. Hess the building 321 to 327 Sixth Avenue, formerly occupied by the O'Neill-Adams Company, for the manufacture of army uniforms, under a Government contract, have secured additional space.

Through the same brokers the firm has rented the adjoining building at 118 to 121 West Twentieth Street from the United States Realty and Improvement Company, which also owns the former property.

The two buildings have a floor area of 170,000 square feet, all of which will be used by the lessees to complete a Government contract for uniforms.

SENATOR HALE WARNS AGAINST GERMAN PEACE

Must Shatter War Machine, He Declares—Deplores Talk of Split in Congress.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Senator Hale of Maine, warning the Senate today against any peace until the German war machine was shattered, deplored impressions that Congress was aligned into two camps sparring for political advantages.

Some people, he said, seem to have the impression that the new revenue law is a victory for the conservative element in Congress, that the progressive or radical wing has been turned down, and that the old "stand-pat element" in both parties is in control; "in other words, that the great business interests have won a victory at the expense of the people."

That idea, he said, generated by speeches while the bill was pending, is wholly unfair. America, he said, had been told that it was in the war for world democracy, and had been insufficiently told that "our own democracy is at stake."

"Unless Germany is brought to the most condign punishment," he said, "her great military machine will not be given up, and her military prestige will be such that no country will care or dare to enter into conflict with her unless with the backing of the rest of the world. She will inevitably clash with South America and Mexico and would not be content until she has overrun us as she overran Belgium and Poland and tried to overrun France."

ANTI-DRAFT MEN CONVICTED

Eight of the Eleven on Trial in Oklahoma Found Guilty.

ENID, Okla., Oct. 5.—Eight men charged with conspiracy in connection with the Working Class Union and other alleged anti-draft organizations were convicted and three acquitted in the Federal Court here today. The convicted men will be sentenced tomorrow.

The maximum penalty for the offense is six years' imprisonment and a fine of $5,000 or both.

Cotton Bales to be Smaller.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Cotton growers and men representing every phase of the cotton industry met here today to devise means for more economical packing and more speedy transportation of the crop. Resolutions were passed favoring a standard size bale. The standard 500-pound bale is now packed 22½ pounds of cotton to the cubic foot, and the conference approved a compression of 32 to 35 pounds per cubic foot.

GONZALES STARTS REVOLT IN MEXICO

Former Carranza Commander Has 800 Men—Matamoras Train Service Abandoned.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Oct. 5.—A revolt against the Mexican Government has been started by General Porfirio Gonzales, former Carranza commander, who has mobilized 800 followers at Aldamas, near the Nuevo Leon-Tamaulipas line, 150 miles west of Matamoros, according to reports reaching here. Aldamas is 100 miles south of Roma, Texas.

All trains out of Matamoros, according to advices received here today, have been cancelled. Mexican officials say this is because of high water in the Rio Grande and San Juan. A report received late this afternoon said that military trains are beginning to move.

Few troops are stationed in Matamoros, but some are scattered along the frontier on the Mexican railway. The Mexican Consulate here said there was no confirmation of the reports of the revolt of General Gonzales.

CONTRADICTS UNTERMYER.

Former Owner of Warheit Gives Version of Sale of Publication.

L. E. Miller, former President of the Warheit Company, whose interest was bought with money furnished by Samuel Untermyer, in a letter made public yesterday flatly contradicts many details of the statement made by Mr. Untermyer explaining the Warheit transaction. Mr. Miller asserts in the letter that the Warheit was pro-Ally up to the time that control of the paper was purchased with Mr. Untermyer's money, and that it thereupon became pro-German.

Another detail in Mr. Untermyer's reply to Mayor Mitchel which is questioned by Mr. Miller is that the move to purchase The Leader took place before the war. Mr. Miller said he rejected the offer of Mr. Untermyer for an interest in The Leader on the ground that he considered it an attempt to control his pen. Mr. Untermyer in his statement said these negotiations took place "before the European war or any other war." On this point Mr. Miller said:

"If you will be kind enough to read over the letter quoted by yourself, in which I turned down your proposition to control the editorial policies of my publication, you will find out that it was dated Aug. 19, 1915, which was two days after we met for the first time in our lives and which was a year and seventeen days after the beginning of the war."

Regarding the statement of Mr. Untermyer that he took no interest in the Warheit himself, but only lent a "small sum" out of friendship to Judge Aaron J. Levy to enable him to buy the stock in the paper, Mr. Miller asserts that he received the personal check of Mr. Untermyer for the stock in the Warheit and that the check was for $50,000.

TWO KILLED IN AUTO CRASH.

Driver of Car That Hit Elevated Pillar Held for Homicide.

Julius Becker, 23 years old, of 501 West 167th Street, a Public Service Inspector, and John Hardy, 21 years old, of 75 Sherman Avenue, the Bronx, were killed yesterday morning at 2 o'clock when the automobile in which they were riding struck an elevated railway pillar at Jerome Avenue and 206th Street, the Bronx.

Samuel R. Douglas, 30 years old, of 103 West Eighty-ninth Street, who was driving the car, was taken to Fordham Hospital with a compound fracture of the left leg. Emil Mosbacher, 20 years old, a stock broker, of 580 West 172d Street, was taken to Fordham Hospital suffering from shock. After an investigation the police made a charge of intoxication and homicide against Douglas. It was learned that he was driving the car of George S. Ward of 155 Riverside Drive, President of the Ward Baking Company. Mr. Ward told the police that the chauffeur had taken the machine without permission.

HOME-RUN HIT DEFEATS GIANTS AS SERIES OPENS

SALLEE WORKS VALIANTLY

Veteran Pitcher Fails to Achieve Victory, but Gets Single Which Gives McGraw Only Run.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—A prodigious home run produced by Happy Felsch, which sailed in its frightened flight among the hysterical populace in the left field bleachers at Comisky Park this afternoon, gave the White Sox victory by the narrow margin of one run in the opening game of the world's series. The proud Giants of Manhattan paid the costly toll of the knuckle ball pitching of Eddie Cicotte by submitting to a 2 to 1 defeat.

A crowd of 32,000 howling, excited fans, who paid $73,152.50 to see the great baseball spectacle, bubbled over with joy when the American League champions subdued the best that the National League had to offer.

It was a tremendous drive, this circuit smash by Felsch. It came in the fourth inning, after Jackson was out by means of a giddy rocket to Burns. Slim Sallee, upon whose frail shoulders fell the responsibility of this first tense struggle before a hostile crowd, held the much vaunted hitting prowess of Felsch too cheaply. He figured that the Chicago batter would not thrust at the first ball pitched. Although a veteran of many seasons, the Sheriff flinger was wrong in his calculations.

There was nothing resembling a mystic curve on that first pitched ball, although there was plenty of speed behind it. It whizzed squarely over the plate and Felsch went after it with a mighty swing. High into the air it flew, as the crowd jumped to its 64,000 feet with a chant of joy.

Giants Watch Ball Sail Away.

Back toward the bleachers raced both Burns and Kauff, their necks stretched as they watched the ball, so high in the air that it looked the size of a pea. They saw that the ball was headed for the bleachers and gave up the chase, standing close to the low outfield fence, as a hundred hands grasped for the sphere. The fan who got the ball quickly tucked it away in his pocket, a souvenir which he will cherish long after this great triumph of Comiskey's Sox is forgotten.

In the previous inning the Sox had obtained a run, and they now had a 2 to 0 lead over the Giants. McGraw's men fought hard to overcome the advantage. In the fifth inning New York managed to break through Cicotte's pitching just long enough to get a single run and avert the painful shock of a shutout.

It was a three-base smash by Lew McCarty, followed by a single by Sallee himself, which gave the Giants their lonesome unit. Instead of weakening under this trying test Cicotte continued as steady as a rock, and smilingly confident after that one outburst he held the Giants in subjection through his wonderful control and rare pitching judgment.

Not a Vacant Seat.

The mellow Autumn sun has seldom smiled on a more attractive setting than the spectacle on the South Side this afternoon. The boxes, grand stand, pavilion, and bleachers were all jammed to the last seat. Way out in centre field there were many fans standing for hours, happy to get the chance to watch such a thrilling struggle.

Outside thousands lined the streets envying those who passed through the turnstiles. In the gathering were men who represented all classes of American sportsmen. They came from as far as Texas and Florida on the South and from the Pacific Coast. Thousands were there from New York, and even the rock-bound coast of Maine. Men who had paid $100 for one seat sat beside pop-eyed, expectant youths from the South Side of Chicago, who had been saving up their pennies for many a day to see this greatest of baseball battles.

The front of the stands and bleachers blazed forth in the national colors, the great streamers of red, white, and blue fluttering in the cool breeze which wafted in from Lake Michigan's waters. Military bands blared patriotic and popular tunes, and in the stand back of first base were thousands of Uncle Sam's soldiers from Fort Sheridan, who laid down their picks and shovels and rifles for a day to revel in the enthusiasm of a contest which has not its equal in American sports.

Chicago is happy tonight in this victory of Commy's boys. Before the game, the old Roman looked over his players and told them that the ambitions of his lifetime were at stake. He told them that he knew down deep in his heart that they could win if they would play the ball they were capable of playing.

The old Roman's dreams came true when Happy Felsch jammed his homer into the crowd and Eddie Cicotte, inning after inning, sent the dangerous Giants' batters back to the bench with deadly monotony. There were tears in Commy's eyes when he grasped Cicotte's hand

German Bread Ration to be Cut 10 Per Cent.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 6.—It is semi-officially announced in Berlin that the August estimate of the German grain crop has shown that a reduction of 10 per cent. in the bread ration from Nov. 1 will be necessary if the grain supply is to last out the year. In place of the bread, a corresponding amount of potatoes will be furnished.

The announcement seeks to convey the impression that the rations will be unchanged, notwithstanding the inferior nutritive value of potatoes as compared with an equal amount of flour. Assurance also is given that better flour, containing less bran than the present 94 per cent. grinding, will be furnished if the grain statistics now being collected show a larger harvest than was indicated by the August figures.

The price of bread has been increased 10 per cent. A four-pound rye loaf hereafter will cost 83 instead of 75 pfennigs, and the wheaten loaf 90 instead of 82 pfennigs.

HEARST LEAGUE AGAIN IN POLITICS

The Resuscitated Organization Opens Headquarters, Joining Anti-Mitchel Forces.

GIVES RECEPTION TO HYLAN

Socialists Appeal for $100,000 Fund in Effort to Win New York.

To the anti-Mitchel forces already in the field was added yesterday William R. Hearst's resuscitated Independence League. The league celebrated its entry into the campaign last night by giving a reception to Judge John F. Hylan, Charles L. Craig, and Sheriff Alfred E. Smith, candidates for Mayor, Controller, and President of the Aldermanic Board, on the Tammany-Democratic Fusion ticket, at its newly opened headquarters, 55 East Thirty-fourth Street.

The Independence League has been heard of very little since 1911, when, at the very opening of a campaign, William R. Hearst, who, for a number of years while it was promoting his political fortunes had financed the organization, threw it over with the blunt announcement that he would enroll as a Democrat. Early this year a series of dinners, given under the auspices of various district organizations of the Independence League, led to a surmise that Mr. Hearst intended to become a candidate for Mayor against Mayor Mitchel and again stood in need of some political agency that would relieve him from the necessity of accepting a nomination from Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy, whom in the past he had bitterly denounced and had pictured in stripes by the cartoonists of his newspapers.

Although relations between Mr. Hearst and the Independence League were severed officially in 1911, it was noticed yesterday that a flag-draped likeness of Mr. Hearst adorned the walls of its newly opened campaign headquarters. Until yesterday the official headquarters of the New York County organization of the Independence League has been in the office of Mr. Hearst's New York American. At least the letterheads of the league give direction that communications intended for J. Irving Hanshe, Secretary of the Independence League County Committee, should be addressed "in care of The American."

Talks on City Ownership.

At the reception Judge Hylan was cheered by those who crowded into the new headquarters to greet him, and his fellow candidates. In speaking he took municipal ownership—now a tenet in the Tammany confession of faith—as his theme. Corruption has been the rule and not the exception, Judge Hylan said, in the framing and bestowal of franchises to public service corporations.

"There are many people who at heart believe in municipal ownership," he said, "yet fear that the municipality could not or would not operate our public utilities as cheaply or as well as the corporations do. This is because these people are dependent for their information on such matters very largely upon newspapers, many of which are the organs of the corporate interests, and interested in coloring all news to match the standards set by their owners. These newspapers persistently distort facts and omit all evidence in favor of the reform proposed. To these people in particular I want to say that even if it were true that the city could not operate our railroads and lighting plants as economically as the corporations do, still it would be in the interest of the community to operate them nevertheless, for only by this means can the municipal government be freed from the demoralizing influence of corporate control that persistently assails it. But I will go further and say to such people that they need have no alarm, for the fact is that other cities are operating municipal plants with much success and cheaper and better than corporations."

Judge Hylan scouted the idea that jobs would be given as a result of political pull, if the city took over the operation of public utilities. He said the same men who were running them now would be retained, and would receive better treatment than city employes generally receive, and this, he thought, would tend to improve the service.

Say League Is Back to Stay.

In the Mayoralty campaign this year the problematical force of the Independence League will be marshalled behind Judge Hylan and his associates on the Tammany Hall-Democratic Fusion ticket. Michael J. McCarthy, Chairman of the Independence League Campaign Committee, said last night that the league would be on the firing line for Hylan in a few days.

Should Mr. Hearst return from California in time to take active part in the campaign—and some expect that he will come back this week—his speeches will be delivered under the auspices of the organization he discarded six years ago. Moreover, it was announced yesterday that the league was back in the political arena to stay. In the event of Judge Hylan's election as Mayor the leaders in the league are hopeful that enough city patronage will be diverted from Tammany to Mr. Hearst's former organization, to enable it to rebuilt its shattered political fortunes.

"We have not as yet made up a schedule of meetings," said Mr. McCarthy last night. "We will be ready to begin work, however, immediately registration is over. Next week, with registration in progress, we will do nothing to keep the voters from qualifying for the right to go to their polling

WILSON PRAISES WORK OF CONGRESS AS SESSION ENDS

President Signs All the Bills and Declares Nation's Needs Have Been Fully Met.

VOICES HOPE OF VICTORY

Says Session Leaves No Doubt of Country's Spirit of Determination.

PERSHING MADE A GENERAL

Senate Also Confirms Bliss—Marshall and Clark Congratulate Colleagues.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The special war session of the Sixty-fifth Congress, one of the most important in the history of the United States, came to an end at 3 o'clock this afternoon. This session, which began on April 2, the day President Wilson delivered his war address, lasted 188 days. In that time legislation involving new and vital principles and the expenditure of billions of dollars was enacted. Congress will reassemble in regular session in December.

Aside from the speech of Senator La Follette defending himself from having made disloyal utterances in an address in St. Paul, and critical responses by Senators Kellogg, Robinson, and Fall, the Senate's closing scenes were without unusual incident. In the House nothing occurred to stir the tired members to any degree of animation. Altogether, considering the importance of the war session, it was a tame ending.

The galleries of both houses were crowded throughout the day. President Wilson went to the Capitol to sign eleventh-hour bills and resolutions, and held a reception in the President's room just outside the Senate chamber. Bureau chiefs of the War Department, all in uniform, were present when he signed the soldiers and sailors' insurance measure that will give these chiefs the higher rank of Major General.

The Senate in the closing hours confirmed the nominations of Major Gen. Pershing, in command of the American expeditionary forces in France, and Major Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, chief of the Army General Staff, to the rank of General, which they will hold for the period of their present assignment.

These Brigadier Generals were confirmed at the same time to be Major Generals: Henry P. McCain, Adjutant General; John L. Chamberlain, Inspector General; Enoch H. Crowder, Judge Advocate; W. H. Black, Chief of Engineers; William Crozier, Chief of Ordnance; George O. Squier, Chief of Signal Service, and Frank H. McIntyre, Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs.

The largest appropriation measure in the history of the United States became law when President Wilson signed the urgent deficiency bill carrying $7,758,124,000, principally for war purposes. The Trading with the Enemy act was among the many measures which the President signed.

Praise From the President.

Shortly before adjournment both Houses heard the following message from President Wilson:

"The needs of the Army and Navy have been met in a way that assures the effectiveness of American arms, and the warmaking branch of the Government has been abundantly equipped with the powers that were necessary to make the action of the nation effective.

"The Sixty-fifth Congress, now adjourning, deserves the gratitude and appreciation of a people whose will and purpose I believe it has faithfully expressed. One cannot examine the record of its action without being impressed by its completeness, its courage, and its full comprehension of a great task.

I believe that it has also in equal degree, and as far as possible in the face of war, safeguarded the rights of the people and kept in mind the considerations of social justice so often obscured in the hasty readjustments of such a crisis.

"It seems to me that the work of this remarkable session has not only been done thoroughly, but that it has also been done with the utmost dispatch possible in the circumstances or consistent with a full consideration of the exceedingly critical matters dealt with. Best of all, it has left no doubt as to the spirit and determination of the country, but has affirmed them as loyally and as emphatically as our fine soldiers will affirm them on the firing line."

Speaker Clark addressed the House as follows:

"The amount of business done is absolutely amazing and stupendous. I believe that every member of the House has contributed all that was in him to the support of the Government. Politics has been abolished. Every man has given simply his utmost in patriotism. I doubt if any Congress from now until the day of judgment will ever vote as much money as this one—and I sincerely hope not!

"Every dollar asked by the warmaking departments has been given loyally and freely. I believe every member deserves well of the people for what we have done—and, the hour of 3 o'clock having arrived, I adjourn this Congress, sine die, with the hope that God will hold you in His holy keeping during our recess."

Marshall Thanks Senate.

In the Senate Vice President Marshall made a farewell address. He said:

"The present occupant of the chair

Finland Making Plans to Set Up a Republic

PETROGRAD, Oct. 6.—The Finnish Senate has prepared a plan for the formation of a new independent Government for Finland, with a President elected by direct vote for a five-year term, and with a Cabinet responsible to the Diet, according to a special dispatch from Helsingfors today. It is proposed to send diplomatic representatives to other nations and also ask representation in the general peace conference.

The expectation is expressed that after the war Russia will withdraw her military forces, vacating the Finnish fortresses.

GERMANS AT YPRES FAIL TO ATTACK

GUNFIRE IS INCESSANT

British Repulse a Raid South of Hollebeke — Have 380 More Prisoners.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Despite increased activity of German artillery along the whole Ypres battle front last night and throughout today, no German counter-attacks developed. The British total of prisoners has been raised by 380 in the last twenty-four hours, according to tonight's official report.

An Associated Press dispatch says that British patrols have found on one section of the front some shell holes abandoned by German troops, indicating a further withdrawal of the enemy's defenses in that quarter.

New Withdrawal of German Defense?

An Associated Press dispatch from the British front in France and Belgium says:

"The Germans attempted no counter-attacks of importance along the new battle front during the night, and both sides were taking a breathing spell after the arduous work of the last two days. The artillery, of course, maintained its ceaseless firing at various points.

"A cold, drizzling rain was falling this morning, adding still more to the discomforts of the men lying out in the mud and water in this inhospitable zone. At some places along the line the Germans found themselves in such exposed positions as a result of Thursday's drive that they are reported to have pulled their defenses back a short distance to more favorable ground. British patrols, which pushed out into enemy territory, found the forward shell-hole defenses in one section abandoned.

"The diminution in the fighting spirit of the German troops along the Ypres battle front is generally admitted by prisoners and has been evidenced in the tactics employed recently. One German officer said that the worst effect on the morale of the Germans was occasioned by the British artillery fire, which he characterized as too terrific for words.

"The British morale and organization, on the other hand, have never been at a higher pitch than at present. The success of the recent offensives is proof of the perfection achieved by the British higher command. The British troops are in high fettle over their latest victory. On every side one hears the comment: 'When Spring comes, and the Americans are in the line with the Allies, nothing can hold us back.'"

Shell Craters Filled with Dead.

The Associated Press correspondent at the front in Belgium, telegraphing on Friday, said:

"The Germans suffered severely in the British attack Thursday, and a trip along the battle front east and northeast of Ypres showed hundreds of bodies of German soldiers among the debris. At many places shell craters were filled with dead. Here and there were wounded, sometimes under a pile of corpses, whom the British stretcher bearers had not been able to reach.

"Along one section of the Australian front 1,000 bodies were counted. A little farther south there was another lot of 700. Some of these had been prisoners who were making their way back within the British lines when they were caught in their own barrage and killed. One officer of the Prussian Guards, who was captured near Polygon Wood, said that British shell fire worked terrible havoc among his men.

"A British airplane, with an Australian as its pilot, had a remarkable experience yesterday. The pilot and observer kept at work despite the clouds and the rain. The Germans fired many

LA FOLLETTE SAYS HE WILL CONTINUE TO OPPOSE THE WAR

WANTS WAR AIMS STATED

Declares Congress Should Define Them—Warns of Evils of One-Man Power.

ATTACKED BY 3 SENATORS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Senator La Follette, facing the possibility of expulsion on charges of disloyalty, today defied his critics in a two-hour speech in the Senate. He argued that he was within his constitutional rights in criticising the policy of the Government, and at no time sought to withdraw or palliate the remarks which impelled the Minnesota Public Safety Committee and thousands of other citizens to petition for his expulsion from the Senate. The speech of the accused Senator and replies made by Senator Kellogg of Minnesota, Robinson of Arkansas, and Fall of New Mexico consumed nearly the entire five hours of the closing session of this epochal Congress.

The scene in the Senate was dramatic. The galleries were crowded. President Wilson and many military leaders were within hearing distance most of the afternoon. President Wilson came to the Capitol to be present for the signing of bills on the last day and, in his private room just outside the Senate chamber, might easily have heard the caustic speech made against the un-American utterances of the Wisconsin Senator by Senator Robinson.

Senator La Follette began his defense shortly after the Senate came into session at 10 o'clock. He read most of his speech from manuscript. At no time did he display his characteristic vehemency. He based his opposition to the war policies of the Government on the constitutional right of free speech and asserted:

"Not by the breadth of a hair would I deviate from the course I mark out for myself, guided by such knowledge as I can obtain and controlled and directed by a solemn conviction of right and duty."

Senator La Follette did not mention his St. Paul speech, on which the applications for his expulsion are largely based. He devoted part of his speech to arguing that, as Congress was charged with the prosecution of the war, it should at the earliest possible opportunity declare the purposes for which the country was fighting.

Links Kaiser and La Follette.

The climax to three hours of tenseness came when Senator Robinson of Arkansas launched a bitter personal attack upon Senator La Follette. Facing the accused Senator just across the aisle, he shouted:

"If I entertained the sentiments the Senator from Wisconsin has expressed I would not think I had a right to occupy a seat in the United States Senate. I would apply to the Kaiser for a seat in the German Bundesrat."

Senator La Follette did not raise his head. He kept notes during most of the time the Senator from Arkansas was speaking, but did not have an opportunity to reply.

Senator Robinson piled denunciation upon denunciation. Throughout his speech he linked the Kaiser with the Wisconsin Senator.

"If the Kaiser and the Senator had their way," he said, "honesty would become a tradition, and tyranny the ruling power throughout the world. God pity the man who would paralyze the arm of the American people in this conflict."

Senator La Follette sought to explain a feature of his St. Paul speech, but Senator Fall, who closed the attack, declined to yield. At 3 o'clock Senator Fall was interrupted in his speech by the fall of the gavel, and the Senate adjourned sine die. The special committee of five Senators, Pomerene, James, Walsh, Dillingham, and Fall, appointed to investigate the charges against La Follette, will start the inquiry next Monday morning and continue it during the recess for report to the next session of Congress.

SEPTEMBER U-BOAT LOSSES AT LOW MARK, LARGELY DUE TO OUR DESTROYERS' WORK; WASHINGTON CUTS RATES ON WAR RISKS

Cutters and Trawlers Have Joined Our Destroyers in European Waters to Help in Allied Patrol Duty

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—News has been received by the Navy Department of the safe arrival in European waters of a number of cutters of the Coast Guard, accompanied by a number of vessels formerly used in the coastal fishing trade.

The Coast Guard boats were detached from patrol duty in home waters when the work of recommissioning naval vessels which were in reserve had proceeded to a point where the cutters were no longer needed.

These vessels have been assigned to work in co-operation with the destroyer flotilla under Vice Admiral Sims. The censorship rules prohibit any statement of the number of boats sent, but it can be stated that their duties will be largely confined to mine sweeping.

The fishing craft, almost entirely of the steam trawler type, will also be used in this work. Because of their unique construction, they are held to be splendidly adapted for this purpose.

WAR RISK RATES CUT 25 PER CENT.

Washington Bases Its Action on Decrease in Danger in Submarine Zone.

EARLY REVISIONS UPWARD

United States Is First Government to Reduce the Cost of Insurance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—A reduction of nearly 25 per cent. in premiums for insurance of American vessels and cargoes traversing the war zone was announced today by the Government's War Risk Insurance Bureau.

The reduction was made, it was officially announced, "because of the decrease in the risks." Unofficially it was regarded as the Government's expression of its opinion, in terms of dollars and cents, that the U-boats have passed the zenith in their campaign of frightfulness.

Indications have not been lacking for the last three weeks that the Government intended to revise its war risk insurance rates in the light of reduced effectiveness of German submarines. It hardly was thought, however, that the cut would be large.

Due to Decrease in Risks.

Announcement of the reduction was made in this cryptic statement by the Treasury Department:

The Secretary of the Treasury today announced that the Bureau of War Risk Insurance has reduced its rates on all American steamers and cargoes traversing the war zone from 6½ per cent. to 5 per cent.

This reduction is made because of the corresponding decrease in the risks.

A high official of the department said:

"The Government is not in the insurance business to make money. The rates that have been applied for the last few months, since this country declared war on Germany, have been fixed by actuaries as based on actual sinkings of vessels that have cleared for ocean voyages. The losses sustained by this Government have not been excessive. The Government, as a simple matter of fact, made money at a very handsome rate on the capital invested.

"The sinkings by German submarines in the zone of activity around the British Isles for the last two months under the prosecution of a very vigorous patrol system have been steadily diminishing and the indications are that with the Winter and the storm conditions of the Fall and Winter there will be a still further decrease of submarine warfare. Our own ships are now getting across safely every day. Troops are being moved without the slightest hindrance. It is, therefore, clearly a wise thing to reduce insurance rates and give the public the assurance of ocean safety that is justified by the facts. It is not unlikely that there may be further reductions if, as we expect, there should be a continued lessening of the submarine menace."

Determination of the war risk premium is based on many factors, but primarily on the number of vessels traversing the war zone and the number of sinkings. The effectiveness of methods used in combating submarines also enters largely into consideration.

From the Government's announcement it is regarded as apparent that officials believe effective methods have been adopted to deal with the U-boats, although details of these methods cannot be revealed.

Today's announcement marks the first reduction in any Government insurance risk to any waters infested by submarines. Heretofore the revisions have all been upward. The first increase was announced March 21, before America's entry into the war, and approximately seven weeks after the German Admiralty put into effect its campaign of ruthlessness. This increase was approximately 30 per cent., or, on the average, from 2 to 3 per cent. of the value of the ships and cargoes.

Rate Increased Before.

Little more than two weeks after America's entry into the war the rate was increased approximately two-thirds, or, generally, from 3 to 5 per cent. Announcement was made that the increase was put into effect to bring American rates to a parity with those maintained by other Governments. It is significant, however, that the increase was announced on the same day that the German submarines ended the week of their maximum achievement—the week of April 21, when forty vessels of more than 1,600 tons were sent to the bottom.

The third and last increase, announced July 27, brought rates up to 6½ per cent. It was made, the bureau announced, "because the 5 per cent. rate is not adequate for the risks undertaken through the so-called war zone, as the bureau has sustained a number of heavy losses."

Steady diminution in the number of weekly sinkings since Sept. 2 is primarily responsible for the decrease in rates announced today.

DESTROYER FOUGHT U-BOAT 22 MINUTES

WARSHIP ATTACKED THRICE

Depth Charge Fired Each Time and Bubbles and Oil Were Left on Water.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—In making public today an account of an action between an American destroyer in European waters and a German submarine the Navy Department avoided any assertion that the U-boat had been destroyed, although all indications pointed to that result.

Announcement was made in the following statement:

"The Secretary of the Navy authorizes the publication of this account of an engagement between an American destroyer and an enemy submarine.

"This is one of a number of encounters of a more or less similar nature, the details of which have been made public in this manner as soon as possible.

"A feature of interest attaches to this engagement because it was the occasion for a letter of appreciation from the British Admiralty, which expressed admiration for the efficient and seamanlike conduct of the officers and crew of the American destroyer.

"For military reasons the name of the destroyer and the date and location of the action are withheld.

"The following account of the engagement was prepared from the complete report received by the Navy Department:

"The American destroyer first sighted the submarine in the early morning of a clear day. The sea was entirely calm, with hardly a ripple of foam. The submarine was running submerged, with only her periscope showing. A large number of merchant ships were in sight. The U-boat was less than a mile off the port beam of the destroyer and following a parallel course in an opposite direction when the periscope was discovered. It was throwing up a column of water several feet in height, so like a nearly spent torpedo that the officer of the deck thought for a moment that that was what it was.

Fired on the Periscope.

"The next instant the destroyer changed course sharply to the left and headed for the U-boat at full speed. At the same time the forward guns opened fire on the periscope. The commanding officer ordered a course steered that would bring the destroyer across the wake of the U-boat a little to the rear of the periscope.

"As the destroyer dashed across the line of bubbles, a depth charge was dropped, and a column of clear water shot thirty feet into the air. The destroyer turned to the right swiftly circling, and her starboard guns opened on the periscope as she came around to cross the U-boat's wake again. Again a column of clear water showed that the depth charge had not reached its mark.

"Another quick turn to the right brought the starboard guns to bear, but this time the destroyer turned so sharply that she was able to come down for the third attack in the wake of the submarine. The third depth charge brought up a column of clear water, and the destroyer wheeled once more, this time to the left, and all the port guns opened up, but without visible result.

"The last time the destroyer came down to the attack exactly in the wake of the U-boat and ceased firing. As she neared the end of the line of bubbles the fourth depth charge was let go and there followed a widespread boiling of the surface of the sea, large bubbles, and at last a heavy film of oil.

"The destroyer spent some time looking for further traces of the U-boat, but none was found. She then proceeded on her course. The engagement lasted twenty-two minutes."

The report on which the department's statement was founded was made by Vice Admiral Sims, in command of American destroyers in the war zone. Although he indicated his belief that

MONTH'S LOSS SMALLEST YET

Probably About 350,000 Tons, or Less Than 90,000 Tons Weekly.

ALL RECORDS ARE BROKEN

Totals Include the Losses of All the Allies and the Neutrals.

CONVOY METHOD A SUCCESS

But Our Efficient Patrol Fleet Still Needs Strengthening to End the Menace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—While the official tonnage figures of submarine sinkings for September complete are not available, it looks, when one bases estimates for the last two weeks of the month on the figures of the first two weeks, for which THE TIMES printed the tonnage, and on the number of ships sunk in the last two weeks, as given out by the British Admiralty, as if the September total may have dropped as low as 350,000 tons, or a weekly average of less than 90,000. The actual figures for the first two weeks include the allied and neutral as well as British losses.

The average compares with a weekly average of nearly 130,000 tons for the eight months from January to August, inclusive, these also being the losses for the Allies and neutrals.

The returns do not yet justify hurrahing, but they indicate the direction in which the allied efforts can be made successful. And what makes the improvement pleasurably palatable is that Americans have had an energetic and efficient share in challenging the U-boat terrorism.

The United States Government should reinforce this gallant defense on the Atlantic with every single vessel it can send, especially destroyers and cruisers, to tighten the convoy system now chiefly maintained by the American Navy. While the seaplanes are doing fine work and in other ways the submarines are being beaten back and destroyed, the main reliance is on the destroyer.

A comparison of the September estimate with the actual tonnage for the previous months, as published in THE TIMES, indicates that the low record was reached last month. The second week in September broke all records, and on one day in the third week not a single British ship was sunk—another record. These facts explain Lord Northcliffe's United Press statement concerning the small losses of the week.

America is hitting blows that tell against the submarines. Still, more of her good vessels and fine personnel are needed to drive them home.

The situation, however, still calls for every particle of hustling that America is capable of in shipbuilding, as well as in convoy protection.

Following, in terms of tonnage, are the monthly sinkings by German submarines from January to August inclusive, the figures being for the Allies and neutrals in the aggregate, but not including raider losses and ships damaged or beached but not sunk. The weekly averages are given for the purposes of comparison:

| | Total Tonnage. | Sunk Weekly. |
| January, (four weeks) | 333,000 | 83,000 |
| February, (four weeks) | 479,000 | 120,000 |
| March, (five weeks) | 660,000 | 120,000 |
| April, (four weeks) | 788,000 | 197,000 |
| May, (four weeks) | 549,000 | 137,000 |
| June, (five weeks) | 736,000 | 152,000 |
| July, (four weeks) | 463,000 | 116,000 |
| August, (five weeks) | 891,000 | 118,000 |

Against this loss of about four and a half million tons in eight months, new construction is estimated at less than a million tons, leaving the net loss to allied and neutral shipping at about three and a half million tons. The loss to American shipping in this period is said to have been less than one-half of 1 per cent.

SIX U-BOATS MADE ATTACK.

Daniels Issues Report of Raid on Convoyed Merchantmen.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—More details of the attack by German submarines recently on a large convoy of merchant vessels have been received by Secretary Daniels from the naval commander of the armed guard of the American merchant ship Westwego, which several weeks ago dashed the original report on the episode.

The commander's report was not given out textually, but served as the basis for a bulletin which Mr. Daniels issued tonight, indicating that six submarines were in the flotilla that made the attack and one merchant vessel was sunk, another badly damaged, but that none of the convoyed vessels was American.

Secretary Daniels authorized the following statement based on the detailed report of the naval commander:

"One merchant ship was sunk and another badly damaged in an attack of enemy submarines on a large convoy of merchantmen. These were not American vessels. The exact number of submarines engaged could not be determined, but the general belief was that there were six.

"The first intimation of the attack which the Westwego received was the torpedoing of a merchantman some distance away. The propeller and rudder of this ship were blow away and there was a large hole in the stern. She was afterward towed into port.

"At almost the same time a tanker was struck squarely amidships by a torpedo. This ship sank rapidly. Up to this time no one on the Westwego had seen a periscope. A destroyer which had been on the Westwego's starboard beam turned back and dropped two depth bombs. Flying débris and oil on the surface of the water followed one of these explosions.

"This marked the end of the attack. Various reports from different ships as to the number of submarines sighted were received immediately after the attack. They did not agree, but, as stated, the general belief after comparing the different reports was that there were six U-boats in the attack.

"Less than a half hour later a periscope appeared within a few yards of the side of Westwego and drifted astern, where it quickly disappeared in the wake of the ship. Destroyers concentrated at the spot and the periscope presently reappeared more than a half mile away. It was visible for a few moments only. The destroyers continued the search, but nothing more of this U-boat was seen. If she attempted to torpedo any of the ships in the convoy there was no sign.

"The remainder of the voyage was uneventful."

NEW DESTROYERS A SUCCESS.

Officers Enthusiastic Over Our Navy's Flush-Deck Type.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The navy's newest destroyers, the flush-deck types, have proved successful in trials just conducted, according to reports on the official tests just received at the Navy Department.

The new boats were required to develop not less than 35 knots on their trial trip, but with the engines properly tuned up several knots additional are not only possible but probable. It is not permitted to publish the results further than to say that the officers were enthusiastic in their reports.

AMERICAN SHIP LOST WHEN MINE SWEEPING

Auxiliary Foundered on Oct. 4, Washington Announces—All on Board Rescued.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. — Secretary Daniels issued tonight the following bulletin based on a brief cable code flashed from Vice Admiral Sims:

"The Navy Department is in receipt of a dispatch from Vice Admiral Sims which states that an American patrol vessel foundered while on duty in foreign waters on the morning of Oct. 4. All of the officers and entire crew were saved and safely landed. An investigation is being made as to the loss of this vessel. The Navy Department has no further information concerning the details except those as above given."

The lost ship was an auxiliary, not one of the regular navy list, and was on mine sweeping work when lost. The report that she foundered is taken here to mean she was lost in rough weather.

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 6.—The Peruvian Government has handed his passports to Dr. Perl, the German Minister. It was stated today that after turning the German Legation over to the Spanish Minister, Dr. Perl would proceed to Chile.

The decision reached last night by the Peruvian Congress to sever diplomatic relations with Germany came after a sensational debate. Members of the Diplomatic Corps and their families and a large crowd were present when the vote, which stood 105 to 6, was taken.

LONDON, Sept. 20, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—According to a Petrograd dispatch, Nicholas Romanoff, the deposed Russian Emperor, passes a great deal of his time in playing whist, of which he is very fond. In pre-war times whist was one of the most popular Court diversions in Russia, and the Emperor had a special de luxe card which was made for his exclusive use.

Over 1,200 packs of these imperial cards were used every year, and they cost the Russian Government about $7 a pack, being made of the finest linen rags, with a watermark of the imperial crown and eagle.

a victory had been scored, Admiral Benson, Chief of Naval Operations, pointed out that the experience of Great Britain and France in similar cases made it unwise to place too much confidence in circumstantial evidence. He added that the department would not make claims which would not be sustained beyond doubt.

The allied powers have found by experience that the German submarine commanders attempt to create the impression on the surface that their craft have been destroyed, and thus terminate the pursuit. There have been cases where destroyers have dropped depth bombs and oil has come up, indicating a hit. The assumption is that the oil was released to divert attention, while the U-boat crept away.

There are other cases where a submarine has dropped to the bottom in shallow water and rested there for a day or two, waiting for the microphones to show that no destroyer lurked in the vicinity before she came up.

Admiral Benson made it clear that no Government had definite knowledge of the number of German submarines or the rate of construction. Conclusions were arrived at from various factors and estimates based on these, he said, but there was nothing to indicate clearly what Germany was doing to increase her undersea fleet. Reports to all Admiralties, however, agree that Germany has larger U-boats than those now in use either already afloat or coming forward. The Admiral gave no figures as to the size indicated.

REICHSTAG UPROAR AGAINST MINISTERS

Von Stein Is Jeered and Helfferich Is Forced to Discontinue a Speech.

TIRPITZ PARTY DENOUNCED

Socialist Member Brands New Political Group as Band of War Profiteers.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 6.—The Reichstag, according to Berlin dispatches, discussed today the Socialist interpellation concerning Admiral von Tirpitz and the new German Fatherland Party.

Herr Landsberg, Socialist, said that the new party was a Pan German institution, its particular object being to obtain support for its leaders by means of war profits and the purchase of newspapers to influence public opinion and set forth Germany's war aims, which would give them increased dividends. The Socialists, on the contrary, Herr Landsberg said, demanded that the freedom of the nation should be promoted because democracy was its greatest strength.

Referring to the agitation in behalf of the new party's propaganda against the Reichstag peace resolution, Herr Landsberg continued:

"We must get out of the suffocating atmosphere of a state of siege. The War Minister must admit that he protects the agitation, as he himself wrote a polemic against the Reichstag resolution.

"The way of the sword this time will not spoil the good work of the pen. The Chancellor must in his own interest and that of the nation declare against Pan German agitation. On his attitude greatly depends the country's attitude and the country's welfare."

Herr Landsberg said that clergymen and the State authorities agitated among the population in behalf of the Fatherland Party, and that army officers, by speeches and the distribution of pamphlets, carried on a propaganda among the soldiers against the Reichstag resolution.

War Minister Is Jeered.

Minister of War von Stein, in replying to Herr Landsberg, said that the army command did not permit political agitation within the army. This caused a stir and cries of "Oh, Oh!" from the left. The President pointed out the impossibility of further debate under such conditions and begged the Deputies to resume their seats.

Minister von Stein continuing, said:

"The explanations given in the army are of quite different tendencies and purport. In view of the enemy's lies, which are circulated all around the world, it is clear that our soldiers must be enlightened concerning the real causes of the war and the enemy's intentions and the consequences if we lost. Men on leave must be enlightened regarding the difficulties at home, and to this must be added some explanations about supplies.

"The army hungers for intellectual nutriment and, therefore, the army command has issued general instructions regarding lectures, plays, cinemas, pamphlets, and army newspapers. There is no word of politics in this. It may be true that certain impulsive natures exceeded these limits, but steps were immediately taken against this."

Charges Sowing of Discord.

Minister von Stein asserted there were other sorts of agitation, such as reports that differences existed between Field Marshal von Hindenburg and Quartermaster General von Ludendorff. He added that no two persons in Germany were so united in their convictions as these two leaders.

The War Minister then charged that enemy agents were endeavoring to induce dissension and vacillation among the German people—therefore, he said, principles had been laid down for the army in the field and the army at home. He asserted that the enemy, too, has an army propaganda to instill the spirit of victory in their ranks.

"We aim also at maintaining the spirit of our army at the level with which it entered the campaign," Minister von Stein said:

"No army which lacks the will to gain victory, and a confidence in victory is a serviceable instrument. We could drop all this and leave the rest to the enemy. As we do not, however, wish this, nor do you, we shall continue to use enlightenment in this sense in our army."

Outbreak Stops Helfferich Speech.

Secretary of the Interior Helfferich, who followed Minister von Stein, said it was not permitted to any official to use his position to exercise political pressure on his subordinates.

"I make this statement in the name of the Chancellor, who seeks to safeguard this principle," Secretary Helfferich announced.

Herr Landsberg then asked Dr. Helfferich about his attitude toward the Fatherland Party. The Secretary answered that he spoke as the Chancellor's representative because Dr. Michaelis was too much burdened with other business to come to the Reichstag. He added:

"There is no question here of large political importance, and the Chancellor's attitude toward our war aims is not the subject of an interpellation. I gather from Herr Landsberg's words that the Chancellor ought to hurl the ban of excommunication against the Fatherland Party."

"If that is untrue, I need waste no further words. If you have no confidence in the men at the head of the army and the Government, then—"

"Then, there is no object in my addressing you."

At this point there was more disorder and the speaker refused to proceed.

PROTEST MEETING IN BERLIN.

Tirpitz Party Denounced as Imperiling Peace Prospects.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 6.—The agitation against the so-called Fatherland Party continues to increase. Wolfgang Heine led a big peace manifestation yesterday in Berlin, which ended in the adoption of a resolution that the German Government should not recognize and should refuse to support officially this new party.

Heine, in his speech, said that all annexationist ideas must at once be abandoned if war was ever to be ended.

"The shouts of the Pan Germans," he said, "could easily complicate our relations with Austria. It is high time that the German people assemble for a strong protest against the screams of the Pan Germans and their new Fatherland Party."

The Tageblatt says the Fatherland Party recently distributed pamphlets explaining its aims, stating that the party is not connected with internal politics. The paper says that nevertheless the pamphlet urges that the question of domestic reform should not be raised during the war and mocks at Bethmann.

The German Socialist papers continue to busy themselves with the question of Belgium. A Saxon Socialist organ asserts that Germany's real intentions are a restoration of Belgium with guarantees for the separation of the Walloons and Flemings in internal administration and the assignment of a large part of the Belgian Congo to Germany in return for payment as compensation, which will help in the reconstruction of the Belgian motherland.

The paper thinks that the Government has always held a too indefinite attitude regarding Belgium, and although it has never professed annexationist intentions it has always talked of "guarantees" and of never again allowing Belgium to be a British stronghold. The newspaper further argues that the Government's continued generalizations about Belgium have awakened great distrust abroad.

GERMANS SEE HOPE IN HOUSE'S MISSION

Profess to Discern in Our Independent Attitude Some Chance of a Separate Peace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 6.—It is evident that Colonel House's new mission has reawakened peace hopes in Teuton breasts, and the Germans profess to find these hopes in extracts from American comment available in Switzerland.

The Weser Zeitung asserts that there are even suggestions of a separate peace between the Central Powers and America, "as America is adopting such an independent attitude toward the Allies and regarding a future peace conference." This paper finds THE NEW YORK TIMES article most significant, especially the conclusion of the article: "As the United States fights on the side of the Entente without being bound by treaties, so at the peace conference she will also appear at the side of the Allies without being bound to any nation."

DECIDE TO TIE UP ALL RUSSIAN ROADS

CABINET CRISIS STILL ON

Mixed Conference Fails to Reach Agreement—"Preliminary Parliament" Named.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 6.—A strike on all railway lines has been decided upon by the Railway Men's Committee in consequence of the Government's delay in dealing with the demand for an increase in wages. Only military and munitions trains are to be permitted to run.

Premier Kerensky issued an appeal to the railway men not to multiply the country's difficulties by inconsiderate action, but to wait a few days longer, as the whole question would be decided speedily. The Strike Committee notified the Premier that the railway men would not suspend action beyond noon on Saturday.

General Korniloff, who led the unsuccessful revolt against the Kerensky Government, has asked M. Maklakoff, Teslinko, and Adjemoff, eminent barristers and leading members of the Constitutional Democratic Party, to defend him at his trial. They have agreed to do so.

Conference Long in Session.

PETROGRAD, Friday, Oct. 5, (Delayed.)—The Government Council, the representatives of the Moscow industrial interests, and five peasant and soldiers' delegates from the Democratic Congress, who have been in conference in an earnest attempt to settle Russia's political and economic crisis, had not reached an agreement when they took a recess this evening until late at night, after six hours' consultation with a view to the formation of a coalition Cabinet. The men as they came out of the conference room were still in a hopeful frame of mind, it appeared, however, although the Government spokesmen would not describe the situation as one to be viewed with optimism.

The conference, which was held in the Winter Palace with Premier Kerensky presiding, was a unique gathering representative of revolutionary Russia. It was the first time that the shaggy peasants and soldiers, who had been accustomed to demonstrating against and attacking the bourgeoisie, and sat with them on equal terms at the council table. The Moscow representatives, M. Kishkin, Konovaloff, Tretiakoff and Smirnoff, wealthy industrial leaders, carefully groomed and suave in manner, appeared in sharp contrast in the council room picture with their bluntly eloquent opponents in peasant garb.

It is understood that the Government, as well as the Moscow leaders, stood firmly for the necessity of admitting representatives of the Constitutional Democrats to the Cabinet, and that this question was still the stumbling block at the hour the recess was taken.

The Democratic Congress adjourned tonight after having appointed a preliminary Parliament of 305 members, who will begin their sittings tomorrow and continue in session until the meeting of the Constituent Assembly.

PARIS EXILE BESPEAKS PATIENCE WITH RUSSIA

Says Her Long Sufferings Explain Her Temporary Loss of Balance.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—While France, in common with the rest of the world, follows events in Russia with absorbing interest, it is doubtful whether even in Petrograd itself each new turn of the kaleidoscope causes greater excitement than in the Café de la Rotonde on the Boulevard Montparnasse, which Paris knows as the chosen den of Cubist painters and longhaired poets.

But the café was also the favorite rendezvous of Russian exiles, revolutionaries, and Nihilists. At the Rotonde's little square tables they whiled away months, and even years, of exile with interminable chess games. No less longhaired than the poets, their attire stranger than that of even the Cubist painters, they became part of the Rotonde atmosphere, and even now, when their leaders are gone, those who remain make up the loss by more vociferous argument and increased excitement.

At a table in a corner used to sit Tchernoff, the real leader of the extremist agrarian party against Kerensky, and with him his colleague Avsensieff, now President of the peasant Soviet's committee. Savinkoff, ex-Minister of War, was often beside them, his supple fingers that had rid Russia of Plehve, pouncing with sudden decision on his opponent's piece. When the game was over they would dine in the tiny nearby restaurant at the Hôtel des Etats Unis—a name pregnant with freedom for the apostles of Russian liberty.

These three abandoned the Kerensky Cabinet a few weeks ago at the time of Korniloff's movement, and for a while it seemed as if their influence would checkmate Kerensky. At first their compatriots in the Rotonde wished them success for friendship's sake and Russia's both, but later events brought new wisdom. Even the most confirmed extremist here now realizes that Russia must be united, must triumph over the enemy at her gates if she will be great and free.

A youngster in the uniform of the Foreign Legion, with a Military Medal shoulderstrap and the badge of the wounded in his buttonhole, summed up for me the Rotonde opinion as follows:

"We made a mistake at first in thinking that the masses alone could govern. All parties should co-operate in the national life—the bourgeoisie and manufacturers, too, even the aristocrats, factors perhaps they should not be allowed to hold office until later. But the world should not be hard on Russia. When you think that some of our people have suffered it is not strange that they lose their heads a little. Only be patient; Russia will work out her own salvation."

The speaker is 26. At the age of 14 he was seized by the police in the course of a general roundup of all Liberal milieus consequent on the abortive revolution of 1905, with most of his class at the university, and sent without trial to Siberia. Two years ago he managed to obtain funds from home and escaped, finally reaching the Far East via the trans-Siberian road. He made his way to France, and enlisted in the Foreign Legion, "to fight for freedom, anyway, if I can't do it in Russia."

KERENSKY'S HEALTH POOR.

He Is Said to Have Written Pessimistically to Friend.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Oct. 6.—Premier Kerensky has written a sad letter to a former university comrade here. He says calmly that his disease—tuberculosis—is making better progress than the Russian revolutionary cause, and adds that he is burning the candle at both ends in order to save his country, and hopes not to die before Russia is liberated from the German yoke and the present anarchy develops into a real Russian democracy. The remainder of the letter concerns private affairs.

FIGHTING ON RIGA FRONT.

Russian Gunfire Stops Attacks of German Detachments.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 6, (British Admiralty per Wireless Press.)—The War Office today issued this statement:

Northern Front—In the Riga region small enemy detachments attempted to attack north of the Pakoff high road and east of Lemberg. They were repulsed by our fire.

On the other battle fronts only fusillades and scouting encounters occurred.

Aviation—On Thursday enemy airplanes bombed Galatz, Rumania, causing several casualties among soldiers and civilians.

100 SOLDIERS DIE IN FIRE.

Others Are Missing After Destruction of Temporary Hospital.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 6.—One hundred soldiers were burned to death and others are missing as the result of a fire which destroyed the Panayeff Theatre.

The building was used as an officers's hospital as well as a field postoffice.

Tolstoy's Estate Is Pillaged.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 6.—Bands of peasants have pillaged the estate of the late Count Leo Tolstoy at Yasnaya Poliana. The Countess has asked the Minister of the Interior for protection from further devastation.

TURMEL IS ARRESTED ON PLOT CHARGES

French Deputy, Who Refused to Explain Swiss Cash, Accused of Trading with Enemy.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Louis Turmel, representing Côtes-du-Nord in the Chamber of Deputies, was arrested today, accused of trading with the enemy.

The warrant was issued by an examining Magistrate.

An official statement issued by the Chamber of Deputies Sept. 17 said that an envelope containing 25,000 francs in Swiss bankbills had been found in Deputy Turmel's locker in the building. Later, a news dispatch from Paris stated that M. Turmel refused to explain how he came into possession of the money.

shells at the plane, but it continued in action. When the pilot was finally forced to volplane down behind his own lines, it was found that his machine had been struck so often that it was of no further use. Neither the pilot nor the observer was injured.

"Today the pilot asked that he be allowed to go up again. His superior officer, however, thought that he had had enough excitement for the time being and refused permission.

The British night bulletin reads:

Our artillery was active all day on the whole battle front. The enemy's artillery fire was directed mainly against our new positions on the ridge from Broodseinde southward, but no counterattacks developed. An additional 380 prisoners were taken by us in the last twenty-four hours. On the rest of the British front there was nothing of importance to report.

The weather Friday continued unsettled and stormy and again made flying difficult. Successful artillery work, nevertheless, was accomplished, and many photographs were taken by our airmen.

Enemy airdromes in the Lille area were attacked with bombs, and the railway stations at Westroosebeke, Iseghem, and Courtrai also were bombed during the day. In addition the last-named two stations were attacked at night. In all more than two tons of explosives were dropped.

The enemy's aircraft were active in the battle area. Four of his machines were brought down and three were driven down out of control. Five of our machines are missing.

The afternoon statement reads:

The enemy's artillery has shown increased activity on the battle front, but no action has been attempted by his infantry. An attempted raid on our trenches south of Hollebeke was driven off by rifle and machine-gun fire.

Welsh troops successfully raided the enemy's line northeast of Gouzeaucourt, bombing dugouts and inflicting casualties upon the garrison.

BERLIN, Oct. 6, (via London, British Admiralty, per Wireless Press.)—Artillery activity increasing to drumfire intensity on Friday evening between Poelcapelle and Gheluvelt, on the Ypres front, is reported in the communication from Army Headquarters, which says:

Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria: In the fighting district of the Flanders front a destructive artillery fire, which was powerful throughout the day, increased in the evening to waves of drumfire between Poelcapelle and Gheluvelt. There was no English infantry attack of importance, and advancing reconnoitring detachments were repulsed.

Aviation: The stormy weather restricted aerial activity, but five enemy airplanes were shot down.

BERLIN PAPERS HIDE NEWS OF DISASTERS

Suppress British Ypres Bulletins—Fall of Ramadie Only Just Told.

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 6.—The German General Staff has been forced to invent a new term, "hurricane fire," for the terrific and continuous bombardment with which the latest battle in Flanders was opened. The day when the term "drumfire" represented the culmination of activity by the artillery has long passed. The army authorities, in the face of their own assurances that the submarine campaign was interfering with the British supplies of munitions, introduced the term "whirlwind fire" to describe a greater degree of intensity, and have now resorted to the West Indian tempests for a simile in describing the awful might of Wednesday's and Thursday's storm of fire.

The Berlin papers have not printed the official British reports of the battle, undoubtedly having responded to the same pressure which kept the news of the Turkish disaster at Ramadie out of the German papers for three days. The official report of the British commander in Mesopotamia, General Maude, was not printed in the German papers until today, and was accompanied by a semi-official statement citing the Turks as authority for the assertion that the British report was greatly exaggerated.

The reason why the Germans are slow in launching the counterattacks called for by Field Marshal von Hindenburg's methods in an effort to regain the important heights lost in the Ypres sector on Thursday may be found in a description by Lieut. Gen. von Ardenne, military expert of the Tageblatt of Berlin, of the curtain of fire through which the German storming troops had to pass in the battle of Sept. 26. This a participant compared to a waterfall. It could be penetrated only by watching falling shells and sprinting forward in short dashes, each man for himself, immediately after a shell burst, risking the chance that another shell would drop in the same place as the last. All who fell had to be left lying on the ground.

GERMANS FAIL NEAR VERDUN.

Penetrate French Positions, but Are Ejected in Counterattacks.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The Germans made an attack last night on the Verdun front near Hill 344. They gained a footing in the French positions at some points, the War Office reports, but later were driven back. There was considerable artillery activity on the Aisne front, near Braye-en-Laonnois, today.

The afternoon statement follows:

Several enemy attacks on our small posts in the region of Craonne and Hurtebise were without success.

On the right bank of the Meuse, (Verdun front,) a more serious attack on our trenches in the vicinity of Hill 344 resulted in a spirited combat. Our soldiers drove back groups of the enemy which gained a footing in our advanced position. Our line was reestablished entirely.

We made several successful incursions into the enemy trenches south of Butte de Souain, northwest of Fayen-Haye, and northwest of Regneville. Our detachments penetrated as far as the support line, destroying a number of shelters and bringing back prisoners.

There was intermittent artillery fighting over the greater part of the front.

The War Office's announcement of the progress of the campaign tonight reads:

The two artilleries were quite active in the region of Braye-en-Laonnois and on the right bank of the Meuse north of the Bois le Chaume. In the Vosges we carried out a surprise attack in the neighborhood of Senones.

BERLIN, Oct. 6, (via London, British Admiralty, per Wireless Press.)—The report from Army Headquarters says that in the region of Soissons artillery activity increased yesterday and in the Verdun sector German storming troops penetrated enemy positions and took prisoners at several points.

The text of the communication follows:

Front of the German Crown Prince—Northeast of Soissons artillery activity increased in intensity and method. Northeast of Rheims a French attack failed. On both banks of the Meuse our storming troops penetrated enemy positions at Malancourt, Bethincourt, Forges, Samogneux, and Bezonvaux, and everywhere returned with prisoners.

GERMAN PRISONER SEES ALLIED TRIUMPH NEAR

Fighting Professor Says Berlin Will Soon Offer to Yield Belgium and Alsace.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS IN BELGIUM, Friday, Oct. 5, (Delayed.) — German prisoners taken in the latest Ypres drive do not hide their astonishment at the spirit of the British troops. They know now that the English are terrible in attack and arrive upon them with strange and fearful suddenness behind their barrage.

One maimed German professor of broad intelligence and a frank way of facing ugly facts said that the British artillery was too terrific for words. His detachment was harassed all the way up to the front line and lost many men. When the remnant got there they had to lie flat in the bottom of shell holes, and the next thing they knew was when they were surrounded by masses of English soldiers. He described the latter as gallant and chivalrous. This professor thinks it will not be long before Germany makes a great bid for peace by offering to give up Belgium. By midwinter, he says, she will yield Alsace-Lorraine. Russia will remain as before the war, except for an autonomous Poland. Italy will have what she has captured, and Germany will get back some of her colonies, he thinks. He laughed when indemnity was mentioned and said, "Germany is bankrupt."

He described the German Emperor as a broken man and all for peace, the Crown Prince posing as the head of the military party, but being unpopular. As soon as the German people knew that the submarine threat had failed, he said, they would demand that the war stop at once.

That is the opinion of one educated German who has suffered the full horrors of war, and his words are interesting if they represent no more than his own views. Those views will be strengthened by what the British won yesterday.

LENS TO BE EVACUATED?

Swiss Report Says Ypres Victories Make It Useless to Germans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Oct. 6.—A report received at Basle from Strasburg says that in consequence of the recent British victories in Flanders the Germans are preparing to evacuate Lens, which has lost its importance as a strategic point of support.

According to the German statement, Hindenburg has taken this decision, which will be carried out in the near future.

TO TAKE UP ALSACE-LORRAINE.

That and Other Ticklish Questions Confront the Reichstag.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 6.—The Berliner Tageblatt learns that the next few days will see progress in the Reichstag regarding the question of Alsace-Lorraine. Last Saturday the Chancellor talked with party leaders when he asked for one week to answer the question put to him. This time has now elapsed.

The Tageblatt also says that a group of Pan Germans and Conservatives are to make interpellation about an article in the official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung on Czernin's speech.

The newspaper adds that Monday is to be an important day in the Reichstag, as questions pertaining to the censor and the freedom of public meetings are to be discussed.

SAYS WE ARE PLANNING TO GRAB DUTCH GUIANA

Cologne Volkszeitung Tries to Inflame Neutrals Against American 'Aggression.'

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 6.—The German press is energetically carrying on a great anti-American campaign, hoping to influence neutrals by newspapers circulating in their countries, and at the same time propagate the idea of the solidarity of European interests, on which it may be remembered Foreign Minister Kühlmann laid special stress in a recent speech.

Georg Bernhard, criticising the statement of Count Czerin, says:

"This can [disarmament] be secured only if European interests are consolidated, not for defiance, but for defense."

The annexationist Cologne Volkszeitung speaks of the Monroe Doctrine, asserting that America goes her way making use of the world war for carrying out her plans. It says that President Wilson talks much of right and morality, but recognizes only the principle of might and force. This paper is indignant over the American purchase of the Danish West Indies and argues that this is only a beginning of territorial aggression, asserting that America has now begun to talk of buying the Dutch West Indies "because America belongs to Americans." The original Monroe Doctrine, the Volkszeitung says, demanded that European possessions in America should not be extended, but if Americans now demand the West Indies it is "America for the Yankees." It also says that the United States claims Surinam [Dutch Guiana] because it is joined to the mainland of South America, but believes that the South Americans would not consent to the acquisition of this colony, as they realize the significance of America's possession of such an important stronghold in South America.

Commenting on Costa Rica's breaking off relations with Germany, the Kölnische Zeitung remarks that this is the smallest of Latin American States, with only 400,000 inhabitants; "but nevertheless Lansing endeavored for a long time to force it into war against the Central Powers. Costa Rica resisted a long time, but has now given way without any reason. Once again it is a question of might before right for Americans. It is pure cowardice that Wilson could not leave such a poor little powerless country alone, but had to bring it into war against the Central Powers. No one can envy Mr. Lansing this political triumph.

GERMAN NEWSPAPER RAIDED IN CINCINNATI

Books and Papers Seized in Volksblatt Office—People's Council's Meeting Is Broken Up.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—The office of the Cincinnati Volksblatt, a German daily newspaper of this city, and the homes of three of its officials were raided this afternoon by Secret Service agents. While one raiding party was going through a safe and desks at the newspaper office, others were searching the homes of Henry Danziger, editor; Gerhard Huelsmann, business manager, and Carl Pletz, city editor.

The raids were supplementary to those made late last night on the headquarters of the People's Council and the homes and offices of various persons connected with it, including Herbert S. Bigelow, a former lieutenant of Tom Johnson and at one time President of the Ohio Constitutional Convention; Colon Shott, a prominent German lawyer; the Rev. G. G. Press, a German Lutheran minister, and Dan Kiefer, a well-known single tax leader.

The raids were timed to occur at identically the same moment. Several auto loads of letters, checkbooks, accounts and papers were taken to the office of the United States District Attorney, where they are being examined for proofs of violation of espionage and sedition laws.

The records of the local branch of the People's Council were obtained following the dispersal of a meeting attended by forty-six members, twenty of them women. No arrests were made and no resistance was offered at any of the places visited.

JEWISH DAILY FACES EXCLUSION FROM MAIL

Editor of Forward Ordered to Washington to Explain Why Paper Should Not Be Barred.

The Jewish Daily Forward, with a large circulation on the east side, prints an announcement on its front page this morning that its editor, Abraham Cahan, and the officers of the Forward Association had received a notice from the Postmaster General directing them to appear at the Post Office Department in Washington tomorrow to show cause why the privileges of the mails should not be denied to the publication. In making the announcement the Forward said that it would give further details and comment editorially in its issue tomorrow.

There was no one at the Forward office at 175 East Broadway last night who could give any information about the order to appear before the Postmaster General or the course to be taken by the Forward Association. Mr. Cahan was not at his office and he could not be reached at his office at 3,050 Broadway.

The Forward is Socialist in politics and is supporting Morris Hillquit for Mayor. It has also been vigorously pro-German, and Abraham Cahan, the editor, praised the Germans and the German army policies at a public meeting given in his honor in Carnegie Hall on May 18, 1915, by the United Hebrew Trades after he had returned from a visit to Russia, and particularly those parts of the country under German domination.

At that meeting he said: "I cannot think Germany will be beaten. I think it will end in a deadlock. I hope so. When overtures of peace come, they will not come from Germany or any of the big countries involved. They will come from some small country. America has lost her chance at it by supplying arms to Germany's foes."

WEEK-END CHECKS LOAN SALES HERE

Half-Holiday Adds Only $15,000,000, Bringing Total to $240,000,000.

EXPECT JUMP TOMORROW

Guy Emerson, Publicity Director, Urges More Speed—Says District Is $165,000,000 Behind.

Only about $15,000,000 was added yesterday to the Liberty Loan subscription total for the New York Federal Reserve District. This brought the figures up to about $240,000,000 for the six days' effort to mobilize subscribers to America's second war loan of three billion dollars. The volume of subscriptions filed were smaller than on any day since the beginning of the "drive" on Monday, because the banks close at noon Saturdays, and many persons make it a half holiday. Interest in the baseball game may also have contributed to the lightness of subscriptions.

Although $240,000,000 is the estimated total of subscriptions, Guy Emerson, Director of Publicity of the Liberty Loan Committee, gave out the figure $210,000,000 as the total, the same representing the subscriptions actually received by the Federal Reserve Bank and those reported in one form or another. Mr. Emerson's total does not include loan applications which have been made but which have not been reported, and his figure does not take into account subscriptions in transit. The total of subscriptions tabulated by the Reserve Bank up to noon yesterday amounted to $133,042,370. It is expected that tomorrow will be a good day, as doubtless a great many out-of-town subscriptions will come in, and besides many banks which have been dilatory in sending daily reports will forward records of applications received for the whole week.

Mr. Emerson issued a statement pointing out the need for greater efforts on the part of every man and woman if this district is to be successful in obtaining its full allotment of $1,500,000,000 for the second Liberty Loan. This figure is based on the expectation that the total subscriptions for the whole country will aggregate $5,000,000,000. His statement showed that at the end of the first week of the campaign this district was $165,000,000 below the weekly total of $375,000,000 for the four weeks of the campaign.

Mr. Emerson's Statement.

"While it is true," said Mr. Emerson, "that many banks have not reported, and that subscriptions will inevitably come in more heavily during the last week of the campaign, the Liberty Loan Committee feels a danger of overconfidence due to the vastness of the sum dealt in. The $210,000,000 seems large. It is large. But the $1,500,000,000 is so much larger that the best efforts of every man and woman in the district are called for if we are to succeed in raising the sum the Government has asked for. It should be added that the sum named is the absolute minimum the Government can possibly get along with at this time if the prosecution of the war is not to be prejudiced and the lives of our soldiers prejudiced."

Following are some of the large subscriptions reported yesterday:

|---|---|
| Dry Dock Savings Bank | $1,000,000 |
| Virginia Carolina Chemical Co. | 1,000,000 |
| Harris, Winthrop & Co. | 250,000 |
| G. Amsinck & Co. | 250,000 |
| W. H. Goadby & Co. | 100,000 |
| Jacquelin & De Coppet | 100,000 |

Reports from up-State show that some of the cities are making good headway in collecting subscriptions. Thus far the prize goes to Rochester, which in the first four days of the campaign amassed a total of $4,388,750, out of an allotment of $20,000,000. Utica reports $400,000 and Syracuse has raised $225,000.

The 120 Trade Committees representing the various industries in this city have set $520,000,000 as their goal. The shipping trade is expected to raise $25,000,000, and the clothing and woolen trades have each been asked to raise $20,000,000, and $5,000,000 is expected of the grocers.

The farming communities will do much better in this campaign than they did in the flotation of the first war loan, it is asserted by those in charge of the work among the farmers. They say that the last time many of the farmers were not reached at all, and that others found it difficult to subscribe because of their need for money for planting, &c., while now the crops are in, and the high prices received for their product have placed the farmers in a position where they can well afford to subscribe liberally to the war loan.

Life Insurance Agents to Aid.

It was announced yesterday that arrangements had been completed by which life insurance agents agreed to devote a portion of their time to a thorough house-to-house canvass in the interest of the Liberty Loan.

Preparations are being made for a Liberty Loan essay contest among the two and a half million schoolchildren in New York. The boys and girls will be told by their teachers all about the loan, and they will be encouraged to compete for the prizes that will be offered for the best compositions of from 500 to 750 words in length. A bronze medal will be given for the best essay in each Assembly district, and a gold award, to which a free Liberty Loan bond is attached, will be given to the author of the best-written essay in the State.

Alexander J. Hemphill, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Guaranty Trust Company, issued the following statement yesterday regarding the second Liberty Loan:

"The issuance of the new Liberty Loan bonds as a 4 per cent. security will solve a real problem for the bankers who have to act as investment advisors, not only to widows and children, but also to business men who have been successful in their own line and who want a safe anchor to windward in the form of an investment outside their own business.

"To the investor seeking advice the banker can unhesitatingly recommend the Liberty Loan. Here is a security that approaches the Utopia of investments—absolute safety. You can measure Liberty Loan bonds by every standard investment known, and they fit perfectly—security of principal and income, negotiability, denomination, and even reasonableness of yield and possibility of profit. Four per cent. is apt to look small through glasses rose-tinted by market conditions of today, but 4 per cent. is an entirely fair rate of income over a period of years, and after all that is the only real time test of an investment."

Oscar A. Price, National Director of Publicity for the Liberty Loan, was in New York yesterday. He said that not all of the Federal Reserve banks had yet reported subscription figures to Washington, but as soon as they did he would make public the totals. He thought that at the beginning only weekly totals for the whole country would be given out.

Seventy-five subscriptions for small denomination bonds of the second Liberty Loan were received at the open-air rally held at Thirty-seventh Street and Broadway last night under the direction of the Outdoor Speakers' Bureau of the Liberty Loan Committee. J. A. Myers presided, and spoke from the top of one of three automobile buses.

Several of the subscribers for the bonds offered money with their subscriptions. The speakers, however, emphasized that money would not be accepted, but that the committee relied on the sincerity of the subscribers to make payment for the bonds at the time it was called for.

ONLY 564 FAIL TO PAY UP IN FIRST LOAN ISSUE

Less Than One-twentieth of 1 Per Cent. of $78,959 Subscribers Here Delinquent.

Of the million subscribers to the First Liberty Loan in this district, only 564 have failed to make full payments, according to an announcement of James Freeman Curtis, Secretary of the Federal Reserve Bank.

"No more striking evidence of the eagerness of the people to own Liberty bonds of the United States Government can be given than the final figures regarding subscriptions during the first campaign," said Mr Curtis. "Only one-twentieth of 1 per cent. of the total number of subscribers to the first Liberty Loan in the Second Federal Reserve District have failed to make all their payments, and even this insignificant percentage is constantly being reduced by belated payments.

"To state this more concretely, only 564 subscribers to the last loan, out of a total of 978,959 persons and corporations, had not paid in full for their bonds at the time the last payment was due. And practically all of these were failures to pay accrued interest, and not principal. This means that only one person out of every 2,000 that subscribed was remiss in paying for his share of the bonds. How extremely trifling a matter this is may be judged from the fact that the total subscriptions in this district amounted to $1,186,788,400. Out of nearly $594,000,000 of bonds allotted in this district only $45,600, or less than eight-one-thousandths of 1 per cent., remains to be paid."

In a report to Governor Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank, G. Edwin Gregory of the National City Bank, who had charge of the bond issue division of the bank during the first loan campaign, gives some interesting figures showing the part this district played in the flotation of the two-billion-dollar loan. To the New York district there was allotted bonds to the amount of $617,831,650, or nearly 31 per cent. of the entire issue.

Practically 75 per cent. of the bonds allotted were paid for by the end of last June, or within two weeks after the campaign for the sale of the first loan was ended. In other words, the total paid for bonds without interest amounted to $617,831,650, of which $497,512,458.62 had been paid by the end of June. By July 30 an additional $53,199,987.71 had been paid, and the remainder, $67,119,203.67, was paid in by September 20.

The report shows further that the Federal Reserve Bank's force handled 4,005,657 interim certificates. It required 1,931,666 certificates for the bank to make its deliveries, and Mr. Gregory, in his report, emphasized the fact that all of these separate pieces were handled at least five times. In addition to the foregoing, there were unissued, canceled, and returned 234,941 certificates, and the bank also had on hand 1,789,050 full-paid certificates which had not been issued at the close of business on Sept. 21.

Of the 1,931,66 certificates issued, 916,175, or almost 50 per cent., were in the $50 denomination. Of the $100 denominations, there were 562,612 pieces, of the $500 denomination 112,940 pieces, and of the $1,000 denomination, 316,157 pieces. In other words, 82 per cent. of the certificates already issued went to investors, who bought the bonds in amounts of $500 and less.

Another interesting feature of the tabulation is the fact that forty-three certificates of $1,000,000 each were issued and 1,194 of $100,000 each. There were 1,067 certificates in $50,000 amounts, 11,954 in $10,000 amounts and 8,904 in $5,000 amounts.

Payments for the $593,087,000 of the bonds allotted to the district were made as follows: Cash, $200,221,328.13; certificates of indebtedness, $238,157,268; book credits, $155,578,403.87. Adding in the payments of interest made by subscribers, the bank was able to transfer to the Treasurer of the United States a total of $594,758,915.26.

| Up to $10,000 | 973,414 |
| $250,050 and above | 570 |

Another tabulation reveals the fact that of the total allotted in the district the amount in default on Sept. 21 was $301,800. The expenses of the bank's bond issue division in handling the loan were only $80,906, of which $54,156 was paid in salaries. The greatest number of clerks employed at one time was 234, divided into nine departments. The work extended over a period of four months and fourteen days. Mr. Gregory's report concludes:

"It is very gratifying, indeed, to be able to say to you that all the work proves absolutely, to a cent; all the money, certificates of indebtedness, and book credits have been properly accounted for, and the Government has received payment in full for the bonds allotted to this district, together with accrued interest."

REFUSE LOAN ADVERTISEMENT

Directors of New Yorker Volkszeitung Say It Is War Propaganda.

Guy Emerson, Director of Publicity of the Liberty Loan Committee for the Second Federal Reserve District, said yesterday that the New Yorker Volkszeitung, the official organ of the German speaking Socialists, had declined to run the advertisement of the New York banks, entitled, "Save and Have," on the ground that this advertisement was propaganda assisting the accumulation of war funds.

The "Save and Have" advertisement was published last week in every English and foreign language newspaper in this city with the single exception of the Volkszeitung. The advertisement was offered to the latter newspaper through an advertising agency, and at first efforts were made by the business manager of the paper to shunt the advertisement aside without refusing it. Finally, after negotiations extending over a week, a representative of the agency was informed that the Board of Directors of the newspaper had decided, in view of resolutions adopted about a year ago, to reject all propaganda assisting the flotation of war loans.

At the office of the Volkszeitung it was said yesterday that the business department of the paper was governed by the action of the Board of Directors, who had determined early in the war to refuse all war loan advertisements, irrespective of nationality. It was explained that the Volkszeitung, being a Socialist newspaper, was opposed to war and to all war loans. Special emphasis was placed on the fact that the Volkszeitung had declined to accept advertising for the German and the Austrian war loans.

OF "UNEXCELLED QUALITY"

Gathering of Americans Warns Against Even the Semblance of Peace Talk Here.

PARIS, Friday, Oct. 5, (Delayed.)—Professor Paul Van Dyke presided at a dinner given tonight in honor of the American Ambassador, William Graves Sharp. The Ambassador, who has just returned from a visit to the American troops, said he had found them in fine spirits. There were things in this war, he said, which correspondents could not exaggerate, such as the devastation by the Germans and the bravery of the British and French troops.

Various resolutions were adopted, including the following:

We, forty citizens of the United States, correspondents and trained observers at the front, and other visitors, after a careful study of the situation on and behind the battle lines, unite in a message of good cheer to our fellow-countrymen.

First—Our soldiers now here and constantly arriving are of a quality which has won the admiration of the Allies. Good judges say it is unexcelled on either side of the battle lines.

Second—We feel it should be understood at home that, while the losses are very great, beyond all precedent, yet the proportinate loss is not above other wars.

Other resolutions referred to the activity and effectiveness of the American sea forces in assisting the British Navy and the high morale both among the troops and people of France and Italy; denounced the deliberate destruction by the Germans of cities having no strategic importance, and the carrying off into captivity of the daughters of whole communities.

The enemy is described as eager for peace, but still unable to realize the nature of the only terms whereby it can be secured.

The final resolution warns Americans that every word spoken in the United States which can be distorted into the semblance of disloyalty or willingness for an indecisive peace quickly reaches Berlin, where it is misrepresented and scattered broadcast as evidence of dissension, thus tending to prolong the war and increase the sacrifices.

Pershing's Statement of Confidence.

AMERICAN TRAINING CAMP IN FRANCE, Friday, Oct. 5, (by The Associated Press.)—The text of General Pershing's statement, given out in answer to reports that the war on the western front would result in a stalemate, was as follows:

"German propaganda working in America through the agency of our pacifists would spread this idea among our people in order to weaken our initiative. Having lost its tactical advantage in the Ypres salient, which it enjoyed for more than two years, the German army continues to yield ground before the hammering British assaults. Everywhere on the western front, despite the large number of German troops which the Russian situation has released, Germany is on the defensive and the Allies are on the offensive.

"America has the resources in men and material, once they are prepared, to add the weight which must force a military decision against Germany. Our troops are imbued with a spirit of aggressiveness, a spirit that means we are going to win this war and that we have no idea of allowing ourselves to be influenced by pacifists or enemy propaganda. Neither have we any false notions that victory is going to be an easy matter. But that only makes our determination stronger.

"Every man, from top to bottom, has entered this war imbued with the fighting spirit which means that the cause of the Allies will be carried to a successful issue."

HEFLIN CHARGES FAIL; HOUSE CENSURES HIM

Committee Unable to Find Any Evidence of Corruption or Disloyalty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—A report mildly censuring Representative J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama for reflections on "thirteen or fourteen" members of Congress in connection with Count von Bernstorff's $50,000 slush fund, was adopted almost unanimously by the house this afternoon. The investigating committee, after giving Mr. Heflin an opportunity to place before it what data or evidence he had, reported that no scintilla of information pointed to either corruption or disloyalty of any member.

Chairman Barnhart of the committee reported verbally that Mr. Heflin had repeated before the committee his oft-stated suspicion that the conduct of certain members had not squared with his ideas of loyalty. But the committee, Mr. Barnhart said, had decided that it was not justified in investigating this generality. The committee's report said in part:

"While your committee makes no recommendations in the premises, we beg to state it as our opinion that in so far as Mr. Heflin's charges impute or might fairly be construed to impute unworthy or corrupt or dishonest motives to any member of Congress, notwithstanding that he now denies any intention to convey such an impression, his conduct in that respect is subject to criticism.

"But inasmuch as the serious question of disloyalty to our country on the part of some members of the House, has been raised by Mr. Heflin, in the opinion of the committee, the direct and parliamentary course of action would be the institution by him of proceedings for expulsion from Congress of those whose loyalty he challenges."

The committee reported that it had looked into charges by Mr. Heflin that he had been misquoted by newspapermen in the statement that he knew of a gambling house in Washington where peace-at-any-price members of Congress won money easily. It said that although Mr. Heflin denied this, two correspondents who claimed to have received the interview, stoutly avowed its authenticity. On this point the report said:

"In this question of veracity of whether Mr. Heflin or the two newspapermen tell the truth, the committee finds itself unable to reach definite conclusion, and it leaves the question to the members of the House and to the people."

AMPICO
Reproducing Piano

"In the Gloaming"

IT is a story familiar to all of us—the story of the typical New Yorker. Alert, aggressive, quick to grasp and solve big problems—a man who works hard and brilliantly—almost to the point of exhaustion. Keyed up with the stress of the day's business, he comes home at night with every taut nerve crying for rest and diversion and, like thousands of others, night after night he goes the futile round of theatres and restaurants in search of the amusement he never finds.

Tonight he is sitting by his own fireside, listening to the exquisitely played strains of an old and ever lovely melody, "In the Gloaming." With him are his wife and daughter. They have all found the perfect pleasure, the rest and recreation hitherto so vainly sought.

Great pianists will play for them the works of master musicians, exactly as they are played on the concert stage. They will hear the lighter compositions of the day played with delightful feeling—later some of the daughter's young friends will come in for an informal dance to the playing of famous masters of the modern dance.

In this wonderful Ampico, which reproduces the playing of great concert pianists, of gifted minor artists and masters of modern dance music and the popular songs of the day, they have found a new world of pleasure—the satisfying world of music.

This pleasure you may have in your own home. The Ampico Reproducing Piano preserves forever the playing of the world of pianists. Tone for tone, touch for touch, each minute cadence will come to you with the glowing magnetism of the gifted artist. But a few fortunate men can own great collections of the paintings of such master artists as Rembrandt, Velasquez and Titian. Through the Ampico all may own great collections of the world's master musicians, played by master pianists. It is the perfecting touch of the modern home and home life.

URGES HOUSE TO TAX CONGRESS INCOMES

Hull Seeks a Repeal of Exemption Clause Applying to Public Officials.

STEP OPPOSED BY KITCHIN

Many Inquiries Sent to Washington on the New Income and Excess Profits Levy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—A fight for the repeal of the section of the War Revenue bill which exempts members of Congress from paying assessments under the individuals' excess profits provision began today with the introduction of a resolution by Representative Hull of Tennessee.

Mr. Hull's amendment proposes to strike out the complete exemption clause as applying to public officers. This throws down the gauntlet of opposition to Majority Leader Kitchin, who defends the section.

Mr. Hull said today he has tried to get the support of Mr. Kitchin for his proposal, and sought to have him present it to the House as an amendment. However, the latter took the position, according to Mr. Hull, that no other Government ever has imposed a tax burden on any of its servants.

As now introduced by Mr. Hull the amendment can be brought up at the very start of the December session. This is Mr. Hull's intention, and he will busy himself during recess with acquainting other members with his ideas.

"The unquestionable justice of this amendment speaks for itself," said Mr. Hull in a statement to THE TIMES. "While it is true that other countries do not tax their servants, it is also true that they are chary about levying on the salaries of men who derive their living from their individual exertions. I think the wisdom of this whole policy will stand inquiry, and I have yet to make up my mind as to its merits.

"Certainly as long as the tax is levied on men who must earn their living by their mental activities, there is no justification in Congressmen exempting themselves from the general policy which they themselves establish

"I do not believe many members understood, from the brief statement which was possible on a discussion of the conference report, either what would be the result of the amendment which the conferees, not Congress, drew, or that they were laying themselves open to a charge of self-favoritism"

Mr. Hull is one of the leading members of the House Ways and Means Committee, and its acknowledged expert in income tax legislation.

An Explanation of Income Tax.

Anxious inquiries are pouring into Washington from all parts of the country for information in regard to the operation of the new income tax and the excess profits laws. An expert official of the Internal Revenue Bureau gave the following illustration today, a practical application of the income tax as it now stands. The tax is, in fact, composite.

The old income tax has not been repealed and will be collected as usual, but there is a new supplementary income tax in which the limits of exemption have been fixed at $1,000 for single men and $2,000 for married men, with the further exemption in the case of married men of $200 for each minor child. The limits of exemption in the old income tax law still in effect are $3,000 for single men and $4,000 for married men.

By Section 2 of the new law a general tax is laid in the case of individuals having trade or business or professions of 8 per cent. on all their business or professional earnings over $5,000. Thus, for illustration, if a single man has an income of $10,000 he would first pay 8 per cent. on the difference between $5,000 and $10,000, or $320. In computing his tax under the two regular individual income tax provisions, the old law and the new, this tax of $320 would be deducted from the income of $10,000, and on the remainder, after deducting the exempted amount of $3,000 provided in the old law, or on the sum of $9,680, less $3,000, he would pay 2 per cent. normal tax of the old law.

The balance in this particular case would be $6,680, and 2 per cent. of this amount would be $133.60. Then, by the terms of the new income tax law the taxpayer with $10,000 income would have to pay another 2 per cent. on all income over the limit of $1,000 set in the new law or 2 per cent. on $8,680. This tax would be $172.60. His entire tax therefore would aggregate $627.20.

It will be some time before the Internal Revenue Bureau will be able to issue regulations that will explain the details of the act. Returns must be made by March 1, 1918. It is almost hopeless for the average person, and especially persons with tax to pay on incomes around $1,000 and exceeding $6,000, to analyze the law for themselves and determine just what amount of tax they are to pay. The law compels them on notice to find out or pay a penalty, and, according to what Treasury officials said today, the safest thing to do is to go to the office of the Internal Revenue Collector for the district in which they live and have the matter figured out by Government officials.

A "primer" will soon be issued which will attempt to set forth in the simplest manner every detail of the law and enable every one with an income above the limits of exemption to find out how much tax he must pay.

RANSOM PLEDGES FAIRNESS.

Fusion Candidate for District Attorney Gives His Platform.

William L. Ransom, Fusion candidate for District Attorney, put forward last night what he said was his platform, and pledged himself, if elected, to carry out all the promises made. This is the platform:

"The functions of the District Attorney's office are judicial and remedial, rather than political. Every consideration which might stand in the way of fearless and impartial action should be driven from its doors. Having been nominated for such an office, I state the basis on which I shall conduct it, when elected:

"I shall be boss of the office for a single term; shall not be a candidate for re-election, and shall not seek nomination to any other office meanwhile; nothing connected with my office will be used to promote the ambition of any person, inside or outside the office.

"The secrets of the Grand Jury room will be kept sacredly inviolate; cases will be tried in the courtroom and not in the newspapers.

"I will not indict or accuse any person to satisfy a public clamor or a political exigency; I will not refrain from indicting any person because of a political exigency or a public clamor.

"On my oath of office and my oath as an officer of the court, I shall give to every person accused of crime the full, fair rights assured to him by law, but seldom accorded him, in fact.

"I shall give personal attention to any man's complaint that he has been wrongly treated, and shall labor day and night to give all men reason to feel that their District Attorney's office is clean, businesslike, broad-minded, and absolutely on the level.

"The establishment of these things as to the District Attorney's office is of more importance than what happens to any individual in this campaign. From the record I have made during more than ten years at the bar of this city, you can judge whether I will make good on these pledges."

WILSON PRAISES WORK OF CONGRESS

wants to thank the Senators of the United States for the patience and forbearance with which they have dealt at many times with my irascible conduct. I want to assure them that the outbursts that now and then have taken place from the chair were not real in character.

"They were simply intended to call the attention of the Senate to the fact that they did have a presiding officer—not one that perhaps they wanted, but one that an ignorant electorate has thrust upon them. The unfortunate thing, you know, in public life, is that those who know nothing are placed in the seats of the mighty. The wise men remain at home, and discuss public questions on the ends of street cars and around barber shops.

"I part with you and I part with this session of Congress with mingled feelings of pleasure and of darkness. Pleasure in the fact that the proceedings of this Senate have been practically harmonious and practically unanimous; with a feeling of darkness in that I believe it has become necessary for the American people to engage in a great war. That is a necessity that always saddens every sober man and every man who has a kindly heart. But for myself I may be permitted to say that I think it will be my duty, whenever I am called upon to say anything, to voice my belief in the justice and the necessity of this war.

"I have been requested by the Secretary of the Treasury to ask that the several Senators, as they go to their homes and address the people upon their duties and responsibilities, the rights and privileges of American citizens, and upon the rightfulness or the wrongfulness of this war, will call the attention of the people to this fact—that this war must be fought finally out of the dollars and cents of the American people, and to urge upon the American people the duty of subscribing for this Liberty Loan.

"I wish you all, Senators of the United States, long life, health, happiness, and that greatest consolation which can come to any human being—the consolation of finding out what the right is, and of daring to stand for the right regardless of how much it may cost you individually or the American people in blood and treasure."

WAR TRADE COUNCIL PLANNED BY WILSON

Administrative Board, Reorganized, May Control Exports and Imports.

VANCE McCORMICK SLATED

Northern Neutrals to be Obliged to Use Ships—Dutch Vessels' Sailing Held Up.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Exports Administrative Board probably will be reorganized by an executive order into a War Trade Council. Under this order, which is now before the President, the new body will have control, not only of the exports but of the imports and all of the provisions of the "Trading-with-the-Enemy" act which relates to commerce and trade.

It is understood also that the President has under contemplation a program which will make Vance McCormick an Exports Administrator, with powers similar to those of Herbert Hoover of the Food Administration, and Dr. Harry A. Garfield, the Fuel Administrator. This would be entirely in line with the policy of the President, to make one man responsible to the Executive in all the matters vital to the successful conduct of the war.

The Treasury Department is to have a representative in the War Trade Council. His duty will be to advise Mr. McCormick concerning all exportations of gold and bullion and letters of credit. Thus the Treasury Department will be able to shut off and control all exports of gold and credit from those South American republics which might be induced for diplomatic or other reasons to aid Germany.

The determination of the Government to quarantine Germany from supplies is clearly displayed in this latest Government move.

It was learned today that the negotiations between the Dutch representatives and the State Department and the Exports Administrative Board had to deal with a license for the release of the great Dutch steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, which was loaded with foodstuffs for the Commission of Relief in Belgium, of which Mr. Hoover is Chairman.

No Hope for Dutch Ships.

The significant part of this action is that the Administrative Board refused to permit clearance of the vessel or to grant permission for this ship to get bunker coal unless the Dutch Government positively agreed to return the ship to an American port after the cargo was unloaded. This shows that no ship of the northern neutral countries of Europe, now tied up by the embargo ruling, will be permitted to sail if it is suspected that she is attempting to get beyond the jurisdiction of the United States.

The Administration is not willing that these vessels shall be released until it is sure that, even under the guise of carrying relief supplies, they will not return to be of service to this country's enemies.

It is understood that the United States is anxious to place the Nieuw Amsterdam in the Pacific trade. The point evidently is that the Government is willing to take over all of the Dutch or other northern neutral merchant shipping now available for our coast or our Pacific trade, and thus forever prevent such shipping giving "aid and comfort" to the enemy.

Diplomatic representatives of Sweden have been alleging that the United States has been making false representations about iron ores going to Germany. Sweden has stated to the United States that her iron ores were tied up by contracts with Germany. The State Department, it is said, has told Sweden that she has not always been careful about observing her contracts and has cited this case:

Swedish Figures on Ore.

The Swedish mission in Washington has sent to the Exports Administrative Board figures which it alleges disprove the allegation that Sweden is Germany's main reliance for iron ore and indicating that during the period, 1913-1916, the exportation of iron ore to Germany decreased, while the exportation to England increased.

During that period the figures revealed a decrease of 678,709 tons of iron ore to the Central Empires and an increase of 173,385 tons to England. The entire exports of iron ore during 1913 amounted to 6,439,750 tons, and during 1916 to 5,598,541 tons. During that period the importation of the cheaper grades of iron and steel by Sweden increased.

The figures show that during the two years the importation from Germany amounted to 93,588 tons and from the United States to 4,913 tons, while the imports from England in the same period decreased 73,088 tons.

The Exports Administrative Board has transmitted a statement to the following effect to all the seaboard terminal grain elevators:

"The Exports Administrative Board wishes to impress upon the owners of grain elevators the necessity of discontinuing the loading of vessels with grain for export before the shipper procures the necessary export license, and the board herewith makes the announcement that no further cargoes should be loaded until such license for export shall have been presented.

"Licenses for the export of foodgrains are issued only with the approval of the Food Administration, and every effort is being made to subject such exports to the strictest control. Cases are of frequent occurrence where vessels are loaded with grain and the exports administrative board is unable to grant the necessary export license. This results in rendering useless a considerable amount of tonnage, in the loss of large quantities of grain by deterioration and in the additional expense of unloading."

NATION MOBILIZED FOR GREAT WAR TASK

Public Information Committee Tells of Results of Six Months of Preparation.

'LARGE FORCE' IN FRANCE

A Million Men in Training—Navy Almost Trebled—Huge Shipbuilding Program.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The transition in America from conditions of peace to those of war is, from the standpoint of rapidity and thoroughness, without precedent in the history of democracies, says a statement issued tonight by the Committee on Public Information, detailing the nation's achievements since the declaration of war, six months ago.

"American industry and the people of the entire nation," the statement says, "answered speedily, and efficiently the call to arms. Six months from the day war was declared finds the United States mobilized for the supreme task ahead."

Among other things, the statement says:

"Without accident or disaster the War Department already has sent a large expeditionary force to France. Within three months the department constructed sixteen cantonments. In these cantonments, or virtually en route thereto, there are today about a half million men.

"About 30,000 officers in the Reserve Corps have been commissioned. At the beginning of the war we had approximately 20,000 officers. There are now around 80,000 officers.

"The navy now has in service more than three times as many men and nearly three times as many vessels as when war was declared. The navy and Marine Corps constitute a force of more than a quarter of a million men. The Atlantic fleet comprises twice as many vessels as in peace times.

"Since early in May, a month after war was declared, United States destroyers have been operating with the naval forces of our allies in European waters in the campaign against the submarines. Practically all our merchant ships are now convoyed by naval vessels.

"The navy has organized, manned and is operating the transport service and convoys the vessels carrying American armies to Europe. Not a transport has been sunk or a soldier lost in transportation across the Atlantic.

"The largest ship construction program in history is being carried out by the navy, comprising hundreds of vessels of various types of super dreadnoughts to submarine chasers."

The Shipping Board has under construction and contemplation a total tonnage of nearly 11,000,000 deadweight capacity, requiring a total authorization of about $1,710,000,000.

MORE DRAFT MEN TO GO.

This Week's Departures Will Raise City's Force at Upton to 27,000.

The first units of the 9,673 New York City selective draft men ordered to Camp Upton under the fourth call will leave tomorrow morning, the men entraining at the Pennsylvania Station in Long Island City and at Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn. The men will go to camp in five contingents, leaving on successive days, and by next Friday night there will be approximately 27,000 New York soldiers in training under General Bell at Camp Upton. In two weeks the entire quota of 39,000 is expected to be in service. Forty-five per cent. of New York City's quota, or about 17,000, are already in training.

In addition to the men from the city units from Dutchess, Westchester, Putnam, Nassau, and Suffolk Counties will also mobilize for service this week, the men going to camp with the city soldiers. About 1,800 men are ordered to the colors tomorrow morning at 7:30 o'clock.

The round-up of the more than 1,000 men who failed to report for service on the first three calls continues, and about thirty of them were taken to Governors Island yesterday. Many of these men are now classed as deserters and will be tried for that serious crime if located.

Marines Force in France Not Split.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Major Gen. George Barnett, Commander of the United States Marine Corps, denied today the report recently cabled to this country from Europe to the effect that the Marine brigade now in France had been split up into small details and assigned to provost guard duty in towns where American troops are billeted.

LANSING EXPOSURES AGITATE GERMANS

Berlin Government Should Make a Speedy Defense, the Hanover Courier Says.

FEARS EFFECT ON NEUTRALS

Cologne Gazette Is Sarcastic About Secretary Baker's Praise of British Troops.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 6.—It is more than obvious from the German press that the ever increasing disclosures of the American State Department and Germany's inability to refute the charges are causing Germans considerable uneasiness.

The Hanover Courier has an editorial entitled "Backstairs of the White House." It holds that the German Government should take more energetic steps to deny these reports, saying that it is Mr. Lansing's business to see that every citizen of free America can enjoy his daily disclosure. The paper asserts that if the war could be won through "lowness and meanness" America would have won already. The Courier says that as practical American help and the rumored army of a million men are not even under way after six months of war the Washington Government seeks to make up for this by not allowing twenty-four hours to go by without divulging the contents of a secret or ultra secret document to the detriment of Germany.

"Nothing is really true," the paper continues. "Lansing knows it is much easier to make the most audacious statements than to deny and refute them. One should not make his game easier and allow these shameless assertions to remain unrefuted.

The German Government, unfortunately, appears to have adopted the attitude that the best way to combat this American childishness is with scornful silence—a theory that in practice can have disastrous results. It is necessary to fend off America's missiles somehow, however low and obnoxious they are, and for this purpose an energetic, thorough, and speedy enlightening is necessary."

The paper remarks that even critical and well-meaning neutrals who still retain a remnant of judgment must be confused. It argues that as the Entente has so much to say in the neutral press and Germany does not defend herself it must be assumed she has nothing to answer.

The Cologne Gazette says that America does not wish to be behind the Allies in any respect, and now publishes official war news, having brought out two communiqués praising the work of the British troops.

"Remarkable to say," the Gazette continues, "there is nothing about the work of American troops in the report. Surely there should also be a sort of Monroe Doctrine on this point, and American reports should be devoted to Americans."

FORD'S SON NOT EXEMPTED.

Draft Board Denies Application Based on His Duties in Auto Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 6.—The exemption claim of Edsel Ford, Secretary of the Ford Motor Company, and only son of Henry Ford, was denied today by the District Draft Appeal Board. Mr. Ford claimed exemption on industrial grounds. He will not be required to report for army duty, however, until the second call.

The board held that his relations with the Ford tractor holdings were not such as to entitle him to exemption. The particular section requires that the applicant for exemption show beyond doubt that the business in which he is engaged is necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment and successful prosecution of the war and that he is absolutely necessary to the maintenance of the business.

WOMAN DOCTOR SLIDES 60 FEET TO SAVE MAN

Makes Descent of Cliff in Time to Give First Aid Treatment to Injured Workman.

A hurry call for an ambulance surgeon to attend a man who had been seriously injured in an accident on the Long Island Railroad was sent in to St. Mary's Hospital in Brooklyn yesterday, and Dr. Mary Burke, who has been graduated from nurse's rank, was sent out with instructions to speed her ambulance. When she reached Glenmore and Vesta Avenues, in East New York, she found that the injured man was in a railroad cut sixty feet deep, and to reach him it would be necessary for her to drive the ambulance about four blocks and then walk back in the cut.

Men of a track-repairing gang yelled to the amoulance driver to hurry because they thought the man was dying. Dr. Burke decided there was no time to lose, and, refusing to accept the advice of a policeman and her ambulance driver, ran to the edge of the cut and slid down the sides that were almost perpendicular. Rocks and earth were dislodged, but she reached the bottom safely, although her white uniform was badly torn and soiled and she had suffered several cuts and bruises. Men in the gang picked her up when she reached the bottom, brushed the dirt from her medicine kit for her, and she began her work on the injured man, Frank Madelone of 250 Rockaway Avenue, Brooklyn, who had been injured by a grading machine.

After administering first aid treatment Dr. Burke took the injured man to the hospital, where other surgeons assisted her in the treatment. Madelone was unconscious when he reached the hospital, but he revived soon and thanked the woman surgeon for her spirit. Other surgeons at the hospital said that prompt attention had saved the life of the workman, and that when Dr. Burke arrived the man's condition was so critical that he would have died within a few minutes if stimulants had not been administered.

HOLDING BELGIUM AS TRUMP

Germany Aims at Coup in Peace Game, Bremen Paper Asserts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Oct. 6.—The Bremen Burgerzeitung, which is rated next to Vorwärts as the leading paper of the German majority Socialists, makes revelations of reasons which, it is reported, prompted the German Government to refuse to mention Belgium in its notes to the Pope.

The paper's Berlin correspondent asserts that the optimism of both Michaelis and Czernin regarding the speedy approach of peace is absolutely genuine, though it is very doubtful whether that optimism is founded on any facts other than those generally known to the public. Anyway, he says, there are no secret negotiations. But the German Government had an idea in its head in refusing to mention Belgium.

"The idea was this," says the correspondent. "The first thing to do is to allow public opinion in foreign countries to become firmly imbued with the idea that Germany, by refusing to mention Belgium, made an early conclusion of peace impossible, and that the question of Belgium is the only difficulty in the way. Then Germany will make a statement that she is prepared to restore complete independence to Belgium. This will cut the diplomatic knot with one word, and the way for peace negotiations will be open."

The correspondent warns, as Vorwärts has recently done, that the people are getting impatient, and that unless visible progress toward peace is soon made the German Government's easy and infectious optimism will be subjected to such a crossfire of angry criticism as will prove annihilating to the Government.

Mr. Glaser, who had been in poor health, was living at the Hotel Loonarwich, Lake Waramaug, and disappeared on Wednesday. Mrs. Glaser started a search for him and notified the police here. When Mr. Glaser was found he gave the name of George Gassner, but, from the description given by his wife, he was recognized by the police.

BRYANT PARK LOSES TREES.

Ancient Elms, Badly Decayed, Succumb to the Woodchoppers.

Park Commissioner Cabot Ward's woodchoppers cut down half a dozen old trees in Bryant Park last week, among them being one of the large elms on the Forty-second Street side. They were all badly decayed, and there are four or five others which are doomed for destruction, including the largest maple trees in the circular lawn in the middle of the park.

Of the old elms and poplars which added so much to the beauty of the park a few years ago, only two remain—a fine poplar and a good-sized elm on the Forty-second Street side, near the Public Library plaza. They show the marks of age as several branches have been lopped off, and when they go Bryant Park will have to depend for its foliage upon the trees which have been set out within the last few years. The grass plots have been materially improved this season, and the physical appearance of the park has been brighter than for several years, but the glory of its old trees, once a characteristic feature of Bryant Park, has gone forever.

BOLO'S CONTRACT IS NOW MISSING

Federal Agents May Have Paper Containing Terms for the Betrayal of France.

PAVENSTEDT GUARDED IT

Removed Document to Supposed Place of Safekeeping When America Entered War.

DENIES REVEALING NAME

German Agent Says He Does Not Know How Jagow Learned Plotter's Identity.

When the United States broke off diplomatic relations with Germany and handed passports to Count von Bernstorff and his staff there was packed away in a room at the German Club, then occupied by Adolph Pavenstedt, former head of the banking house of G. Amsinck & Co., a contract which Bolo Pacha had entered into with his German backers to "deliver French public opinion" into the hands of the Germans for the purpose of getting France out of the war on terms favorable to Germany.

This important document, which Pavenstedt now swears has been lost or has disappeared—it was suggested yesterday that it may be among the German documents now in possession of the United States Government—is in the handwriting of Bolo Pacha, and was turned over to Pavenstedt, who accepted it as the representative of Bernstorff.

Pavenstedt was recalled for examination yesterday and given an opportunity to tell what he knew about the "plot messages" which passed between Bernstorff and von Jagow, the then Foreign Minister of Germany, regarding the Bolo project. The texts of these messages, which were made public by Secretary Lansing Friday night, directly contradict, in a number of important particulars, some of the statements made under oath by Pavenstedt, who swears that Bernstorff never knew the name of Bolo until after he was handed his passports last Spring, nearly a year after Bolo received the $1,700,000 which Bernstorff paid to him as the price of his treachery to France.

When under cross-examination by Deputy Attorney General Alfred L. Becker yesterday, Pavenstedt again stated that Bernstorff did not know Bolo's name during the period in which negotiations were going on in New York between Bolo, on the one side, and Pavenstedt on the other, the latter by his own admission, acting as the agent of the German Embassy. When asked to harmonize the statement with the fact that Bolo's name appears in one of the Bernstorff-Jagow plot messages, which was sent from Berlin on May 31, 1916, Pavenstedt was a bit confused, and said he did not know how Jagow got the name.

Pavenstedt was questioned in the offices of Perley, Morse & Co., public accountants, at 61 Broadway. He was under examination for more than an hour. All efforts to get from him information as to what has become of the Bolo contract, which called for the transfer of Bolo's stock in the Paris Journal to Pavenstedt, failed, the German maintaining that it was lost.

The name of the lawyer to whom he says he intrusted it after America entered the war was withheld, and is not mentioned in the stenographic report. This lawyer is said to be an American, and spends much of his time at the German Club.

The re-examination of Pavenstedt was made in the private office of Mr. Perley. All of the questions were asked by Mr. Becker.

Reasserts Concealment of Name.

"Mr. Pavenstedt, since you were last examined we have obtained information that Bernstorff addressed to Herr von Jagow a cablegram 'No. 679, Feb. 26, 1916,' (the message in which the Bolo plot was put up to the German Government,) and in view of this telegram had you seen Count von Bernstorff in relation to the Bolo Pacha matter on or prior to Feb. 26, 1916?" Mr. Becker asked.

"I had, of course, seen him before."

"You must have seen him before Feb. 26?"

"Yes."

"Bernstorff stated that he had received direct information from an entirely trustworthy source. Now there is no question but that trustworthy source was yourself, is there?"

"No."

"He states that one of the leading personalities of the country in question is seeking a certain loan. Can you state who is meant by that?"

"Well, I can only mention that he meant Bolo. He did not know his name, you know."

"Is it possible that he meant Senator Humbert?"

"I do not think that is likely."

"You think that it refers to Bolo?"

"Yes."

"Bernstorff states: 'I was forbidden to give his name in writing.' In view of that was not Bernstorff, at that time, in possession of the name of Bolo Pacha?"

"Not to my knowledge."

"We have also learned that Bernstorff received cablegram No. 150 from Herr von Jagow on Feb. 29. Did he discuss the contents of that message with you?"

"No."

The next question concerned message No. 685, from Bernstorff to von Jagow, in which Bernstorff said that "Sanct Regis" would call on the German Minister to Switzerland. Pavenstedt was asked to explain that message and state what "Sanct Regis" meant.

"That was a password," Pavenstedt replied, "given at Bolo's request. It was given by me to Count Bernstorff in case Bolo should wish later to get in contact with German officials at Berne, so that he would have something to show in order that he might be received."

"Can you state more fully what the conversation was between you and Bolo in that respect?"

"Well, he said it might be necessary for him at some future time to get in contact with the German Foreign Office, and that he would go to Berne, as we had an embassy there and he wished to have something to identify him as being all right. He had been in contact with me here, and he gave me the word which I told Bernstorff about, and he cabled it over."

Influencing the German Press.

"Is the intermediary mentioned who requested that influence might be brought to bear upon the German press yourself?"

"Well, it was at Bolo's request, you know."

"That is, you requested Bernstorff, upon the suggestion of Bolo, that influence be brought upon the German press to pass over things in the inner political situation in France so far as possible in silence in order that matters might not be spoiled by German approval?"

"Yes."

"We also have message No. 206, dated May 31, 1916, from Jagow to Bernstorff. Can you explain how the name of Bolo was in the possession of Jagow at that time?"

"No, I can't."

"As far as you know, had Bolo's name been communicated to Bernstorff up to that time?"

"No."

"Did you ever show to Bernstorff, or did he ever see, so far as you know, the copy of the contract of sale of interest in Le Journal between Humbert and Bolo?"

"I never showed it to him."

"Did he ever see it so far as you know?"

"No."

"Have you any reason to believe that there was a meeting between Bolo Pacha or any one representing him, and Count Bernstorff?"

"No, I have no reason to believe that."

"Is it not a fact that you discussed this matter with Bolo within two days after he arrived?"

"I doubt that, for it was after the luncheon I had with him downtown with Mr. Voorhees, and that must have been two or three days after he arrived."

"I asked you several days ago if you knew any one in connection with Bolo at 362 Riverside Drive. I am now informed that is the apartment house known as the Buena Vista. Does that refresh your recollection?"

"No."

Relations with Captain Verdier.

"Did you know a man named Captain Verdier?"

"Yes."

"Was he an associte of yourself and Bolo in any way?"

"Yes."

"In what way?"

"They came over together on the same steamer."

"Do you know what Verdier's business was?"

"Oh, yes, he is proprietor, or part proprietor, of the department store 'City of Paris' in San Francisco. He came to me with a letter of introduction from Mr. Marshall, the partner of Perier & Co., and he was on leave. He had been with Marshall in the trenches or in the war, I don't know, and he gave him a letter of introduction to me in a social way, and we were here together. I showed him some civilities until he went to San Francisco to look after his business."

"What was the purpose of his stay in New York?"

"Well, he wanted to establish a house or modiste. That was the house known as the M— B— on Fifth Avenue."

"Did you give him any financial or business assistance?"

"No. He had been here before. He knows New York very well."

Conversation with Bernstorff.

Here followed testimony regarding Pavenstedt's conference with Bernstorff, the signing of the contract with Bolo, as well as the disclosure that for months that contract, which Pavenstedt now swears has disappeared, reposed in the German Club, in Fifty-ninth Street.

"Where did this conference between you and Ambassador Bernstorff take place?" Mr. Becker asked.

"In Washington in the embassy. I went over to Washington to see him. Then he thought it over, and he said that the sum was very large, and asked me what I knew about Bolo. I told him I only knew that he was very well recommended and that his partnership with Humbert, of course, meant a great deal to me, as far as I could judge. I knew about Humbert, because he was a very well known man. Well, he agreed with me, and he said that the thing interested him, and also said, 'I will have to think it over, and I will be in New York in a few days and will let you know. Come around and see me at the Ritz Hotel when I get there.'

"We parted," continued Pavenstedt, "and I came back to New York. I told Bolo that I had talked with the Ambassador, and that he was interested. He avoided going into any further discussion at the time, and said: 'Well, let me know what he will say when he comes to New York.'

"I waited a few days. Then I got a telephone call from the Ritz from the Ambassador to please call at 10:30 the next morning at the Ritz. On my way downtown I went there, and he said that he had decided to advance the money. He thought it of too much importance to neglect such an opportunity, and, although it was of doubtful value, he considered it was of sufficient interest to give that money.

"I wrote a note to Bolo, a short note. I had to go downtown. I simply said that I had got the money, the business was closed, and went downtown—oh, that I would call at 6 o'clock in the evening.

Contract in Form of Letter.

"I went at 6 o'clock to the Plaza Hotel, and he was sitting there at his desk, and I said 'Did you get my note?' He says 'Yes, of course. I have only got to deal with you, and I have drawn up a letter which will take the place of a contract, in which I stipulate the terms on which I will pay you back, and please read through it.'

"I read through that. Of course, that was the letter which I can't produce now and we don't know where it is, but the gist of it was this, that he would pay me back two years after the war was over, and that he would pay any interest, and that he would deposit all of the shares in Le Journal in, I think he said, a bank. I don't remember that he mentioned any bank, but the shares were to be in my name and trust, and I think the agreement also said that he would leave some word in the package, accompanied by a note or letter, that in case of his death I would be protected.'

"Did you assume in this loan a personal financial responsibility?"

"None whatever."

"You were merely the agent of the German Ambassador?"

"Yes."

"There was then an understading between you and the German Ambassador and Bolo Pacha of such a sort that the security was really for the protection of the German Ambassador?"

"Well, I tell you that Bolo made it a very strong point that he had nothing to do with anybody but me. He repeated that several times, and I never gave Bolo's name to the German Ambassador, either. I told him the man was a friend of mine. They had nothing to do, direct, with one another. I was the man that Bolo looked to to deal with. He said, 'I don't know the people here and I only want to deal with you.' He repeated that several times."

Knew Source of the Money.

"He had full understanding as to where the money came from?"

"Yes, he knew that. I told him that."

"In relating your conversation with Bernstorff in Washington you said that he asked you what you knew about Bolo. I understand you now to say that you never mentioned the name of Bolo to Bernstorff?"

"He said, 'What do you know about your friend, is he reliable?'"

"What did you say?"

"I said I had met him in Cuba first, very intimately; introduced by old friends, and it gave me confidence in him to carry out his plans."

"You have stated that you searched for that contract? How long did this contract remain in your possession?"

"Oh, well, up to about six months ago, when I called with the contract, when the war broke out, you know—I took the contract to my lawyer because I felt the situation had radically changed. This country was no more neutral."

"You showed it to your lawyer?"

"Yes."

"Did you leave it with him?"

"To the best of my recollection."

"Did he afterward return it to you?"

"He said to me, 'This is an important document and you had better leave it here with me for safe keeping,' and I left it there. That is the way I recollect it."

"Is it lost, so far as you can find out?"

"I think it ought to be in my lawyer's office, but he says he can't find it."

"Was it in typewriting?"

"The contract between Humbert and Bolo was in typewriting, and the letter which he wrote me, accompanying it, which took the form of a contract between us and him, was in his own writing. It was certified to by a notary and by the County Clerk."

"Where did you keep it while you had it?"

"I had it in my papers."

"In what location?"

"In the German Club. I had one of those filing systems, you know."

"Did you ever communicate the contents of it to Bernstorff?"

"I had told him, I believe, that I had a contract that I was to be paid back two years after the war was over. Well, he just listened to it. I told him I had the papers in my possession and mentioned these facts. He did not pay any attention to it."

"Did any correspondence or telegrams pass between you and Bernstorff, or anybody representing the German Embassy, relating to this matter?"

"Never."

"Do you want it to be understood that, as you believe, Bolo came over here merely on a speculation, and that the result of his coming was that Bernstorff was able immediately to promise him $1,700,000 without even knowing his name, and to get the German Foreign Office to make that advance with no further information than Bernstorff gave?"

"Bernstorff relied on me of course. I told him I had seen the contract of Charles Humbert, and Bolo was a very well-introduced man. I never mentioned the name of Bolo. I said 'My friend is introduced by some of the leading bankers of Paris,' and that he had shown me the contract which he had with Charles Humbert, who was such an important man in Paris, and was his partner.

Was Asked to Be Very Discreet.

"Why did you estimate it important to withhold from Bernstorff the name of Bolo?

"Well, you see, Bolo naturally requested me that I should be very discreet, not in any way to explain any of his business. You see, when I asked him, 'Does Bernstorff know about this business?' I said yesterday that he had answered 'No, no,' and did not say more, but he did say words to this effect, "No, no, and they must not."'

"I am speaking of Bernstorff. Bernstorff was your confidential friend. Bolo was not. Why was it necessary for you to withhold from Bernstorff the name of Bolo?"

"He did not insist on it. I said I preferred not to mention it, because of some indiscretion. The name might come out, and he did not even ask me. 'I do not care,' he (Bernstorff) said."

"A high official of the Secret Service was asked last night, in view of the admission of Pavenstedt that he was the man closest to Bernstorff in arranging for the carrying into effect of the Bolo plot, there was any reason to suppose that Pavenstedt might be interned for the duration of the war as a dangerous enemy alien.

"That is up to Attorney General Gregory," Secret Service man answered.

He made the same answer when asked if the internment of Hugo Schmidt was contemplated.

ABSOLVES SWEDISH LEGATION.

Did Not Transmit Bolo Messages, Says Secretary Lansing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—"I think there is no justification for that statement and that it should be corrected," said Secretary of State Lansing today when authorizing a denial of the statement printed in some newspapers that the Swedish Legation at Washington was the channel through which Count von Bernstorff sent his messages to the Berlin Foreign Office asking for the $1,700,000 fund for the Bolo Pacha plot.

Secreary Lansing limited his statement to the Swedish Legation, declining to make it a blanket denial that the Bernstorff messages had been transmitted by any neutral legation in Washington, nor would he say whether they had been forwarded by a Swedish or other legation in some other country.

The State Department has not yet seen fit to reveal either the manner in which it obtained the Bernstorff dispatches or whether they were furnished to this Government, decoded, by Great Britain. Officials intimated that these questions might remain a mystery to the end of the war.

The State Department, it was learned, has been furnished, presumably by the Swedish Minister to the United States, with complete information concerning the transmission of messages by the Swedish Legation in Washington for the German Ambassador before relations between the United States and Germany were severed. It was said on high authority that the Swedish Legation in Washington had not transmitted any messages in code for the German Embassy here since April, 1915, and that even messages previously transmitted were assumed to be innocent on the word of honor of the German Ambassador.

Baron Akerhielm, counselor of the legation, has just sailed for Sweden as a courier. The impediments placed in the way of communication between the Swedish Foreign Office and the legation here by the British Government, which controls the cables, necessitated the dispatch of a courier. The fact that a high official of the legation was selected to act in that capacity indicates that the contents of the messages he carries are of unusual importance.

EX-KHEDIVE CHANGES BASE.

Bolo Disclosures Emphasized His Activities in Switzerland.

LAUSANNE, Oct. 6.—Abbas Hilmi, former Khédive of Egypt, has left Switzerland for Vienna, where he will be received by Emperor Charles, and then will go to Constantinople.

The Swiss Government apparently is greatly relieved by the ex-Khédive's departure, because, while enjoying extra-territorial rights, he was able to carry on a propaganda favorable to the Central Empires. The revelations of Polo Pacha's activities in France and America tended to limit the efforts of Abbas Hilmi in Switzerland.

BOLO INTRIGUED AT ROME.

Pope Prevented Him from Carrying Out Catholic Bank Project.

It was learned yesterday that Bolo Pacha made his appearance in Rome in March, 1915, two months before Italy entered the war. He figured in outer Vatican circles and formed the acquaintance of an Austrian prelate, Mgr. Gerlach, who was later reported implicated in the sinking of two Italian battleships and fled to Vienna; Bolo also appeared in financial circles, where, among other ventures, he attempted to have certain securities held by the Treasury sent to Germany for sale.

In speaking of this Roman sojourn of Bolo the Rome correspondent of the Progresso Italo-Americano supplements the foregoing with the following details:

"The propaganda of Bola Pacha in Italy begins to reveal itself in the same scandalous way in which it has already been unfolded in France and America. There is considerable comment today as to what passes between the late Marchese della Chiesa, brother of Pope Benedict XV., and this French intriguer. (Marchese Giuolio della Chiesa died at Pegli early in April, 1915.)

"It is advanced, however, that the person of the Pontiff is in no way compromised, because he alone was the chief obstacle which prevented the carrying out of Bolo's project to found a Catholic Italo-Spanish bank.

"A disagreeable impression, however, has been produced from the fact that Cavallini, whose intimacy with Bolo is beyond question, who is noted for being one of the columns of the Clerical Party, has just been revealed to be with those clericals who have been denounced as being in communication with the enemy.

"The coincidence of this revelation with the efforts of the Pope for peace naturally invites argument—but without specific accusations or insinuations—as to the expediency of observing vigilance and caution.

"When Bolo came to Italy he went around with the Giolittiani (supporters of Giolitti, the pro-German statesman) and principally with Senator Angelo Anarratone, the ex-Prefect, and with Deputy Meuccio Ruini; with Clericals, among whom Cavallini was principally to be noted, and with Socialists, the most conspicuous among whom was Treves.

"At that time Bolo was trying to induce the Government to sell five hundred million ($100,000,000) of securities held by the Treasury through the Perier Bank of Paris, but, in fact, through Germany. Possibly the ex-Khédive of Egypt, who was then living in Switzerland, whom Bolo was serving though his propaganda, wanted to profit by this immense transaction.

"Other occult circumstances surrounding the proposition caused it to be politely declined by Commendatore Brofferio, the Director of the Treasury.

"The Bolo scandal threatens to implicate certain well known Giolittiani."

TAKING DAUDET'S EVIDENCE.

Investigator Begins Inquiry Into the Malvy Charges.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Captain Bouchardon of the Paris Military Court, investigator into various charges made recently of traitorous or seditious conduct, began this morning to take the deposition of Léon Daudet, the newspaper editor who in a letter to President Poincaré recently accused Louis J. Malvy, formerly Minister of the Interior, of traitorous conduct in betraying military secrets.

It was announced that the deposition of M. Daudet would be a very long one.

L'Action Française, M. Daudet's newspaper, was again seized this morning on account of an article it contained signed by the proprietor.

ACCUSES "BIG BUSINESS."

Congressman Baer Says He Is Misquoted by "Subsidized Press."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Representative Baer of North Dakota declared today that he never said in his campaign before the Non-partisan League that "Americanism is not an issue." That "misrepresentation," he said, was made by "the subsidized press of big business." The Congressman, who is a cartoonist, made a statement telling just what he did say.

"I have said, if we conscript men, we should conscript wealth. Perhaps it is this urgent demand on my part to conscript wealth that has aroused the antagonism of Big Business. Big Business has always tried to blacken the character of any man who stands for the rights of the people."

30 PERSONS INJURED AS TROLLEYS CRASH

RAMS CAR ON NEARBY TRACK

Vestibules Crushed and Every Window Broken—Fear of Fire Causes Panic.

Thirty persons were injured in a trolley collision at Manhattan Street and Amsterdam Avenue last night when an automatic electric switch device in a Willis Avenue car, bound for the Bronx, failed to operate, causing the trolley to swing from its track and ram a cross-town car on the 125th Street line, going in the other direction, with passengers for the Fort Lee Ferry.

Other cars on the Amsterdam Avenue and 125th Street lines coming down the inclines toward the junction point of the two lines, with others that lead off 125th Street to St. Nicholas Avenue, narrowly missed running into the switch while the injured passengers were being removed from the two wrecked cars.

Cars from the three converging lines are so numerous on the tracks near the junction point that cars go at high speed, and the Willis Avenue car was running past the street intersection because there had been no signal for it to stop. An electric signal in the car showed that the switch leading from the Amsterdam Avenue tracks was closed so that the Willis Avenue car had a free track ahead, and Motorman William J. Ronan speeded up his car to pass over the switch.

A flagman standing at the junction point also thought the switch was closed and allowed the Willis Avenue car to speed ahead without signaling the motorman to operate his automatic switch device to prevent the car from running to the other track, where the 125th Street car was coming ahead at high speed. Before either motorman saw the danger the Willis Avenue car swung over the switch and crashed into the 125th Street car.

The impact smashed the vestibules of the cars and broke all the windows. About seventy-five passengers were thrown from their seats. Most of the injured persons received bruises, and several were cut severely by flying glass. Some of the heavy fixtures of the cars also fell upon the heads of the passengers, and policemen had difficulty quieting passengers who were struggling to get out of the wreckage in fear that it would catch fire.

As the injured passengers were taken from the wrecked cars they were put into a special car and about thirty injured persons were taken to the car barns at 127th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, where they were attended by ambulance surgeons from Knickerbocker Hospital.

William J. Ronan of 208 East 118th Street, motorman of the Willis Avenue car, was badly cut by flying glass and Milton Hansen of 1,787 First Avenue, motorman of the 125th Street car, received internal injuries. Mrs. Elizabeth Flog of 1,851 Bathgate Avenue, the Bronx, and Jacob Rich of 1,102 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, suffered internal injuries. Mrs. Violet Johnson of 507 West 134th Street received a broken jaw.

Other persons bruised and lacerated severely were: Mrs. Catherine Gnitzer, and her daughter, Annie, aged 16, of 214 West 102d Street; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Campbell of Edgewater, N. J.; Mrs. Amy Blouet of 175 Claremont Avenue, Mrs. Dora Smith of 1046 Amsterdam Avenue, John J. Campion of 328 St. Nicholas Avenue, and Policeman Ulrich Essig of 175 Manhattan Street. Several other persons who were hurt refused to give their names and addresses.

Traffic on the three lines stopped for thirty minutes, while wrecking crews put the cars back on the tracks and got them to the barns at 127th Street.

Seek Funds for Garfield Monument.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Oct. 6.—The Directors of the Garfield Monument Association today appointed an Advisory Committee of 100 citizens to aid in raising a fund of $10,000 to complete the memorial to President Garfield here. About $10,000, or half the cost of the memorial, was raised by school children and lodges here on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the death of President Garfield. Charles Evans Hughes is Chairman of the new committee, and among the 100 members are several members of Congress.

SOUSA PLAYS FOR RED CROSS

Dramatic Masque from Rosemary Pageant Also Given in Carnegie Hall

Music and patriotism brought several thousand men and women to the Red Cross benefit performance at Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon and evening. The program was devoted to two features, a concert by the United States Navy Band from Great Lakes, Ill., under the direction of Lieutenant John Philip Sousa, and a performance of the second half of the Rosemary Pageant, in which noted artists appeared as the warring nations espousing their cause before the altars of Justice, Truth, and Liberty.

Lieutenant Sousa received an ovation when he stepped on the stage to conduct his band. Beginning with his own march, "Semper Fidelis," the famous bandmaster led his bluejacket musicians through a program of increasing thrills and interest. A descriptive piece, "A Day at the Naval Station," was received with great applause.

The dramatic masque from the Rosemary pageant, "The Drawing of the Sword," was impressively presented by a group of dramatic stars, including Tyrone Power, Ethel Barrymore, E. H. Sothern, William Faversham, Robert Edeson, Helen Ware, Rita Jolivet, Howard Kyle, and Alice Fischer. Others who appeared in the masque were Blanche Yurka, Gladys Hanson, Ernest Glendinning, Adrienne Morrison, Philip Tonge, Eva Le Gallienne, Michio Ito, William Harcourt, and Macy Harlem. The incidental music to the masque was played by a selected orchestra from the symphony society of New York under the direction of Victor Kolar.

The performance closed as it began, with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner" by the audience.

FILMS FOR ALLIES' SOLDIERS

Producers Plan to Teach Lessons of Democracy to Europe.

The National Association of Moving Picture Producers is co-operating with the Federal Government in a plan to teach the lessons of democracy to Europe through the establishment of a film service for all of the allied fronts in France, Russia, and Italy. The operation of the service will be left to the Government. The moving picture industry, by way of "doing its bit" toward making the world safe for democracy, has volunteered to supply the films and the necessary equipment required for the execution of such a plan.

William L. Sherrill, head of the Frohman Amusement Company, said yesterday that the moving picture propaganda would have a very salient effect upon the Russian situation by helping to keep the soldiers in the trenches. Such pictures of America will be presented as would inspire an appreciation of this country and its democratic institutions. Screens showing the President on parade with a host of citizens and other high officials mingling with their fellow men, will form a conspicuous part of the movie repertoire for foreign consumption.

The producers have already selected two men to take executive charge of the foreign work. P. A. Powers of the Universal will go to France and W. W. Irwin has been chosen to go to Russia.

BIRD WALK IN CENTRAL PARK

Audubon Society Encourages Study of Feathered Friends.

The Audubon Society gave its first public "bird walk" in Central Park yesterday. Under the direction of Walt. F. McMahon of the association, a group of school teachers, pupils, and others interested in birds made an early morning expedition into the Park with bird glasses and cameras to observe and study different types of bird life. This was the first step of its kind in a movement to familiarize the public with the economic value of birds, especially in war time.

Starting from the music stand at the head of the Mall at 8 A. M., Mr. McMahon divided his party into groups of convenient size and guided them toward the northern border of the Park. Discussing the habits of the various birds observed in the trip, including herons, blue jays, flickers, chipping sparrows, &c., Mr. McMahon said:

"The commonest dooryard birds are of great value to the farmer and orchardist. Even the robins, catbirds, and threshers are constant workers for the gardener. Because their feeding is confined largely to the ground or near it, they capture many insects that escape the birds of the tree tops. The despised English sparrow even does his share by helping rid shade trees of injurious insects."

The "bird walks" will be held hereafter every Saturday morning, weather permitting, until further notice.

POLES HERE TO ENLIST FOR ARMY IN FRANCE

War Department Indorses the Movement Backed by Paderewski and His Countrymen.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—A campaign to recruit Poles in the United States for a Polish army now training in France was indorsed today by the War Department. It will start tomorrow under the direction of the National Department of the Polish Central Relief Committee of Chicago, whose Chairman, I. J. Paderewski, the pianist, issued an appeal today to unnaturalized Poles to enlist.

Recruits will be trained at a camp already established by Polish interests near Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario. Polish-Americans subject to draft and men with dependents will not be accepted.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The appeal to the Poles of America to enlist in the Polish army, which is signed by I. J. Paderewski and others, says in part:

"Providence has decreed that on the centennial of the death of Thaddeus Kosciusko there arises a Polish national army upon the continent where he so valiantly fought for freedom. France has given life to this army and has offered her aid and support. France does not require the sacrifice of Polish blood. She can prevail without our humble aid. Over 5,000,000 men now fight in her defense.

"France, the leader of civilization, like Poland, a frequent defender of the oppressed, is concerned chiefly that in this struggle of light against darkness, right against might, democracy against autocracy, all liberty-loving peoples may participate.

"Larger and smaller nations are already engaged, and now the United States of America has joined France and her allies. Should, in this struggle for the freedom of nations, the Polish colors be missing it would be shameful.

"Conscious of our sacred duty to the Motherland, conscious of our obligations to America, we have long waited for this opportunity, with a full sense of our responsibility before God, the nation and our own consciences. Today, having received assurances of protection, having received a favorable declaration by the United States Government that enlistment into the Polish army of all those who are not legally subject to draft in the United States Army shall not be opposed, we call to you from the bottom of our hearts and challenge you to the ranks, to army, to battle, to the trenches, to a great and glorious struggle for the protection of threatened humanity, for the wrongs suffered by Poland.

"Go, so the world may know that in your breast the knightly valor of your forefathers has not been stilled; that the fearless bravery of the Poles of old has not vanished.

"Go, to give testimony that the American Pole is a worthy heir to the glory of Polish arms."

ASKS WOMEN TO SAVE WOOL

Defense Auxiliary Sends Out an Appeal to the Knitters.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense is sending out a request to the women of America to aid in the conservation of wool. Miss Hannah J. Patterson, resident director of the committee, gave out the following statement today:

"With a serious, worldwide need for economy in wool, and with nurses, soldiers, and sailors writing their friends and the Red Cross and other organizations for knit garments to help them keep warm in the rigorous Winter climate of Northern France and the North Atlantic, thousands of women in the United States are using up wool for their personal adornment. Six million garments have been requested of the American Red Cross, and that organization will exert itself to the utmost to provide that number.

"But sweaters cannot be made without yarn. The Woman's Committee is appealing to the women of the country to stop the practice of needlessly and wastefully using yarn for themselves. It is appealing to the spirit of loyalty and devotion to country which will keep any woman from using yarn for unnecessary sweaters for herself when our fighting forces need it.

"It is imperative that we send out a call to our sisters to do their bit in the war by knitting no more sweaters of wool for themselves after they have one. It is unthinkable that our soldiers and sailors should suffer, or run the risk of suffering because women choose to have from three to thirty sweaters each, to match their various gowns."

MAYOR AGAIN PUTS QUESTIONS TO HYLAN

Urges Tammany Candidate to Tell Where He Stands Regarding Hearst, Present and Past.

BENNETT RENEWS ATTACK

Calls Mayor's Patriotism a Sordid Issue—Predicts Big Victory for Himself.

Mayor Mitchel and his campaign managers intend to keep up their drive on Judge John F. Hylan, Tammany candidate for Mayor, by insisting daily that he answer the four questions concerning the support of William R. Hearst which the Mayor asked him at a meeting on Thursday night.

Summarized, these questions were: Do you approve the "sinister and unpatriotic activities" of Mr. Hearst; do you consider Mr. Hearst a patriotic American; do you approve of Mr. Hearst printing the American flag on the front page of his newspapers and "stabbing his country on the editorial pages," and do you think Mr. Hearst was right in 1905, when he declared the leaders of Tammany Hall a "brutal lot of private speculators and public plunderers," and said that Charles F. Murphy ought to be in jail?

"He is afraid to answer," said the Mayor yesterday, "He isn't his own boss, and cannot answer questions for himself. He hasn't yet heard from the Pacific Coast, so he hasn't yet had instructions to answer the four questions I put to him."

The Mayor said he intended to keep right on with his speeches making patriotism one of the issues of the campaign, despite the report from Washington that the National Administration would prefer that the Mayor make his fight entirely on local issues.

"The whole United States is taking an interest in this election," said the Mayor, "because it is a national issue. Some people are now objecting to raising the national issue of patriotism, but those are the very people who helped to raise the issue. The issue is now here, and you can't blink at it. How can you, when you have Hearst on one side, with his pro-German propaganda, and on the other side this administration?"

Emory R. Buckner, Fusion campaign manager, said he would like to know who was writing Judge Hylan's speeches for him.

"Why does he read all his speeches from manuscript?" asked Mr. Buckner. "Did he ever before make any campaign speeches from manuscript? I should like to know who is writing his speeches for him."

To Fight Bennett Indorsement.

Republican supporters of Mayor Mitchel, having won a victory in the New York Republican County Committee when the committee voted overwhelmingly not to indorse the candidacy of William M. Bennett, though he was selected in the primaries, have begun a quiet campaign among the Republican leaders of the other counties with a view of having similar action taken at the various County Committee meetings. Brooklyn is giving the Mitchel Republicans more worry than any other borough, as the Bennett strength is so pronounced there they realize it will be hard work to keep the county organization from going on record for him.

The Brooklyn district leaders have taken up the matter on their own account and efforts will be made to feel out the sentiment of the voters before the County Committee meets on Oct. 16. Already one Assembly district has acted favorably to Bennett through its district organization. This is the Twenty-second Assembly District, of which Jacob A. Livingston, who has opposed Mayor Mitchel's nomination from the beginning, is leader. On Friday night the organization held a meeting and a resolution indorsing Mr. Bennett as the Republican candidate for Mayor, offered by Mr. Livingston, was adopted with little opposition.

Just what strength Mr. Livingston will have in the County Committee meeting is what the Mitchel Republicans are trying to find out.

Attacks Resented.

The anti-Bennett Republicans pointed out that he was fast losing support because of his attacks upon Republican leaders who are not for him. Yesterday Mr. Bennett in a statement charged the Republican organization with being "an instrument for the promotion of private and special interests." In his statement Mr. Bennett also bitterly arraigned the Mayor. He said:

"The fight of the Republican voter has resolved itself into a battle for the life of the Republican Party, against two great political organizations backed by millions of dollars. I entered the primaries with the conviction that the people of the City of New York would repudiate Mayor Mitchel's four-year administration in behalf of the moneyed interests. My expenditures in the primaries amounted to approximately $4,000, the greater part of which came out of my own pocket.

"Full-page advertisements singing the Mayor's praises have appeared in the daily newspapers. He pictures himself as the original Yankee Doodle Boy.

"Every citizen in New York knows the cost of newspaper advertising in normal times. It is tripled in the cases of political propaganda. It may reach $25,000 a day for Mr. Mitchel's backers.

"I ask the Republican voter whose ballot is sought by this sordid means to pause before he pledges his support to the discredited and beaten Mayor. I ask him to interrogate Mitchel's Fusion Committee as to the source of the funds for this gigantic propaganda. Ask how much, for instance, have members of the firm of J. P. Morgan and its interests contributed?

"Lithographed pictures of Mayor Mitchel in a soldier's uniform, which he is not entitled to wear, appear upon the billboards of the city. In these wealth-drawn cartoons Mitchel is pictured with a gun in his hand and a bid is made for public support on false pretenses.

Calls Purpose Sordid.

"Never were the Stars and Stripes used for a more sordid or selfish purpose. In substance, the Mayor says to the Republican voter: 'Elect me in November and ratify my scandalous city administration or defeat me in November and trample upon the American Flag.'

"A man who seeks to capitalize patriotism in such a sordid and unpatriotic manner richly deserves defeat, and this fate seems certain, despite his 'popular nomination,' which he received at the hands of a few thousand office boys, curiosity seekers, and city employes.

"Mr. Mitchel's campaign is drawing to a close. An attempt has been made to force him upon an unwilling public by the unlimited use of money. It is time for the Republican organizations in New York County to get back to the days of Lincoln when the party was a party of principle and was not an instrument for the promotion of private and special interests. If the organization in New York County continues to follow after these false gods an outraged electorate will arise to disown this organization and to institute a new Republican organization which shall have for its motto: 'Righteousness in all things, including politics.'

"The final commentary upon the Republican organization in New York County and its officials will be written upon Nov. 6, when I shall be elected by an overwhelming majority."

The Fusion managers are taking part in the fight over the indorsement of Bennett in the Republican county committees. That is being left entirely to the Republicans. At the same time no campaign is to be made against Mr. Bennett. The Fusion Committee will give all its attention to Judge Hylan, the Tammany candidate.

Wants More Specific Talk.

Martin W. Littleton, Chairman of the City Democracy, which is supporting Mayor Mitchel, asked a few questions himself yesterday.

"Mr. Hylan," he said, "reads from prepared paper that he will end 'boss rule.' To whom does he refer when he speaks of boss rule? Let him name the bosses he will end. Will he get rid of Boss Murphy and Boss McCooey and Boss Hearst? Or is he now deceiving them and intending to throw them over when he gets the office? What specific thing as Mayor does he propose to do? Has he any plan which he can define himself without reading copy passed by his censor and manager, Murphy? Is Hylan really just floundering around among a lot of race prejudice words strung together for campaign purposes?

Mr. Bennett will open his speaking campaign tonight at the Quaker Forum, 144 East Twentieth Street. Mr. Bennett himself is of Quaker descent, and is, therefore, much gratified that the first invitation to speak should come from the society of his ancestors. His subject will be "Moral Issues of the Campaign."

The Non-Partisan Mitchel Campaign Committee of Queens was formed yesterday to work in the interest of the Mayor. Eugene Y. Daly is chairman and Ellis Parker Butler, treasurer. The committee will have organizations in every district in the county. At the meeting two prominent Queens Republicans, William H. Wade and Warren B. Ashmead, announced their support of Mayor Mitchel. The Mayor will make three speeches in Queens on Wednesday night under the auspices of the Fusion Committee of Queens. He will be accompanied by Controller Prendergast and Fire Commissioner Adamson. The meetings will be at St. Michael's Hall, Flushing; Episcopal Parish Hall, Jamaica, and Hettinger's Hall, Long Island City.

Friends of Mayor Mitchel are bringing pressure to bear on Governor Whitman with the object of inducing the Governor to urge the Republicans in this city to rally to the support of the Mayor, despite the fact that he suffered defeat in the Republican primaries.

The Governor's attitude, as disclosed by a person in his confidence, is said to be that he would much prefer to remain neutral, but he thoroughly realizes that William Bennett could not possibly win and that any general defection of Republicans from Mayor Mitchel would mean inevitably a Tammany victory. This the Governor is anxious to avert, if it can be averted, and if it should be impressed upon him that a rallying cry from him to the Republicans would be helpful in bringing to Mayor Mitchel the general Republican support, it is regarded as certain that it will be sounded by the Governor.

MAYOR SAYS MURPHY SEEKS GERMAN VOTE

ASSERTS HYLAN ASSENTED

Mitchel Holds Democratic Nominee Is Afraid to Answer Questions Put to Him.

Speaking at three enthusiastic meetings last night, Mayor Mitchel laid further stress on what he termed the "dual menace" of Murphy and the Kaiser, which he declared threatened the city in a victory for Judge Hylan. At the Harlem Casino he warned the voters that they had to face the menace, "blink it as we will, get away from it though we may." At Corrigan's Hall, on Washington Heights, he asserted that until Judge Hylan answered the four questions concerning the exact status of his patriotism in the present crisis, the Judge could not stand with clean hands before any gathering of American citizens.

"I have challenged him and I believe he is afraid to answer," said the Mayor.

At a meeting in Hunter's Point Casino, on Southern Boulevard, he denounced the Tammany candidate for Borough President of the Bronx, Henry Bruckner, as a pro-German, nominated solely in order to obtain the pro-German vote. Judge Hylan, he said, had evinced his toleration of Congressman Bruckner when he agreed to run on the same ticket with him.

"Through the cunning of partisan leaders who placed partisanship before patriotism, the Bronx stands today ashamed and humiliated before its sister boroughs. It has been branded to the city and to the nation as a borough whose loyalty is in doubt, and more than any other section of the city the people of the Bronx should rise in their might to shatter the schemes of the little coterie which is willing to dishonor the Bronx if only some partisan advantage may be secured.

"This shameful situation was disclosed to the people of New York City when a newspaper reporter asked Judge Hylan whether he would run on a ticket with a pro-German. This is a question to which any man whose loyalty was not blunted by political ambitions would have replied in four seconds. Judge Hylan took four hours. And at the end of that time his reply was to the effect that he would run on a ticket with a pro-German if the people of the Bronx put the pro-German on the ticket.

"The facts behind this question and answer are very simple. The people of the Bronx elected Henry R. Bruckner to Congress. During his term in Congress the McLemore resolution was introduced. This resolution provided that the President of the United States should prohibit Americans from sailing on the high seas on the merchant ships of friendly nations, a right guaranteed by international law. It was in effect a recognition of the righteousness of Germany's unspeakable submarine warfare; it was a vindication of von Tirpitz and of the man who sank the Lusitania; it was a repudiation of the great American statesman who asserted American rights on the high seas against all the world in the days when this nation was small in numbers, but mighty in spirit; it was a resolution which, if adopted, would have aided Germany and have branded this nation before the world as too cowardly and too contemptible to assert the rights of its citizens. Congressman Bruckner of the Bronx voted in favor of this infamous resolution.

"When the reporter asked Judge Hylan whether he would run on a ticket with a pro-German, he explained his question by asking whether Judge Hylan would run on a ticket with the man who had been designated by Arthur Murphy and his lieutenants for Borough President of the Bronx.

"Mr. Bruckner was selected for Borough President by Arthur Murphy. Arthur Murphy, and Arthur Murphy alone, knows all the reasons why Mr. Bruckner is a candidate on the Democratic ticket.

"Out of all the Democrats in the Bronx, out of all the Tammany men in this borough from whom Mr. Murphy might have made his selection, why did Mr. Murphy select Henry Bruckner?

"Why did Mr. Murphy select Mr. Bruckner rather than some other member of the Tammany organization here whose loyalty to America was as strong as Mr. Bruckner's loyalty is weak? On the authority of two men whose integrity and truthfulness is unassailable I will give you the answer.

"Mr. Murphy selected Mr. Bruckner for Borough President of this Borough because he believed Mr. Bruckner could command the vote of every pro-German in the Bronx. In conversation with the men who are my authority, Mr. Murphy's lieutenants and leaders explicitly stated that Mr. Bruckner would make a strong Democratic candidate because he would receive the pro-German vote.

"I come here tonight to ask the people of the Bronx; to ask the Republicans of the Bronx; to ask the Independents of the Bronx; to ask the Tammany men of the Bronx, whether their manhood will stand for this betrayal. I ask them tonight whether they will permit their borough to be degraded by the elevation of a man whose election will proclaim to all the world that the Bronx is disloyal."

At the first meeting in the Harlem Casino the Mayor said:

"This year you face the menace of Mr. Murphy and Mr. Hearst, because it was Hearst influence which put Judge Hylan on the ticket. That same influence is permeated with sympathy for the enemies of our country. This is the dual menace. It is the great issue of the present campaign. Blink it as we will, get away from it though we may, New York stands in danger of appearing before the nation as a city whose government is in the hands of men whose loyalty is in doubt."

places on Election Day and vote against Mitchel"

Judge Hylan continued to be kept incommunicado by his campaign managers yesterday. He was invisible to interviewers. Nor did he in any statement made public through an intermediary attempt to answer the questions propounded by Mayor Mitchel at a series of Brooklyn meetings on Thursday night, at which the Mayor asked his Tammany opponent if he approved of the "sinister and unpatriotic" activities of Mr. Hearst, whether he approved of Mr. Hearst's policy of printing the American flag on the front page of his newspapers and stabbing the Government on the back page, which contains his editorial comment. He also asked Mr. Hylan to say whether he thought Mr. Hearst was right or wrong in 1905 when he declared the Tammany district leaders a pack of "private speculators and public plunderers," and expressed the opinion that Mr. Murphy ought to be in jail.

Judge Hylan did not yesterday visit his personal headquarters at 50 East Forty-second Street at all, much to the disappointment of a crowd of campaign workers who gathered there in the hope of meeting him.

From the headquarters of the Democratic Fusion Committee was sent out last night the text of a set of resolutions and an address to the voters adopted by officials and business agents of a number of labor organizations affiliated with the Central Federated Union and the building trades, who called on Judge Hylan on Friday, conferred with him behind closed doors, and then pledged their support to him.

Socialists Want $100,000 Fund.

The Socialists yesterday sent out a country-wide appeal for contributions to a $100,000 fund to be used for the purpose of winning "New York for Socialism." This has been adopted as a slogan by the followers of Morris Hillquit, the Socialist candidate for Mayor in the present campaign. The appeal reads, in part:

"Do you realize what the effect on the nation—on the world—will be if it is flashed over the wires on election night that New York has elected a Socialist Mayor? Such is a possibility. A month ago we believed our vote this Fall would be 100,000. Two weeks later we raised this estimate to 150,000. Today we are convinced we have a chance to win. Comrade Hillquit himself says: 'We can win if we make the campaign as big and as wide as the city.'

"Comrades, the old order is passing and the new is coming. Russia revolted overnight. Dayton, Toledo, and other cities point the way to what is coming. Help us carry New York, the biggest city in America."

It was announced at the headquarters of Morris Hillquit yesterday that the Socialists would make a drive for the woman suffrage amendment in connection with their Mayoralty campaign.

According to the headquarters of the Socialist Party, the coming week will be the biggest in their campaign. Including outdoor meetings, from 125 to 150 meetings will be held every night. More than 500 volunteers, it was stated, are pushing the campaign. Mr. Hillquit will speak at the following evening meetings during the week: Tuesday, ratification meeting at Schuetzen Park Hall, Astoria; Wednesday, Central Branch, Y. M. C. A., 55 Harison Place, Brooklyn; Thursday, League of Foreign Born Citizens, 196 Second Avenue, and Saturday, New York Labor Temple, 243 East Eighty-fourth Street.

ELECTION INSPECTOR CHARGES MORE FRAUD

Tells Prosecutor Republican Leaders Forced Out Regular Official and Did the Counting.

In a statement made yesterday to Assistant District Attorneys Wallace and Olcott in charge of the investigation of alleged frauds in the Republican primaries, one of the Democratic inspectors of an uptown election district charged that the son of a prominent Republican leader, just before the polls closed on primary day, forcibly ejected a Republican inspector from the table and personally superintended the counting of the ballots. An argument ensued, according to the District Attorney's informant, and one of the Democratic members sent for a policeman, demanding the arrest of the politician's son.

"This politician's son had told the Republican inspector that he was sick and should go home," the witness said. "The man denied he was ill, whereupon the politician's son pushed him out of the chair and sat down. The Democratic Chairman of the board then took a hand and said, 'I won't stand for such tactics; you put this over on us last year.'"

While waiting for the arrival of the policeman, the witness said, the son telephoned for his father, who arrived a few minutes later in an angry mood. He demanded that his son be permitted to remain and count the ballots, finally carrying his point, although the District Attorney's informant said the Democratic Chairman would not stand for the substitute being sworn in as an inspector.

"We'll do what we want with our ballots, and you can do whatever you want with yours," the Republican leader is quoted as saying.

The Democratic Inspector declared in his statement that the politician's son assisted in counting the Republican ballots, entering the results in his own handwriting. When the Chairman asked how many votes had been cast for the candidates, the young man replied, according to the witness:

"Mitchel gets 48, and Bennett none."

"The Chairman remarked that it was odd that Bennett had not received any votes," the witness continued, "and asked the politician's son if he was certain he had called out the results correctly. The young man replied that he had."

The Democratic Inspector told the District Attorney that the next night he met the politician's son and remarked to him that Bennett had charged fraud in the newspapers. He said he told the young man that it looked bad for the four members of the board if it should develop that Bennett had received some votes in the district.

"Don't worry," the son replied, according to the Inspector, "everything will be all right. Bennett did get about 8 votes, but we didn't put them down. It was a clerical error. Father says he will straighten everything out."

According to Assistant District Attorney Olcott, the policeman who had been called to make the arrest has corroborated part of the story. He said that evidence in the hands of the authorities showed that Bennett had received a large vote in this particular district.

UNTERMYER REPLIES AGAIN.

Denies He Criticised Our Sending Men to France.

Samuel Untermyer issued another statement last night denying the charge that on April 5, 1917, he "criticised the sending of our young men to France."

"The utter absurdity" of the charge, Mr. Untermyer stated, was demonstrated by the fact that in April, 1915, he began financing volunteer recruits for the army and appealing for enlistments through the Jewish League of American Patriots, of which he is the President. Louis Miller, a member of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense, is a member of the league, Mr. Untermyer stated, and knew of the plans to pursue a progressive pro-American policy.

"At that same time, at the outbreak of the war, I offered through the league, and Mr. Miller knows it, at my sole expense, to equip an entire regiment of Jewish soldiers from the City of New York," said Mr. Untermyer.

Mr. Untermyer added that Mr. Miller also knew about the loan that had been made by Mr. Untermyer to Judge Aaron J. Levy toward buying Mr. Miller's interest in the Warhelit, and that it was a mere act of friendship.

"It is rather far-fetched to try to connect me with knowledge of the policy of a paper that I have never read or seen, and could not read, which policy I do not yet know because I made the loan, already partly repaid, to a friend who bought a minority interest in the paper," added Mr. Untermyer.

SEVENTH REGIMENT HAS LAST PARADE

MARCH ON "FIFTH AVENUE"

Majors for Four First Line Units Announced—Many Captains to be Transferred.

Special to The New York Times.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Oct. 6.—The old Seventh paraded at Camp Wadsworth this morning as the Seventh Regiment for the last time. Organized 100 years ago, the regiment, when Lafayette visited this country, was credited with being the first of the organized militia to take the title "National Guard" as a tribute to the guard of Paris. On Monday its ranks will mingle with 1,600 men from the First Regiment, officers will be exchanged, and the designation "Seventh" will be dropped for the wartime title of 107th United States Infantry.

The farewell parade was held at 11 o'clock on the secondary drill grounds, a stretch of land which has been named "Fifth Avenue." But somebody evidently picked a misnomer, for "Fifth Avenue" thirty days ago was a cotton field; besides, in all its many parades down the avenue the Seventh never trod on stray cotton balls nor kicked up a curtain of red clay. And no Fifth Avenue crowd ever consisted of the reviewing officers, twenty motors full of spectators and a few newspapermen.

A few minutes before the scheduled time, Brig. Gen. Phillips and his staff rode over from headquarters and took up their station to review. In the General's party was Colonel Pierre Reille, 116th Artillery, French Army, here on a mission for his Government. Soon from the cluster of trees that sheltered the regiment were heard the notes of "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and winding down the brown hill road leading to the parade field came the head of the four-mile column, the sun flashing from nearly 2,000 bayonets.

Over the hill the stream of khaki poured till it reached the edge of the field, where it widened into battalion formation. A second's wait till the band went to the head of the regiment, another till the bandmaster's baton rose, then "Over There" burst from the fifty musicians, and the Seventh marched on.

The regiment went once down the field, then faced about and, with the band again in the van, filed, even ranked, before General Phillips. When half the men had gone past, Colonel Fisk, forty-three years in the Seventh, told Lieut. Col. McLean, himself thirty-four years a Seventh man, to halt the regiment in salute. With every man at attention, General Phillips and staff, seated stiffly in their saddles, returned the regiment's salute.

The band played a few bars of "Auld Lang Syne," which was followed by the command "Eyes front, right shoulder arms, forward march," and with the band stilled the regiment marched back over the brown hill road.

Shortly after the review General Phillips authorized the publication of the names of the Majors who have been chosen to remain with or be transferred to the first-line units—the 105th, 106th, 107th, and 108th Regiments, respectively the old Second, Twenty-third, Seventh, and Third. In the 105th, Majors Everett J. Bateman and Jesse E. Button were retained, but the command of the Third Battalion was given to Major Sidney De Kay, of the Twelfth.

All three Majors of the 106th were displaced and in their stead Majors Walter Delamater, Seventy-first; Gabriel G. Hollander, Fourteenth, and Harry S. Mildreth, Twelfth, were assigned. In the 107th Majors Robert Maset and Nicholas Engle were continued, but Major Thomas M. Sherman, a relative of the famous Tecumseh Sherman, was transferred from the First to make up the majority trio.

The battalion command of the 108th, composed of Majors Frederick S. Couchman, William A. Turnbull, and Otto I. Chorman, was not altered.

From another source it was ascertained that the following Captains of the Seventy-first will be transferred on Monday to the 105th or old Second: Ray Hodgen, Company A; Stanley Buckeley, Company B; Frank Potter, Company D; Harry Maslin, Company F; Ernest Strong, Company G; Steven Delanoi, Company I, and George Terry, Company L. All of the First and Second Lieutenants of the Seventy-first also will be transferred.

These officers, it is said, will remain with the Seventy-first: Colonel William G. Bates, Captain H. H. Kehlbeck, Adjutant, and Captains True, Ely, Robertson, McDermott, and Fearn, the last named regimental supply officer. Seven Captains from the 105th are slated for transfer to the Seventy-first.

Though the bitter feeling among the men over the reorganization continued today, the indignation that produced last night's mutinous threats disappeared. This sobering of the malignant ones was accomplished by a short order from headquarters promising that swift and heavy punishment would meet the malcontents.

PACIFISTS DEFY GOVERNOR.

People's Council Conference in South Dakota Is Announced.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Oct. 6.—Plans to hold a State conference of the People's Council of America for Democracy and Peace here Oct. 10, despite an order of Governor Norbeck to Sheriff Shanks to prevent meetings of the council in South Dakota, were announced today by William C. Rempfer, an attorney, at Parkston, S. D. At a meeting held at Parkston last night, attended by 500 persons, the action was decided upon. During the meeting the electric light wires were cut, but pacifists continued their deliberations in darkness.

Former United States Senator R. F. Pettigrew, it was asserted, would preside as Chairman of the proposed conference here.

SIX STATES FURNISH 100,760 MEN FOR ARMY

Nearly Half of Recruits Obtained Since April 1 Came From These Banner States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Since April 1 last, the six banner States in regular army recruiting have furnished 100,760 men. These States are Pennsylvania, which has furnished 25,472 men, New York, with 24,529; Illinois, with 18,595; Massachusetts, with 10,865; Ohio, with 10,885, and Indiana, with 10,314.

The whole country has furnished 222,776 men since April 1. Thus it is apparent that the six banner States have furnished nearly half of the men that have gone into the regular army since the intensive drive began. The daily statement issued by Adjutant General McCain follows:

Boston Saves Wheat in Bread.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—The State Food Administration has been informed by the principal bakers of this city that their sales of the darker breads have increased from 60 to 70 per cent. since the institution of two "no white bread" days each week. The food officials consider this a definite indication of the successful result of the appeal to the public to save wheat.

NEW ENGLANDERS BEST AT RIFLE PRACTICE

Lead New York Students at Plattsburg by a Wide Margin on the Range.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, Oct. 6.—The close of the sixth week, or just half of the time alloted for the making of officers at this camp, finds both infantry regiments working hard to beat one another in rifle practice. So far the New England organization, the Seventeenth Provisional Training Regiment, stands at the top, the regimental averages, for the 100-yard shoot, three positions of ten shots each, being: New England Regiment, 41.317, and the New York Regiment, (the Eighteenth Provisional Training Regiment,) 40.745.

New England companies hold first, second, third, and fourth places in the standing, with the Fourth New England Company in the lead, the company average being 42.53; Third Company, 42.06; Eighth Company, 41.68, and Seventh Company, 41.55. The standings of the other companies are: Seventeenth, 41.49; Sixteenth, 41.37; Sixth, 41.36; Ninth 41.25; First, 41.08; Tenth, 40.90; Fourteenth, 40.61; Eleventh, 40.53; Twelfth, 40.46; Fifth, 40.34; Fifteenth, 40.29; Thirteenth, 40.22; Second, 40.01.

The New England Regiment companies number from one to nine and the New York from ten to seventeen.

Lieut. Col. Wolf has appointed a committee to arrange a military tournament and pentathlon for Saturday, Oct. 13. The committee is headed by Captain J. A. Baer, Camp Adjutant, as Chairman, and associated with him are the following students and reserve officers: Phillip Benkard, Thomas J. Lewis, Devereux Milburn, Garrett C. Pier, J. D. Nichols, E. Alexander Powell, Frank S. Smith, J. Watson Webb, George von L. Meyer, Jr., Colby Chester, and George A. Cornell. The names of the judges will be announced later.

The tournament will start at 1:30 P. M., and contestants must present themselves to the official starter, E. Howe Bennett, in front of the cavalry barracks at the south end of the parade grounds twenty minutes before the time scheduled for their respective events.

To the company or battery scoring the highest total points, a Grand Challenge Cup will be presented to be kept in that regiment of the national army to which the majority of the members of that company are assigned, to be a perpetual intercompany athletic trophy to stimulate interest in athletics in the national army. The company of the New England Division and the company of the New York Division scoring the highest total points will be the color companies of their respective regiments.

Plain Words on DIAMONDS

There is no blinking the fact that fine diamonds are scarce, nor the other fact that the American demand for such diamonds is as loud and as persistent as if there were no such thing as a war to interrupt the production.

But our connections with the cutters in Amsterdam hold fast in the face of all upheavals, so that even today we have assembled the largest exhibit of high-grade diamonds that ever sparkled in our store.

We imported them direct, we mount them in our own factory, where overhead charges are cut to an irreducible minimum.

We bought diamonds before prices went skyward, and thus are able to offer all customers a substantial saving. Such diamonds as we sell will, we firmly believe, be from 25 to 50 per cent. higher before long if present conditions continue, and who knows when they will end? Let us show you the diamonds and the plainly marked figures.

Nurse Hubbard Teaches Mothers How to Dress Babies

WITHOUT PINS OR BUTTONS

The health and comfort of Baby is the principal concern of Mothers. Nurse Hubbard (Trained Nurse) will advise and teach Mothers how to properly dress and care for the baby, (except medical advice,) thereby promoting its health and comfort.

One of the most perplexing problems of a young, inexperienced mother is the care of the baby. We will be glad to instruct mothers in every detail concerning the correct and most hygienic outfit for a young infant.

We cordially invite Mothers to visit our department and find out how to dress babies without pins or buttons. This method is recommended by leading medical authorities and hospitals, also approved by the National Consumers' League.

Vanta Baby Garments

tie with twistless tape which is so woven that it cannot kink, curl or ravel, no matter how many times it is washed. It does not rot and break like silk, but is strong, smooth and dainty.

There are no pins used with Vanta Baby Garments to prick or scratch the baby's tender flesh—no buttons to pull off or be broken in the wringer.

Vanta Baby Garments include Vests, Diapers, Knities, Gertrude Skirts, Abdominal Binders and "V" Bands. These garments are made of the best grade materials, including finest Australian wool, best combed peeler cotton, and pure silk—will not shrink if washed with ordinary care. Woolen garments should never be boiled. Vanta fabric is never stretched in finishing.

MILK GOING HIGHER, DAIRYMAN PREDICTS

League Organizer Tells Committee Business Must Be Profitable or Cease to Exist.

SHOWS RETAIL MARGINS

Says Questions Seemed Antagonistic and Based Upon Viewpoint of Dealers.

In predicting yesterday that milk prices would go higher in this city, George W. Bush of Monroe, N. Y., a graduate of Cornell University agricultural department and an organizer of the Dairymen's League, told the Mayor's Milk Committee that the dairy industry in this State must be made profitable or it would go the way of the State sheep raising industry. Throughout the examination the committee allowed I. Elkin Nathans, Secretary of the New York Milk Conference Board, the organization of the milk dealers, to hand up written questions for the witness to answer. This proceeding moved Mr. Bush to say he hoped the investigators would search as thoroughly into the profits of the dealers as they had into those of the farmers.

More figures as to the costs of milk production were furnished by Mr. Bush. He submitted a schedule showing the average cost of producing 100 pounds of milk to be $2.93. He also gave figures showing the variation in costs from month to month. The cost of production for October was 7 cents a quart and in November, he said, the farmers would have to charge $3.54 each 100 pounds to make a profit of 1.9 per cent. He explained that it cost five times as much to keep a cow in Winter as it did in Summer. "That means," he said, "that it costs $1.50 more to produce milk in Winter than in Summer."

"Then you mean that we have not begun to see the highest price of milk yet?" asked Dr. North, the Chairman.

"I should say that if the farmers do their duty you have not," replied the witness. "The highest prices have not been reached. They will be higher in December. The figures I have given show clearly that the profit is not in production. For instance, when the farmer last October was getting 4.46 cents a quart for his milk the dealer was getting 10 cents a quart. The difference had to be accounted for by the dealer."

He was asked how the cost of production could be lowered, and he replied: "By lowering the cost of grain, hay and labor."

The witness also submitted these tables of prices in cents per quart:

| | Wholesale. | Retail. | Dealer's Margin. |
|---|---|---|---|
| December, 1916 | 4.67 | 11 | 6.33 |
| July, 1917 | 4.46 | 11½ | 7.04 |
| August, 1917 | 6.42 | 13½ | 7.08 |
| October, 1917 | 6.59 | 14 | 7.41 |

The lowest wholesale price since October, 1915, Mr. Bush said, was 2.13 cents per quart, at which time the dealers were charging 9 cents. The highest prices since that date, he said, were 6.59 wholesale and 14 retail.

Dr. North wanted to know whether consumers had to pay for the inefficiency of farmers, and the witness replied that the figures he had compiled had nothing to do with the inefficient, for they were from efficiently managed dairy farms. Mr. Bush took the opportunity to point out to the committee that, though the cost of milk to the dealers was sometimes lowered, the dealers never lowered the price to the consumer, but charged the same from month to month.

"While I was on the stand it seemed to me that the questions put by Dr. North were for the purpose of embarrassing me rather than to get at facts," said Mr. Bush after he left the stand. "The attitude toward me seemed to be hostile instead of impartial, as Dr. North announced it would be when he opened the hearings. The questions seemed to savor of having their origin in the point of view of the dealers entirely. I hope that is not the case, and that when the dealers are put on the stand they will be submitted to just as close questioning as I was."

FOOD-SAVING CAMPAIGN ON.

Conservation Posters Sent to 28,000 Merchants in the State.

More than 25,000 sets of food conservation posters were sent out during the week by Major Michael Friedsam, Quartermaster General of the State and New York Retail Merchant Representative in the National Food Administration. He expects that before the end of this month every retail merchant in the State will have been supplied with these posters.

"The harmony in this work among the merchants is wonderful," said Major Friedsam. We have been working about a week now and already practically every merchant in this city is taking some part in telling the purchasing public of the necessity of food conservation. More than that, they are telling the public how to conserve both by their advice and the display of their wares.

"There is nothing unreasonable asked of the people. They are not told to deprive themselves of food. They are merely asked to conserve those foodstuffs that we must send our soldiers and our allies, and to use instead food which is just as good, just as palatable, but not so available for shipment or as adaptable for use in Europe. It is surprising what an enormous amount will be spared for our soldiers and friends when each individual in the country appreciates the necessity for saving just a little."

These are the commandments which Major Friedsam believes should be observed by every housewife in the country and impressed upon her servants: Be patriotic, sign your country's pledge cards and save the food; buy it with thought; cook it with care; use less wheat and meat; buy local foods; serve just enough; use what is left.

START CITY FOOD DRIVE.

Headquarters Where Women May Sign Conservation Pledge Cards.

Arthur Williams, Chairman of the Campaign Committee of the Food Administration that has undertaken the canvass to get the housewives of New York City to sign food conservation pledge cards, announced yesterday that the borough organizations have been completed and headquarters opened. The headquarters for Manhattan are at 124 East Fifteenth Street, and Mrs. R. Lavante Bigelow is the Chairman. Bronx headquarters are at 470 East 161st Street, Mrs. Steven B. Ayres, Chairman; Brooklyn headquarters, Brooklyn Eagle Building, Mrs. August Dreyer, Chairman; Queens at 64 Main Street, Mrs. John K. Robinson, Chairman; Richmond, Borough Hall Building, St. George, Staten Island, Mrs. W. O. Willcox, Chairman.

WOMAN EDUCATOR PRAISES GARY PLAN

CONDEMNS FOGY TEACHERS

Advises Parents to Study the New System and Learn Its Merits for Themselves.

Mrs. A. Rene-Margulies, Director of a number of private schools in the city, who conducts a Montessori school for children at her home, 678 West End Avenue, through the Committee on Education of the Mitchel campaign, has given a strong indorsement of the Gary School system.

"For fifteen years," she said, "I have been interested in educational movements. Much of this time was spent in directing schools for deaf mutes and for backward children. Later I was attracted to Dr. Montessori's methods for teaching normal children and at once became an enthusiastic advocate. When the so-called Gary system was introduced here I naturally investigated. I found that in its essential elements it is in line with the best educational thought of the day. It recognizes, for one thing, that a child's school life is not a thing apart, not a mere educational treadmill which must be operated as a sort of necessary evil in the life of the child.

"The school life should not be considered as an experience standing by itself, a matter of a few hours' daily grinding in this study and that. The life at school should be so modeled that it forms a part of the growth and development of the human unit. It should be a part of the whole. To turn a large number of children into a sort of educational hopper and expect to produce a uniformly satisfactory product by simply turning a crank according to rules, is not an educational process. True education likewise does not mean the mere cramming of knowledge into the head of the child. It means developing, as well, the character and body of the child. It means that the school life of the child is simply part of a great process, the process of life. It is a cycle in the development of the man and woman.

"For this reason the old-fashioned drillmaster style of teaching will no longer do. The teacher must be something more than an educational mechanic. The Gary idea broke through the old, befogged windows of tradition. It brought a ray of light which now, thanks to a heroic Mayor, is becoming a blaze of inspiration to those who know the potential power of the public school. There is opposition naturally. There always has been and always will be with every great advance of the human race. Some teachers oppose the new idea because they think they must discard much of what they have learned. It is the old Bourbon spirit that never forgets anything and never learns anything. They are enemies to progress, and they are selfish. Many of them, unfortunately, will not even take the trouble to investigate the new method. They meet reason with stubborn prejudice. They are not thinking of the children, of their country, of the race; only of themselves and their own petty comfort.

"I know that the Gary system here is but an adaptation, only a start. I know that it has been hampered in its test by many forces that should be most wholeheartedly for it. Many teachers, I have been told, have been little less than disloyal in their treatment of it. They determined, it is said, that it should not succeed and have covertly done what they could to bring about its downfall. These teachers and their sponsors in administrative circles, if this be true, should be ashamed of themselves. They have been false to their profession. Can it be wondered that many parents of children have in their ignorance opposed the new system, if the paid servants of the city, of the people, have been secretly moving to foster this very antagonism? The people do not always know. They have not the means nor the opportunities of knowing. They should have faith in those who do know, whose business it is to know. And when those who should know turn traitor, they not only betray those who depend on them, but they betray the precious little children, the innocent, the hope of the land.

"This is an educational matter. The more discussion there is about it, the better the people will understand. They, too, are going to school now. They will learn to know the good from what is old and useless. They will cast out the old. They will enthrone the new. Always it has been thus. You cannot turn back the hands of the clock. The world does move. The Gary idea must win."

ARMY OFFICER DIES IN AUTO ACCIDENT

RESCUERS COME TOO LATE

Party of Aviators Lift Car from Body When Friend's Efforts Fail—Victim Stationed at Camp Upton.

Frederick A. Foster, Jr., of Boston, a Harvard graduate and a Second Lieutenant stationed at Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I., was killed yesterday when an overturned automobile pinned him to the bottom of Cutting's Pond, on the estate of W. Bayard Cutting, at Oakdale, L. I. Charles Morgan, Jr., of Islip, L. I., Foster's companion and his chum for many years, who escaped injury in the accident, tried vainly to lift his heavy automobile off his friend's body, and then sought for help. When he finally halted another machine, filled with naval aviators, and they lifted up the automobile, Foster was dead.

The friendship of the two young men began at college and continued during their training at Plattsburg and after they were both sent to Camp Upton. Lieutenant Morgan invited his chum to his parents' home in Islip for dinner Friday evening. About midnight they started in Morgan's car to return to Camp Upton, thirty-five miles away. The road was wet and slippery from the rain. Morgan was driving. As he started to round a sharp curve in the road outside the Cutting estate the rear wheels skidded, crashed through a picket fence alongside the road, and plunged upside down into Cutting's Pond.

Lieutenant Morgan was carried into the pond by the machine, but he found himself free and able to scramble ashore unhurt. He searched unsuccessfully for his friend, and then, realizing that Foster must be under the car, gave all his strength to the task of righting the big machine. He was unable to do so, however, and then he ran up and down the road looking for help. He stopped the first car that passed, containing the aviators, but fifteen minutes had elapsed, and during that time Foster was drowned.

TO FILL SERVICE BOARD SOON

Governor's Nominations Expected to be Temporary.

It is expected that the two vacancies in the Public Service Commission made by the entrance of Henry W. Hodge and William Hayward into the army will be filled soon by Governor Whitman under conditions. Both Hodge and Hayward are highly thought of by the Governor, and it is understood that when the war is over they will be able to resume their work as Commissioners, unless their terms have expired in the meantime.

This will be made possible, it was said, by an agreement with the new appointees that they will resign at any time when the two soldiers desire to resume their $15,000-a-year jobs as Commissioners. Gossip yesterday was to the effect that F. J. H. Kracke, Commissioner of Plant and Structure, and leader of the Governor's Republican following in Kings, would be one of the new Commissioners, and that the other would be either James B. Walker, the present Secretary of the commission, or, if he should fail of election as District Attorney, William L. Ransom, the commission's present chief counsel.

CHARGES FALSEHOOD BY PEOPLE'S COUNCIL

American Alliance, Headed by Gompers, Denies Russians Insist on "No Indemnities."

That the campaign of the People's Council and other pacifists for a "no indemnity" peace, put forward as a peace condition of the Russian democracy, is nothing more or less than German propaganda, was the charge made yesterday by the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy, of which Samuel Gompers is the head. It was charged that the People's Council had been deliberately falsifying the position of the Russian democracy and the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates, because the Russians had never demanded a peace without indemnities.

The Alliance sent to Petrograd to learn the truth about the attitude of the Russian Government toward peace terms, and as a result a statement was prepared by Henry L. Slobod yesterday as follows:

"For months the so-called People's Council has told the American people that Russia stood for peace with 'no annexations and no indemnities.' For months the Socialist Party and members of other pacifist or pro-German organizations have done similarly. There is no such language in the Russian declaration and the statements given out by the so-called People's Council have been completely misleading.

"Here is the correct translation of the Russian declaration:

"'Without annexations and contributions, on the basis of self-determination of peoples.'

"The word 'indemnities' does not appear; there is no such word in the Russian language. Thus, the so-called People's Council has put in the mouth of the Russian Government and the Russian people a word that is not in their language.

"The word 'contributions' or 'tribute' as used in the Russian declaration means that after this war there must be no tribute levied, as was levied by Germany on France in 1870.

"This, the People's Council, as it calls itself, has imposed on the American people one of the clearest deceptions on record. It has put into the mouth of an allied Government and a democratic people words and intents that never existed and has sought to bring the American people to a false and traitorous position on the strength of false evidence.

"'Indemnities' and 'contributions' are two different things. 'Indemnities' mean the payment of damages for wrongs done, and Russia, with the rest of the civilized world, will insist that Germany pay damages for wrongs done. But, with the rest of the civilized world, she will not stand for a conqueror's enforced levy of 'contributions' for the mere purpose of satisfying a conqueror's lust.

"Almost as flagrant has been the so-called People's Council's statement that the Russian nation opposed annexations. The Russian nation opposes arbitrary annexations, in the sense that America opposed the same thing. Neither nation wants to gain territory, or wants any other nation to. But both nations—and all civilized nations—agree that there must be an adjustment that will permit of national life and expression for such people as the Poles, the Serbians and the Belgians.

"It is notable that the so-called People's Council's declaration had passed the watchful eye of a Russian before it was given to the public. Mr. Morris Hillquit had to approve the People's Council's declaration, if indeed he did not write it. Mr. Hillquit was born in Riza, Russia. Mr. Hillquit must be well aware of the deception practiced on the American people. He must know that the deception of the American people has been accomplished by a gross misrepresentation of the Russian people."

LA FOLLETTE WILL STILL OPPOSE WAR

Flood of Invective and Abuse.

"Six members of the Senate, and, as I recall, about fifty members of the House voted against the declaration of war," said Mr. La Follette, in beginning his speech. "Immediately there was let loose upon those Senators and Representatives a flood of invective and abuse from newspapers and individuals who had been clamoring for war, unequaled, I believe, in the history of civilized society.

"Since the declaration of war the triumphant war party has pursued those Senators and Representatives who voted against war with malicious falsehood and recklessly libelous attacks, going to the extreme limit of charging them with treason against their country.

"This campaign of libel and character assassination directed against the Members of Congress who opposed our entrance into the war has been continued down to the present hour, and I have upon my desk newspaper clippings, some of them libels against me alone, some directed as well against other Senators who voted against the declaration of war. One of these newspaper reports most widely circulated represents a Federal Judge as saying, in a charge to a Grand Jury, that certain distinguished Senators, among whom I have the honor to be included, 'should be stood up against a wall and given what they deserve'—implying, of course, that we should be shot. If this were a single or exceptional instance of lawless defamation, I should not trouble the Senate with a reference to it. But, Mr. President, it is not.

No Evidence to Support Accusations.

"In these newspaper clippings which I have here, and which I shall not trouble the Senate to read unless it is desired, I find other Senators, as well as myself, accused of the highest crimes of which any man can be guilty, treason and disloyalty, and, Sir, accused not only with no evidence to support the accusation, but without the suggestion that such evidence anywhere exists. It is not claimed that Senators who opposed the declaration of war have since that time acted with any concerted purpose either regarding war measures or any others. They have voted according to their individual opinion, have often been opposed to each other on bills which have come before the Senate since the declaration of war, and, according to my recollection, have never all voted together since that time upon any single proposition upon which the Senate has been divided.

"I am aware, Mr. President, that in pursuance of this general campaign of vilification and attempted intimidation, requests from various individuals and certain organizations have been submitted to the Senate for my expulsion from this body, and such requests have been referred to and considered by one of the committees of the Senate.

"If I alone had been made the victim of these attacks I should not take one moment of the Senate's time for their consideration, and I believe that other Senators who have been unjustly and unfairly assailed as I have been hold the same attitude upon this that I do. Neither the clamor of the mob nor the voice of power will ever turn me by the breadth of a hair from the course I mark out for myself, guided by such knowledge as I can obtain and controlled and directed by a solemn conviction of right and duty.

"But, Sir, it is not alone the members of Congress that the war party in this country has sought to intimidate. The mandate has gone forth to the sovereign people of this country that they must be silent while those things are being done by their Government which most vitally concern their well-being, their happiness, and their lives. Today and for weeks past honest and law-abiding citizens of this country are being terrorized and outraged in their rights by those sworn to uphold the laws and protect the rights of the people. I have in my possession numerous affidavits establishing the fact that people are being unlawfully arrested, thrown into jail, held incommunicado for days, only to be eventually discharged without ever having been taken into court, because they have committed no crime. Private residences are being invaded, loyal citizens of undoubted integrity and probity arrested, cross-examined, and the most sacred constitutional rights guaranteed to every American citizen are being continually violated.

To Throw Country in Terror.

"It appears to be the purpose of those conducting this campaign to throw the country into a state of terror, to coerce public opinion, to stifle criticism, and suppress discussion of the great issues involved in this war.

"I think all men recognize that in time of war the citizen must surrender some rights for the common good which he is entitled to enjoy in time of peace. But, Sir, the right to control their own Government according to constitutional forms is not one of the rights that the citizens of this country are called upon to surrender in time of war.

"More than all, the citizen in time of war must maintain his right of free speech. More than in times of peace it is necessary that the channels for free public discussion of Government policies shall be open and unclogged. I believe, Mr. President, that I am now touching upon the most important question in this country today—and that is the right of the citizens of this country to discuss in an orderly way frankly and publicly and without fear, from the platform and through their publications, every important phase of this war; its causes, the manner in which it should be conducted, and the terms upon which peace should be made.

"The belief which is becoming widespread in this land that this most fundamental right is being denied to the citizens of this country in fact the tremendous significance of which those in authority have not yet begun to appreciate. I am contending for the great fundamental right of the sovereign people of this country to make their voices heard and have that voice heeded upon the great questions arising out of this war, including not only how the war shall be prosecuted but the conditions upon which it may be terminated with a due regard for the rights and honor of this nation and the interest of humanity.

"I am contending for this right because the exercise of it is necessary to the welfare of the Government, to the successful conduct of this war, and to a peace which shall be enduring and for the best interest of this country when established. Suppose you succeed in stifling all discussion of the issues of this war, all discussion of the terms upon which it should be concluded, all discussion of the objects and purposes to be accomplished by it, and concede the demand of the war-mad press and war extremists that they monopolize the right of public utterance upon these questions unchallenged, what think you would be the consequences to this country not only during the war but after the war?

"I cite just one instance in the present European war. The Entente Allies assembled at 'the Paris conference' with the war feeling at white heat. They entered into a compact of commercial vengeance to be executed against the Central Powers after peace should be declared. I believe that no single act has done so much to solidify the resistance of the Central Powers and secure the determined support of their peoples as this one act of the Entente Allies. The people of the Central Powers reason, and reason not incorrectly, that if they are to face commercial slavery and starvation after the war they may as well die fighting in the war.

Senator La Follette quoted at length from Mexican war speeches of Lincoln, Clay, Webster, and Sumner in support of his defense of the right of a member of Congress to assail the policy of the Government and dwelt at length upon the constitutional duty of Congress, rather than the President, to proclaim the nation's purposes in taking up arms. Besides quoting at length from the American statesmen who opposed bitterly President Polk's policy in the Mexican war, the Wisconsin Senator gave extracts from speeches by Burke, Fox, Lord Chatham, and others in the British Parliament attacking Great Britain's war upon the American colonies. He said he did it to show that the principle of free speech was no new doctrine born of the Constitution of the United States.

"I say without fear of contradiction," said Senator La Follette, "that there has never been a time for more than a century and a half when the right of free speech and free press and the right of the people to peaceably assemble for public discussion has been so violated among English-speaking people as they are violated today throughout the United States. Today, in the land we have been wont to call the free United States, Governors, Mayors, policemen, and even the new-fledged soldier in his first khaki are preventing or breaking up peaceable meetings called to discuss the questions growing out of this war, and Judges and courts, with some notable exceptions, are failing to protect the citizens in their rights.

"Since the Constitution vests in Congress the supreme power to determine when and for what purpose the country will engage in war and the objects to attain which the war will be prosecuted," the Senator continued, "it seems certain to me to be an evasion of a solemn duty on the part of the Congress not to exercise that power at this critical time in the Nation's affairs. The Congress can no more avoid its responsibility in this matter than it can in any other. As the Nation's purposes in conducting this war are of supreme importance to the country, it is the supreme duty of Congress to exercise the function conferred upon it by the Constitution of guiding the foreign policy of the Nation in the present crisis.

"A minor duty may be evaded by Congress, a minor responsibility avoided without disaster resulting, but on this momentous question there can be no evasion, no shirking of duty of the Congress, without subverting our form of government. If our Constitution is to be changed so as to give the President the power to determine the purposes for which this nation will engage in war, and the conditions on which it will make peace, then let that change be made deliberately by an amendment to the Constitution, proposed and adopted in a constitutional manner.

"It would be bad enough if the Constitution clothed the President with any such power, but to exercise such power without constitutional authority cannot long be tolerated if even the forms of free government are to remain. All know that no amendment to the Constitution giving the President the powers suggested would be adopted by the people. We know that if such an amendment were to be proposed it would be overwhelmingly defeated. We know that the people would resist, and if necessary, sweep from power all those hands, any scheme to clothe the President with power to plunge this country into war, and then to continue the war as long as he desired.

Evils of One-Man Power.

"The universal conviction of those who yet believe in the rights of the people is that the first step toward the prevention of war and the establishment of peace, permanent peace, is to give the people who must bear the brunt of war's awful burden more to say about it. The masses will understand that it was the evil of a one-man power exercised in a half dozen nations through the malevolent influences of a system of secret diplomacy that plunged the helpless peoples of Europe into the awful war that has been raging with increasing fierceness and fury ever since it began, and that now threatens to engulf the world before it stops.

"No conviction is stronger with the people today than that there should be no future wars except in case of actual invasion, unless supported by a referendum, a plebiscite, by vote of ratification upon the declaration of war before it shall become effective.

"And because there is no clearness of understanding, no unity of opinion in this country, on the part of the people as to the conditions upon which we are prosecuting this war or what the specific objects are, upon the attainment of which the present Administration would be willing to conclude a peace, it front by starving the wives and babes at home, and woe be it that we have become partners in this awful business and are even cutting off food shipments from neutral countries in order to force them to help starve women and children of the country against whom we have declared war.

"The question is, Are we to sacrifice millions of our young men—the very promise of the land—and spend billions and more billions, and pile up the cost of living until we starve—not for a peace without victory, but for a peace, so far as we are yet advised, satisfactory to the Allies? Shall the fearfully overburdened people of this country continue to bear the brunt of a prolonged war for any objects not openly stated and defined?

"The answer, Sir, rests, in my judgment, with the Congress, whose duty it is to declare our specific purposes in the present war and to state the objects upon the attainment of which we will make peace."

In concluding his defense, Senator La Follette, stepping into the centre aisle and apparently appealing to the galleries, said:

Entrance Into War Confused.

"Congress, as well as the people of the United States, enters the war in great confusion of mind, and under feverish excitement. The President's leadership was followed unquestioningly in the faith that he had some big, unrevealed plan by which a peace that would exalt him before all the world would soon be revealed.

"Gradually, apparently, Congress and the country are beginning to perceive that we are in this terrific world conflict not only to share its awful death toll and its fearful tax burdens, not only to right wrongs, not only to aid the Allies, but perhaps to bear the brunt of the war.

"And so say, if we are to forestall the danger of being drawn into years of war, perhaps finally to maintain imperialism and exploitation, the people must unite in a campaign along constitutional lines for free discussion of the policy of the war and its conclusion on just basis.

"It is said by many persons for whose opinions I have profound respect and whose motives I know to be of the highest that 'we are in this war and must go through to the end.' That is true. But is it true that we must go through to the end to accomplish an undisclosed purpose or to reach an unknown goal?

"I believe that whatever there is of honest difference of opinion concerning this war arises precisely at this point. There is, and of course can be, no real difference of opinion concerning the duty of citizens to discharge to the last limit whatever obligation the war lays upon them.

"Our young men are being taken by the hundreds of thousands for the purpose of waging this war on the Continent of Europe, possibly Asia or Africa. Nothing must be left undone for their protection. They must have the best ammunition and equipment that money can buy. They must have the best training and the best officers. The dependents and relatives they leave at home must be provided for, not meagerly, but generously.

"Shall we ask the people of the country to shut their eyes and take the entire war program on faith? There are no doubt many honest and well-meaning persons who are willing to answer that question in the affirmative, rather than risk a free discussion of the issues of the war. With that position I do not, I cannot, agree. Have the people no intelligent contribution to make to the solution of the problem of this war? I believe that they have, and that in this matter, as in so many others, they are wiser than their leaders, and that, if left free to discuss the issues of the war, they will find the correct settlement of these ideas.

"But it is said that Germany will fight with greater determination if her people believe that we are not in perfect agreement. That is the same worn-out pretext which has been made for three years to keep the plain people of Europe engaged in killing each other. And, Sir, as applied to this country, at least, it is a pretext, with nothing to support it.

"The way to paralyze the German arm, to weaken the German military force, in my opinion, is for the declare our objects in this war and show the German people by that declaration that we are not seeking to dictate a form of government or render more secure England's domination of the seas.

"A declaration of our purpose in this war, so far from strengthening our enemy, I believe, would immeasurably weaken her, for it would no longer be possible to misrepresent our purpose to the German people. Such a course on our part, so far from endangering the life of a single one of our boys, I believe, would result in saving the lives of hundreds of thousands of them by bringing about an earlier and more lasting peace by intelligent negotiation, instead of securing peace by the complete exhaustion of one or the other of the belligerents.

Senator Kellogg of Minnesota, who presented the first resolution of Minnesota organizations asking for La Follette's expulsion because of his St. Paul speech, took the floor to reply. He accused Mr. La Follette of misstating facts in the St. Paul speech and denied that this country went to war to secure Americans the right to travel on munition-laden ships or to protect loans made by J. P. Morgan & Co. to foreign Governments.

"I am as jealous of the right of free speech as any member of this body," Senator Kellogg said, "but this is a question of erroneous statement of facts rather than of free speech. I have no right or wish to criticise any man who voted against this nation going to war, although I may disagree with him; but we are at war, and I believe men of this body, men of influence, should not make statements tending to aid and encourage the enemy and to cast dishonor and discredit upon this nation.

"Imagine the circulation in the German Empire of those statements reflecting discredit upon our prosecution of the war and sustaining the justice of the cause of the German Empire! Could these people be blamed for believing in a cause, however lacking in justice and right, if these are the reasons which led us into this great conflict and sustain us through its trying ordeal?

"Whatever may be said as to the original cause of the war between Germany and the Allies, this nation rests upon solid grounds, backed by international law, by the dictates of humanity and the instincts of self-preservation."

The country, Senator Kellogg declared, owes it to the Allies and to history to place its disapproval before the world of the "slanderous accusation" made by Senator La Follette in his St. Paul speech. He denied the statement attributed to Mr. La Follette that President Wilson had been warned by Secretary Bryan before the Lusitania sailed that 6,000,000 rounds of ammunition, besides explosives, were on board, and that the passengers were sailing in violation of the statutes of this country.

Standing across the aisle from Mr. La Follette, Senator Robinson delivered the most caustic speech of the day, denouncing the accused Senator as un-American and advising him to resign and seek a seat in the German Bundesrat. Senator La Follette sat apparently unmoved under this denunciation.

"The Senator from Wisconsin," said Senator Robinson, "seems to me strangely inconsistent in insisting upon his right under the constitutional guarantee of free speech to declare in substance that this Government has entered upon war for no just cause, and to assail the Executive Department of the Government for its manner of conducting this conflict, to assail the legislative branch of the Government for its failure to perform its alleged duty, and even to attack the courts of the United States for their failure to protect the citizens of this country in the enjoyment of their constitutional rights.

"If it is the right of a Senator of the United States to speak freely upon topics of this character, why should the Senator from Wisconsin or any other Senator entertaining those views denounce newspaper men and other citizens of this country who, in the exercise of the same right of free thought and free speech, have declared that the Senator ought to abandon his seat in the United States Senate and seek membership in the German Bundesrat?

Not One Word for the Flag.

"It is a singular thing to me, Senators, that a Senator of the United States should consume two and a half or three hours in denouncing his Government and have not one word for that flag, not one word to utter for the Commander in Chief of the armies of the United States, not one word to express encouragement of the men who have already been sent to the far-stretched battlefronts of Europe, and who are now upholding with their lives the honor, the dignity, the safety of this great nation. If it is a privilege of free speech for Senators to test the patience of their colleagues and the patience of the citizens of this nation, if is equally a right of other citizens in the exercise of free speech to criticise the conduct of Senators.

"If I understand the sentiments which the Senator from Wisconsin has expressed in his presence this morning I would not wait for the United States Senate to pass upon the question of my loyalty or disloyalty. I would seek the companionship of those whom my discussions and my sentiments were calculated to support.

"The Senator from Wisconsin is charged with saying in his St. Paul address that the United States went to war for the purpose of vindicating the right of venturesome citizens to ride on passenger vessels transporting ammunition. I want to know from Senators now assembled whether they believe that is a frank exercise of the right of free speech. The Senator from Wisconsin is one of the best-informed men in the Senate. If he believes that the United States is involved in this conflict for that cause, or if he believes that that is the principal cause which brought the United States into this conflict, his attitude is justified; but where does he get his information?

"The whole speech of the Senator from Wisconsin is based upon the erroneous assumption that the United States declared war against Germany and forced war on her. We did no such thing. The United States recognized a state of war which already had been existing between the United States and Germany for many months, for some years, and that state of war was brought about by the brutal, lawless disregard by the German Government of the rights of American citizens and of the sovereignty of this great nation, and a Senator who can find it in his heart to say here or elsewhere that the United States went to war for a trivial cause is, to say the least, lacking in information which a Senator should possess.

"I was astounded when the Senator from Wisconsin said that Government agencies, acting under the authority of the Executive, were invading the private homes of citizens, were arresting and confining innocent and loyal American citizens in jail, without warrant and without cause, violating every private and sacred right of the people. While I cannot find language within the rules of the Senate to appropriately characterize the sentiments uttered on this floor by the Senator from Wisconsin, if I entertained those sentiments I would not only think I had the right to retain a seat on the floor of the United States Senate. I would apply to the Kaiser for a seat in the Bundesrat.

"The Senator from Wisconsin has characterized as diabolical the acts of the Executive Department of this Government in making investigations of those who were suspected of being disloyal to the country. He has said that every private right guaranteed to the citizen by the Constitution is being invaded by the agents of the Government of the United States. The expenditure of millions of dollars by the German Government in the United States, the hiring of countless agents, the placing throughout this land of numerous spies, has made necessary activity by the Department of Justice and other agencies of this Government in order to protect our country and our people against the iniquitous schemes and devices of those German hirelings.

Would Execute Every Spy.

"It may be true that in some instances unnecessary investigations have been made, but I suspect that if the Senator from Wisconsin would produce his evidence here, those who made the affidavits to which he has referred in condemnation of his Government are German sympathizers, and some of them German spies.

"Let the Senator from Wisconsin and others be not deceived. The great majority of the American people are loyal—loyal to that flag, loyal to the men in the trenches and in the camps, loyal to the President of the United States in every effort to conduct this war to a successful termination; and neither slackers, traitors, nor spies can prevent the consummation of that act. If I had my way about it, every spy proven guilty would be executed and every German hireling in the United States would be placed in jail.

"If the Senator from Wisconsin had his will, if the Kaiser had his will, liberty would become a memory, honor a tradition. We pray for peace. We will make peace. When? When the army of the Kaiser is routed back to Berlin, when from the fields and homes of France arises the shout of victory, when bleeding Belgium begins to arise from her desolation and cries 'Glory! Liberty!' through the combined forces of civilization and liberty, through the power and wrath of the American people.

"God pity the man who comes in the way of that wrath! God have mercy on the man who would paralyze the arm of American power in this great conflict, because the American people will show him no mercy!

"The Kaiser and the Senator from Wisconsin talking about wanting no war of conquest, wanting to guarantee to the United States and our allies that, whatever the result, we will neither profit by nor make recompense and at the same time leaving Germany to enjoy the fruits of her victory, if she can obtain them. That may be free speech, but no Senator can say it, for it does not utter it, but it is not patriotic Americanism."

With the close of the session the Senators quickly dispersed. As Senator La Follette was leaving, Senator Vardaman of Mississippi hurried to his side and grasped his hand. This was the only sign of sympathy he received.

RESERVE BANKS HOLD GOLD RESOURCES

Larger Payments for Additional Investments Are Made in Federal Reserve Notes.

BIG GAIN IN DEPOSITS

This Follows Admission of Several Banks and Trust Companies to the System.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Large gains in gold reserve and aggregate deposits, together with considerable discount and open market operations for the week, are indicated in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly bank statement. All the banks except Chicago and Kansas City report substantial additions to their gold reserves, the total shown, $1,438,500,000, being about $30,000,000 larger than the week before.

Payments for additional investments, especially large at the New York, Cleveland, Chicago, and San Francisco banks, were made in part by Federal Reserve notes, issued largely against paper discounted and purchased during the week. It is in this manner that the banks were able to husband their gold resources, notwithstanding an increase of $75,980,000 in total investments. Another factor which accounts for the gain in reserve is a large increase during the week in Government and bank deposits, mainly at the New York, Atlanta, and San Francisco banks, following the admission to the system of several State banks and trust companies, and the substantial increases of nonmember banks' clearing balances with the New York and San Francisco banks.

Advances paid during the week to the Allies by the New York Reserve Bank totaled $114,700,000. Of the total, $50,000,000 went to Great Britain, $40,000,000 to Italy, $22,200,000 to Russia and $2,500,000 to Belgium. These operations, as on former occasions, called for the withdrawal of Government funds from local depository institutions, as well as for substantial transfers to New York on Government account through the gold settlement fund.

Discounted paper on hand shows a gain of $31,700,000, the New York bank alone reporting an increase of $28,200,000 under this head. Almost the entire net gain is represented by member banks' collateral notes, which aggregate at present about $153,200,000, as against $122,920,000 the week before. Of the total $84,700,000 is represented by notes secured by Liberty bonds or United States certificates of indebtedness.

Acceptances on hand show an increase of about $10,000,000, the New York bank reporting large purchases for its own account and the Boston bank. The banks also report large additions to their holdings of United States certificates of indebtedness. Aggregate earning assets stand now at $580,800,000, compared with $504,900,000 the week before and $552,600,000 the Friday following payment of first installment of the first Liberty Loan, and constitute 952 per cent. of the banks' paid-in capital, as against 861 per cent. the week before. Of the total, 45.7 per cent. is represented by discounts, 32.1 per cent. by acceptances, and 22.2 per cent. by United States securities.

Admission to membership of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York with a combined capital and surplus of $50,000,000, the Canal Bank and Trust Company and the Metropolitan Bank, both of New Orleans, and the Spokane and Eastern Trust Company of Spokane, Wash. account for most of the increase in paid-in capital which for the first time is shown to exceed $90,000,000.

Government deposits increased about $15,000,000, New York, Cleveland, Atlanta and Dallas reporting the largest increases. The largest gain in reserve deposits is reported by the San Francisco bank and its three branches at Portland, Ore., and Seattle and Spokane, Wash. An increase of $26,000,000 is shown in the total of nonmembers clearing balances, all the local trust companies and State banks, except one, now settling their clearing balances through the New York Reserve Bank.

The week witnessed a further addition to the amount of Federal reserve notes outstanding, the total $797,630,000 being $40,600,000 in excess of the corresponding total on Sept. 28. Against the total issued the agents hold at present $560,111,000 of gold and $248,912,000 of paper. The banks increased the amount of paper pledged with the agents against notes by $44,000,000 with the result that the note reserve shows a decline from 81.1 to 76.9 per cent. Federal reserve notes in actual circulation total $740,916,000, or $40,704,000 more than the week before.

The weekly statement of the resources and liabilities of each of the twelve banks at the close of business on Oct. 5 follows:

STANDARD OIL LOSES APPEAL IN TAX CASE

Court Decides More Than 40 Per Cent. of Its Capital Is Invested Out of the State.

ONE JUSTICE DISSENTS

Corporation Sued to Recover $60,000 Franchise Tax Paid to the State.

Litigation begun by the Standard Oil Company to recover a franchise tax of $60,000 imposed by the State Tax Commission, on the ground that it was exempt under the law because it had more than 40 per cent. of its capital stock invested in this State, has failed. A decision by the Appellate Division of the Third Department affirms the decision of the commission. The coporation, the opinion says, has an authorized capital stock of $75,000,000, all of which is outstanding. During the year ended Oct. 31, 1915, the company paid 8 per cent. dividends upon this stock.

In the following May, after an investigation, the commission decided that the company did not have 40 per cent. of its capital stock employed in manufacturing within the State, and thereupon fixed the tax. The company filed with the commission various statements which questioned the accuracy of the tax. These statements showed that the total gross assets of the company during 1915, after allowing for depreciation, were $104,348,794.75. Of this amount $41,797,650.13 was employed within the State and $62,551,144.62 elsewhere. Of the amount employed within the State $3,710,991.93 represented the average amount employed in marketing goods manufactured by others than the company. In explaining the purpose of exempting corporations from the tax which employ more than 40 per cent. of their capital within the State, the opinion says:

"The clear purpose of requiring that at least 40 per cent. of the capital stock of a corporation should be invested in property in this State and used by the corporation in its manufacturing business here in order that the corporation might obtain exemption from the taxation of its franchise, was to encourage the investment of an aditional proportion of its assets, and incidentally the employment of additional labor in this State."

The opinion said that a fair and satisfactory method in fixing liability for the franchise tax could only be obtained by construing the words "capital stock" to mean the property or assets of the corporation, and that the amount paid used in marketing goods manufactured by others was properly deducted from the amount used within the State. This left but $38,080,658.18 as the average amount employed in the State during the year in question, which the opinion declared was only about 36½ per cent. of the company's total assets. Therefore the tax was properly imposed.

Justice Woodward, in a dissenting opinion, said that the tax was levied not against property but for the privilege of exercising the franchise, and is based upon the capital stock of the company and its earning capacity. He said that the capital actually employed was a different thing from the "issued capital stock." Then the dissenting opinion said:

"The relator has a capital stock of $75,000,000, and 40 per cent of that amount is $30,000,000. It is necessary, if it is to be relieved of the taxation imposed, that it should show that it has $30,000,000 invested in property in this State and that it uses this investment in conducting its manufacturing business within the State. If it has done this it is entitled to exemption from the tax imposed.

"While the return before us does not clearly bring out the exact amount of the capital stock invested within the State we think it may be fairly inferred that more than 40 per cent. of the same is thus invested and used."

OPPOSE JERSEY STATE ROAD

Cities in Northern Part Say They Will Get Only Small Appropriations.

Declaring the $15,000,000 State Road Improvement act unconstitutional, counsel for a number of northern New Jersey municipalities yesterday applied to Chief Justice Gummere of the State Supreme Court for a writ to review the action of the Legislature in passing the measure.

Opposition to the law in the cities represented at the hearing has arisen because, it is alleged, the northern part of the State will receive very little of the huge appropriation, most of it going to southern and seacoast sections.

George L. Record, counsel for the municipalities, said the act was unconstitutional because it did not include railroad property.

Says Banker Broke Promise to Wed.

G. Marcy Lamb, who is associated with a Wall Street banking firm, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday for $100,000 damages by Miss Aurelia de Acosta for breach of promise. The plaintiff alleges that Lamb promised to marry her on March 10 last, but has since refused to carry out the promise. Counsel for Miss de Acosta said yesterday that when the case is tried, he will put in evidence a written agreement of marriage between the parties, drawn up by an attorney. The papers were served on the defendant at Binghamton.

ADOPT FREIGHT MACHINES.

Labor Scarcity Brings New Appliances Into Use at Big Stations.

Scarcity of labor and increasing demands for higher wages are forcing the railroads to adopt mechanical appliances for the handling of freight in New York. It is another problem brought to an acute stage by the war, and while the solution of it has but begun, already enough has been accomplished to indicate a revolution in the manner of moving freight in the larger stations in the country, and a resultant permanent economy not only in money but in time.

Electric tractors drawing from four to eight trailers behind them are being substituted for the hand truck and man operator. Where eight trailers are attached two men, one for the tractor and one for trailer, take the place of eight men. Platforms are being changed in order that the freight from the dray or truck may be loaded direct into the trailer, and by it transferred without change to the railroad car. A man and hand truck moves at the rate of one mile an hour, a tractor with trailers loaded at four miles an hour, so that when the new system is well worked out the movement of "l. c. l." freight, less than carload, over station platforms will relieve a congestion that produced many difficulties. It is estimated, too, that results will finally show a reduction of 50 per cent. in the cost of handling this kind of freight.

Experiments to work out a system to fit varying local conditions are now being made in New York by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Lackawanna, the New York Central, and the New Haven. The Pennsylvania first tackled the problem, at Piers 3, 4, and 5, North River, and is farther advanced toward a complete system than any other railroad. All the freight received there now is handled by tractors and trailers.

Fights for Fulton Ferry Line.

George F. Morgan, son of the late Enoch Morgan, and who owns eleven of the 9,000 shares of the stock of the Bleecker Street & Fulton Ferry Railroad Company, has asked the Public Service Commission, through his counsel, William D. Guthrie, not to grant the application of the New York Railways Company for permission to abandon operation of the line. Mr. Morgan complained that if the application was granted the original company would own only the disjointed and inoperable segments of a road. The commission will hear testimony in the matter on Tuesday.

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

East Butte Makes New Record with September Output.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Cerro de Pasco's September production was 7,041,000 pounds of copper, against 6,036,000 in August, and 6,282,000 pounds in July. East Butte reports its September copper production at 2,203,300 pounds, the largest total for any month in the property's history. The company resumed smelter operations Aug. 11, after a suspension of a month and a half, the curtailed output for August being 1,673,360 pounds.

The Magma Copper Company has completed cross cutting through the ore body recently discovered.

The production of the Lake Superior Copper Mines in September is estimated at 18,000,000 pounds.

In September the Anaconda Copper Mining Company turned out 2,800,000 pounds of copper, against 11,175,000 pounds in August, 12,400,000 in July and 20,400,000 in June. Last month the company was hampered by a labor struggle. The Miami Copper Company reports for September an output of 1,900,000 pounds of copper, against only 150,000 pounds in August, and 90,000 in July, when labor troubles intervened seriously.

LA FOLLETTE AGAIN UNDER PARTY FIRE

APPEALS TO THE SENATE

Nominations of McCall and Coolidge Confirmed and Party Pledged to Support of Government.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 6.—Passing State issues as among the things that can wait a more favorable time, and emphasizing support of the National Administration in the conduct of the war, the Republican State Convention, which confirmed the renomination of Governor S. W. McCall and Lieut. Gov. Calvin Coolidge here today, resolved itself largely into a patriotic demonstration. Features of the convention were a patriotic address by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and the adoption of a resolution censuring Senator Robert M. La Follette for his anti-war attitude. The La Follette resolution, which came late in the convention, was not on the program. Something of the kind was favored by some members of the Committee on Resolutions in its preliminary work, but in its platform report the committee substituted a more general statement that "we will support our Senators and Representatives in any effort they may make to drive out of Congress any who by word or act give aid and comfort to the enemy."

The resolution, referring to La Follette was introduced by Lee M. Friedman of Boston. Lewis D. Parkhurst of Boston, President of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, in moving its adoption, referred to La Follette in strong terms that brought applause. The resolution was adopted without a dissenting vote.

The La Follette resolution reads as follows:

We, Republicans of Massachusetts, in annual convention assembled, as loyal fellow-countrymen, forgetting party affiliations, hereby express our condemnation and record our censure of Robert M. La Follette as a Senator of the United States and as an individual for his attitude and public utterances in the matter of the world's war as of comfort to the common enemy, the Imperial German Government, and of so marked disloyalty to his country, the United States of America.

Be it Resolved, That we direct the clerk of this convention to transmit a copy of these resolutions to the Senate of the United States.

Senator Lodge spoke briefly, but made a stirring plea for support of the Administration's war policy, which he said was the only issue before the country today. Peace talk now, he said, was a mark of hostility to the country. What is wanted is a peace of justice and righteousness, which is impossible now, the Senator said.

Senator John W. Weeks, permanent Chairman of the convention, said:

"The course the Republican Party should follow is clear. It should support the Administration in every action which will result in a vigorous and successful prosecution of the war. It should resist every attempt to change the principles on which our Government was founded, and especially replacing representative government with one based on State socialism. The one great purpose we all have at heart is to win this war, and to that everything else should be subordinated."

Senator Weeks urged the necessity of Congressional co-operation in keeping down extravagance in war financing through the appointment of a Congressional Committee on Expenditures.

Governor McCall said that the war must "give pause to the strife of politics" and that "the only thing for every American to do is to stand by."

"I take no risk," he continued, "in saying that your are to a man in favor of such a prosecution of the war as shall dethrone barbaric force and set up the rule of reason among the nations, and I believe also I take no risk in saying that you will put the support of our country in this crisis far above party."

The Governor declared that it was of first importance that the affairs of the State should be administered with the utmost economy.

"Let us strive," he said, "to maintain unimpaired the whole energy of our social and industrial life so that the blighting effect of war in the deterioration of institutions and the drying-up of the springs of civilization may not be seen."

Lieutenant Governor Coolidge said: "Our party can maintain its traditional attitude. Our country is at war. We shall support her. There is no question here for party consideration. It is the duty of every citizen to support the President. There is only one issue before the State and Nation, and that is the attainment of an honorable and lasting peace by the only means within our grasp—a vigorous and relentless prosecution of the war."

DEMOCRATS CHEER HALE.

Bay State Progressive Also Greeted as Candidate by Wilson.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—Matthew Hale, a leader of the Progressives, was welcomed with cheers at the Democratic State Convention today as the candidate for Lieutenant Governor. The greeting to Mr. Hale came in the midst of introductions of candidates and was preceded by the reading of a letter from President Wilson in which he indorsed the Progressive leader's appearance on the Democratic ticket. The letter was in reply to one from Mr. Hale telling of the pleasure of Massachusetts Progressives of the progress of the Soldiers' Insurance bill. In thanking him for this President Wilson added:

"May I not take advantage of this opportunity to congratulate you upon the public spirit you have shown in accepting the nomination for Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts, tendered you by the Democrats of that State? This action on your part is another evidence of your devotion to the cause of progressive principles in government which all forward-looking men believe to be so vital to the welfare of the nation."

Determination to win the war and to put aside party considerations in the interest of country in these critical times was voiced in nearly every utterance.

The platform—declared for liberal principles and called upon liberals to join with the party "as an amalgamation for common political action."

WAR BOOK FUND FAR SHORT.

Committee Finds Cities Less Generous Than Small Communities.

An accounting of receipts by the Greater New York Library War Council was announced yesterday by James Speyer, Chairman of the Financial Committee. It shows that New York has fallen far below $250,000, the goal set. Only a little more than one-half this sum has thus far been contributed in the city.

It has been found in the campaign for $1,000,000 for books for soldiers and sailors that the country districts and small towns have reached or exceeded the amounts set for them, while the larger cities have failed.

It is particularly desired that the general public shall understand that a $1.00 subscription will provide a book and the care of that book for a year. Subscriptions may be sent to Sam A. Lewisohn, Treasurer, 61 Broadway.

PLANS FOR WATER PAGEANT.

Celebration of Catskill Aqueduct Opening to be Held in Park.

The pageant "The Good Gift of Water," written by Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall for the celebration of the completion of the Catskill waterway, will be given on the Sheep Meadow in Central Park on Friday afternoon by the children of the park playgrounds, public schools, Boy Scouts of America, American Junior Naval and Marine Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, New York Council of Girl Scouts, students of City College, City History Club, Foreign Born Citizens League, and numerous others under the direction of William J. Lee, Supervisor of Recreation and Chairman of the Pageant Committee, assisted by Miss Mary E. McKenna and John J. McCormack.

The ground plan, scenic and stage effects are being built by William F. Hamilton. They consist of a native Indian village, a giant grotto, where the "Sun God" will preside, and the cascade, where the water will flow in response to the prayers of the Indians. The modern City of New York will be shown, the five boroughs being represented by five young women. The pageant stage is 300 feet square and will be elaborately decorated.

An exhibition of early views, manuscripts, and other material connected with the history of pure water in New York City was opened yesterday in the art gallery of the New York Historical Society, Central Park West and Seventy-sixth Street. The exhibition is the Historical Society's contribution to the Catskill water celebration and the seventy-fifth anniversary of the use of Croton water by the residents of Manhattan Island.

One of the most valuable items is the manuscript history of the New York waterworks, in three volumes, by Stephen Allen, a former Mayor of the city, and who was Chairman of the Water Commission which provided for the Croton system. How the inhabitants obtained water in early days is depicted in several quaint views, one showing the old-time water cart in Bowling Green delivering water from a huge barrel. Another shows the famous Collect Pond, the site of the Criminal Court Building, with the celebrated Tea Water Pump, near the corner of the Bowery and Roosevelt Street.

"No High Priced Street Floor Rent to Pay"

A. Morton Oppenheim

OPPOSITE WALDORF HOTEL

UPSTAIRS AT 11 W. 34th St. (1st new) 2nd & 3rd FLOORS ELEVATOR SERVICE

"You Get the Best Your Money Can Buy"

Observations Made as Result of Adding Another Floor to Meet the Needs of Our Growing Business

ONE learns by experience if he keeps an open mind.

We have learned many things in our business career, but one very important thing stands out above all the rest, and that is we know now that it was unnecessary for us to pay a high rent for a street floor merely to make an attractive display of merchandise.

oooooooooooo

AREN'T you willing to take the elevator service to our sales floors and look over an assortment of apparel that is quite as diversified and quite as attractive as any other women's apparel assortment in any other store? Is it not worth the effort to get out of the beaten path if by so doing you can get what you want for less money than you ordinarily pay? Come in and see us and verify these statements that we are making. We are paying for three floors—good sized floors too—each floor big enough as a matter of fact for a store by itself and would be considered a big store if on the street floor, and yet we pay a rental of these three floors which is less than one-fourth of the rental we would have to pay for a street floor.

WE pay cash for our merchandise, thus getting the advantages of all discounts, and we add a fair profit. For instance, if we pay $19.50 net for a suit, we will sell it for $25—not $35.00 or $40.00, as is the case in many stores, which have that street floor expense. Their percentage of profit on the actual cost of maintaining a store plus the cost of the merchandise itself is not much greater than ours, but the women folks have to pay for practically the same garment a very much higher price. The consumer has to pay the merchant's profit and his overhead expense no matter where he is located. That is something the buyer must always remember.

WE are here among all the giants of trade, in the greatest retail business section in the world. There is only one difference between the giants of trade all around us and ourselves, and that is that they have more space and can make more showing than we can. The same facilities are open to us as to them. We can get manufacturers to make up exclusive models for us the same as they can. We believe we have as much intelligence as to what to select as they have. We believe that we understand the needs of the women of New York.

WE have learned that the majority of the women in New York and vicinity will come upstairs to buy their clothes just as readily as they will walk into a store on the street floor, provided they feel confident that they can get what they want at reasonable prices. They have themselves learned that they are frequently asked to pay a good price for a label. We know that in some cases a label means more to some women than the garment itself, and we also know that these women—so long as they feel that way—may not buy from us, but they should call and see our splendid stock of merchandise.

WE know perfectly well that we cannot hope to get every woman to buy from us, but we do know that there are enough sensible, practical women living hereabouts who want to make their dollars go as far as possible in purchasing apparel that is stylish, durable, and economical, and we know that our stock of women's apparel will give our customers as much satisfaction and will make them look as well-dressed as the customers of any other store in the city of New York.

FELSCH'S HOME RUN AND CICOTTE'S PITCHING DEFEAT GIANTS IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES BY 2 TO 1

HOME-RUN SMASH BEATS GIANTS, 2-1

after the contest was over. They were not tears of woe.

Cicotte Puzzles Giants.

Chicago came close to playing a perfect game of baseball. The Giants made no serious mistakes, but McGraw and the players feel they did not play their best game.

The best of McGraw's hitters, sturdy batsmen who have been smashing their way through all kinds of pitching, bowed to the charm of Cicotte's delivery. They failed at critical times to diagnose the tearing little hop which the ball takes when it comes from Cicotte's skillful hand. They hit under the ball. They swung at it mightily, but it shot into the air like water from a geyser, only to tumble into some White Sox player's mitt. The Giants had no doubt after the game that Cicotte is as great a pitcher as has been heralded.

While Chicago fans were singing the praises of Cicotte and Happy Felsch, they did not overlook Joe Jackson, a player who was expected to do much with his bat, but failed to get a hit. It was as a fielder and not a batsman that Jackson took his place among the players whose names will live in world's series.

In the seventh inning McMullin had thrown out Davey Robertson at first, after making a pretty stop of the latter's bounder, and Walter Holke raised the Giants' hopes by smacking a resounding single to right. Lew McCarty stepped to the bat, and the Sox players spread out, remembering the Giant catcher's three-bagger earlier in the game. McCarty caught hold of one of Cicotte's curves and smashed a low, hard liner to left field.

Jackson Arises to Occasion.

It looked as if it would drop too short for Jackson to reach, but Shoeless Joe ran as he had never run before. Holke, at first base, started to race toward second. On came Jackson as the ball settled closer and closer to the ground. Then he dived headlong toward the spot where he thought the ball would drop. As he tumbled forward, the ball fell into his outstretched hands. Over rolled Jackson in a somersault, but he bobbed up on his feet again and the ball was firmly clutched in his grasp.

It was a remarkable catch and it saved the game for the Sox, as the drive would have rolled to the fence if Jackson had missed his desperate chance and Holke would easily have crossed the plate with the tying run.

The margin of the White Sox victory was not so great as to spread any discouragement in the New York camp. The hits were equal, each team getting seven safe drives. It was Felsch's home run bang which ruined the effect of all the good pitching of Sallee, who, save for that one calamity, pitched just as well as Cicotte.

There were times when it seemed as if the White Sox team play lacked harmony, but they overcame these rough spots in a way which proved that Clarence Rowland has welded together a team of great power and skill.

White Sox fans gasped with fear in the sixth inning when Heinie Zimmerman hoisted a high fly along the base line between first and second. Both Eddie Collins and Gandil got under the ball, and although Collins yelled that he would take the ball, Gandil crowded right in and made the catch because his arms reached higher. A serious collision was avoided only by the fraction of an inch.

Giants' Drive Missing.

Mechanically, the Giants played a good game of ball, but that tearing, relentless drive which has won so many games was missing. At times it seemed as if it were unwise to stick to the hit-and-run system of play. McGraw firmly believes in winning games by smashing out the ball, and is confident that it will win in the end over the safe sacrifice game followed by Rowland's men.

McGraw's stars failed today. Herzog, Zimmerman, and Kauff, from whom so much was expected, did nothing to strike terror into the hearts of the American Leaguers. Zimmerman had to play under the handicap of continual unsportsmanlike jeering and booing from the Chicago fans. They do not like Heinie here, and they kept at him all the time, hoping to rattle him. Zimmerman could not hit Cicotte's floating curves and popped the ball harmlessly in the air. In the seventh inning Chick Gandil drove a grounder through Heinie's feet, which went for a hit, but it was a ball which the Giant third basement would have fielded ordinarily.

Kauff was playing his first world's series game and he was overanxious. Another thing was that Benny's father, from Middletown, Oh'o, was watching his boy play with the big ones for the first time, and little Benjamin tried too hard to make his dad proud of him.

The first Chicago run trickled across the plate as the result of Benny's overanxiety. In the third inning Ray Schalk, the first of the Sox to face Sallee, peppered a hot grounder to Zimmerman. Heinie gobbled it out of the dirt with one hand and threw the runner out at first. Cicotte, who is a dangerous batsman, as well as a dangerous pitcher, soaked a single through the box to center field, and Shano Collins, making his second drive of the game, sent the ball to right. Cicotte romping merrily toward third base. Davy Robertson stopped Collins's single and made a gorgeous throw to Zimmerman, who had the ball in time to cut Cicotte down as he was sliding into the bag. Collins took advantage of this excitement at third and romped to second.

Kauff Makes Blunder.

McMullin then jammed a short liner to centre field. Kauff made a desperate effort to pick the ball off the grass, but his effort resulted in the ball hopping through him and rolling far into centre field, while John Collins scored with the Sox's first run and McMullin landed on second base. If Benny had been content to let McMullin get a single he undoubtedly could have thwarted Collins's attempt to score by one of his rifle ball throws to the plate.

Benny was trying too hard to please dad and to make a catch which would send his name ringing throughout the baseball world. That play brought despair to the Giant rooters, who were so completely overshadowed in the grand stand. But this was nothing to their sensations in the next inning when Felsch put the game on ice with his terrific homer.

The lone Giant run came in the fifth inning. Lew McCarty, the first of the Giants to face Cicotte in this inning, poled a three-bagger between right and centre fields, the ball rolling to the barricade before it was retrieved by Felsch. McCarty, still limping slightly as a result of a broken leg early in the season, took his time, and was around at third when the ball came back.

Sallee Drives In Run.

Sallee then took matters into his own hands, figuring that if his clubmates were unable to drive in runs he would do it himself. He tapped a pretty single to short right, giving McCarty plenty of time to get home.

Then the Giants resorted again to the hit and run play, which ended disastrously and halted the rally just at a time when it began to seem as if they had Cicotte on the run. Burns tried the hit and run with Sallee on first, but he shot a grasser at Buck Weaver, who passed to Collins at second, forcing Sallee, while Eddie got the ball over to Gandil at first in time to cut Burns's career short.

After this double play Cicotte had time to settle effectively and Herzog struck out. The only other strike out that the White Sox twirler got was when Benny Kauff came to the bat in the sixth inning. Benny swung with all his might; he swung once, he swung twice, and he swung thrice, and then walked back to the bench amid a storm of jeers from the White Sox populace.

The crowd gathered early for the big event. All night long there were hundreds in line before the bleacher offices. They suffered in the evening last night because of the heavy downpour of rain. Many were wrapped in blankets and raincoats, and brought lunches. It was a long, cold vigil, but it was rewarded when the sun came out warm and bright this morning. The bleacher gates were thrown open about 10 o'clock, and before noon all the cheaper admission tickets were sold.

White Sox Appear Early.

The White Sox were the first to appear on the field, and they received a great welcome from the crowd. Rowland, Cicotte, Eddie Collins, and all the stars came in for their share of the reception. The American Leaguers spent some time in batting practice while Wolfgang served the ball up to them. When the Giants ambled onto the field shortly after 1:30 they appeared a dejected, mournful crowd of athletes.

There was only slight applause to greet McGraw and his men in this hostile city. There was a little demonstration from the small groups of New York sportsmen scattered about in the boxes, but it was faint.

The Giants shook off their dejected appearance as soon as they got onto the field. The first play of their practice was a grounder to Zimmerman, and when he missed the ball, the White Sox fans roared with delight. In spite of the efforts of the rabid, howling Chicago fans, Heinie kept his head about him and refused to get excited. He made a couple of fielding plays which were gems, and his turn at the bat was yet to come.

Herzog, while he failed to do much of an exciting nature during the game, made one catch which brought forth loud approval even in the enemy's country. In the first inning, with John Collins at third and two out, Joe Jackson hoisted a balloon in short centre. Kauff came running in, while Herzog romped back for it, making a sensational catch over his right shoulder.

Object to Decision of Rigler.

There was none of that persistent fighting aggressiveness, however, that Herzog shows when he is at his best. Herzog and Fletcher got thawed out, nevertheless, in the ninth inning, when John Collins made his third hit, a two-base rap to left. Burns got the ball quickly and made a fine throw to Herzog to head off the galloping Collins. Shano slid into the bag and Rigler called him safe. Both Herzog and Fletcher put up a short kick, claiming that the runner was out, but when Rigler turned his back and walked away from the conversation the players subsided.

The downfall of the Giants by no means showed them at any decided disadvantage in comparison with the White Sox. They are capable of playing more aggressive baseball, and they hope to work up to the normal pitch in tomorrow's game.

The baseball sharps figure that today the Sox were at their very best. Their pitching was the best they have to offer, for there is no denying that Cicotte will be a dangerous man every time he faces the Giants. Their fielding was accurate, and their batting was the timely sort of smashing which wins games.

McGraw and his men are not discouraged. They hope for better things tomorrow. They figure that they will probably have to face either Reb Russell or Urban Faber, and they do not consider either of these pitchers the equal of the great Cicotte. Schupp or Ferrit undoubtedly will be McGraw's choice for the second game, and probably it will be young Schupp. Before today's game Sallee, Schupp and Ferrit all warmed up, and they all looked ready and fit. The Giants went to the theatre tonight and didn't let the day's calamity distress them much. They have seen the best the White Sox have, and will go into to-morrow's game with the sole intention of squaring today's disaster.

CHICAGO IN GALA ARRAY.

Crowd of Genial Fans Make Merry at Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The whole city laid aside its cares and troubles today, put on its best bib and tucker, and went to the baseball game. Those who had failed to get the priceless tickets for the opening of the world's series took the day off and any way watched the game from the numerous score boards which displayed every play at the bulletin boards and at several halls about the city.

Thousands of tickets were sold to fans outside of the city, and when they flocked into town each boldly flaunted his happiness in the faces of the Chicago folks who had been doomed to disappointment. Not in many a day have the hotels been so crowded. Every lobby is jammed and every room taken. In the restaurants and hotels nothing is heard but baseball.

For once in [illegible] the Weather Bureau knew what it was shouting about with its prediction of fair weather. A better day for the opening clash couldn't have been made to order. It was bright and warm and gave the women fans just the chance they were waiting for to display their Fall finery.

Throughout the grand stand there were patches of color, purple being the most popular of the many shades. The fans who came to the park early sat in the sunny pavilions and wished that they had left their ove.coats at home.

In the long line of ardent fans which waited around all night was Mrs. A. M. Foster, a Chicago woman, who was the first of the fair fans to get into the rush line. She took up her place shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. She carried her own camp stool and did not even get sleepy. When it got too cold she built a fire for herself. A man named Ted Craig came all the way from Los Angeles without even the price of a ticket and stood in line all night.

Managers Rowland and McGraw must have had their pictures taken a thousand times. They had them taken shaking hands. One woman fan, when she saw the two managers mitting each other, said: "Oh, I thought those men knew each other before; how interesting."

There was one noticeable thing about the ball field at Comiskey Park. The grass doesn't seem to be so green as it is in the East. That comparison, however, stops at the grass.

The loudest collection of fans were the Woodland Bards, the famous organization of White Sox fans who have waited for years for this occasion. The chief Bard is Joe Farrell, and they were in their glory. The Bards are without a doubt the most rabid baseball fans in the world. They like baseball so well that they even have a clubroom right at the baseball park, so that when the Sox win a game they can sit around and win it all over again.

The White Sox were all togged out in new cream colored uniforms, and the white hose which they usually wear were supplanted by sox of red, white and blue. The white stockings which the players have been wearing all season have gone to the laundry. The Giants wore uniforms of battleship gray decorated with purple. They had new sweater jackets of autumn brown.

One of the happiest individuals at the game was young Clarence Rowland, Jr., son of the White Sox manager, who is mascot for the Chicago Club.

All the baseball men of prominence were here. President John K. Tener of the National League, President Ban Johnson of the American League, Chairman August Herrmann of Cincinnati, John E. Bruce of Cincinnati, and John A. Heydler occupied box seats. Then there was [illegible] Sinclair of Tulsa, Okla., the man whose money was behind the late lamented Federal League. Judge Francis McQuade, the champion of Sunday baseball in New York, was also here.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, who heard the famous lawsuit against organized baseball a few years ago; Roger Sullivan, former Mayor Carter Harrison, former Governor Charles Deneen, Charles Webb Murphy, former owner of the Cubs, and all the club owners of both the National and American leagues were here, to say nothing of the baseball men from nearly every bush league in the country.

Manager Clarke Griffith of Washington added thousands of dollars to the ball and bat fund for the soldiers in France. Among those who collected coins for the fund were Larry Doyle, Johnny Evers, Rollie Zeider, Nick Altrock, and George McBride.

HAPPY FELSCH.

Along with the Bakers, Hoopers, and Gowdys of world's series history Happy Felsch has added his name to the home run hall of fame. The young, rotund, and husky centre fielder of the White Sox blasted the hopes of the Giants at Chicago yesterday with a prodigious drive into the left field bleachers for a home run which gave the White Sox their second tally and put the game beyond reach of New York.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Details of the defeat of the Giants by the White Sox in the first game of the world's series follow:

First Inning.

GIANTS—Cicotte's first offering to Burns shot over the far corner of the plate for a strike, and the crowd improved the opportunity to test its multitudinous lungs, which proved to be in fine condition. The second ball, too, grooved the platter, and O'Loughlin announced "strike tuh." Then came two low ones and a tempting one waist high but a bit wide, all of which Burns ignored and the count went to three and two. The Giants' left fielder greeted the next ball with approval and the tip of his club and drove it through Cicotte a station for a single. Herzog liked the first offering and whaled it far out to left centre, where Jackson, who is saving such things, gathered it in.

Benny Kauff swung vainly at the first delivery submitted to him, and lifted the second along the aerial pathway to Jackson, where it perished. The left fielder fumbled a bit in making the catch, but held the sphere with ten thumbs. Heinie Zimmerman, heartily greeted by a babel of "Boos," and Happy Felsch, Sallee took one ball and then flied out to Weaver. The first one to Burns was called a strike. Then came a couple of balls, one of which would have carried away a vest button if Burns had been wearing a vest at the time. Another strike was called and a third ball. Burns fouled off a couple and then received free transit to first on a moist ball, which broke low and to one side of the plate.

Herzog accepted a couple of balls and a called strike, and then singled to short right. Benny Kauff stepped forward, observed calmly the impatient Burns and Herzog dancing off second and first, and made a mighty resolve. The resolve was mighty, but the execution imperfect, for Benny, after two balls and a foul strike, fouled a high one which Gandil took in front of the Giants' bench.

WHITE SOX—Ray Schalk was the beneficiary of a called ball and the victim of a called strike before he found one to his liking. The noted White Sox catcher slashed the next for a sharp bounder to Zimmerman, who stabbed it with his gloved hand and shot to Holke in plenty of time. Cicotte stepped up with his willow wand for a little play. He took a ball and a couple of called strikes, and then saying, "We might as well be on our way," he cracked out a single to centre. John Collins approved of the idea and smashed the second ball pitched to right-field fence for a single. Cicotte tried, at the instigation of Kid Gleason, who was coaching, to make third on the hit, but was nailed by a great throw by Robertson. Collins took second under cover of this.

Now came McMullin, the White Sox third baseman. He tarried not, but landed on the first ball for a sharp double to centre, which Kauff tried vainly to reach. He overran it in his eagerness, and the sphere rolled past him. John Collins scored easily on the rap, and was welcomed home by some thirty thousand upraised voices. Eddie Collins took three balls and two called strikes, and then wafted a high foul outside the left-field line, which Fletcher grasped after a gallop.

Fourth Inning.

GIANTS.—Zimmerman popped up a high foul on the first ball pitched and Ray Schalk gathered it in. With one strike and two balls called on Fletcher, the shortstop pasted a grounder to McMullin and perished via Gandil. Davey Robertson passed up a couple of poor ones and then whaled a liner to right centre over Eddie Collins's head. Robertson reached second on the hit, barely beating Felsch's throw to that station. Holke rapped the second ball pitched to McMullin, who got him at first.

WHITE SOX.—Jackson had a strike called and then fouled one off for a second strike. Then he lofted to George Burns. Felsch didn't look extraordinarily dangerous as he came to the plate. But he was. He was old man fate in person. He took that innocent little pellet on its first trip to the plate and drove it into the lap of a perfect stranger away out in the bleachers in left centre. No obstructions nor objections arose to prevent Felsch from cantering around the bases, which he did to the accompaniment of one prolonged whoop of joy. Gandil had a ball and a called strike when he grounded delicately to Sallee and perished at first. Weaver fouled one and then flied to Burns.

Fifth Inning.

GIANTS.—Lew McCarthy raised the spirits and the voices of the comparatively few Giant rooters by driving a cracking three-bagger to the right centre bleachers on the third ball pitched to him. A fleet runner might have reached home on the blow, but McCarty had to favor his bad leg. Sallee took two strikes, one of them called, and a ball, and then lined a single to right, scoring his battery mate. This looked very neat, with the heavy hitters coming up, but Burns sent a bounder into a double play, Weaver shooting the ball to Eddie Collins at second to retire Sallee, and the White Sox Field Captain lining to Gandil in plenty of time to get Burns. Herzog suffered from a called strike on the first ball, a foul strike on the second ball, and aregular strike on the third ball, and then rally was over.

WHITE SOX.—Schalk fouled the first one into the stand and then dribbled a grounder to Holke. Cicotte sent a sharp blow down the third base line, which barely escaped being fair. His count reached three and two and then he gave Sallee an easy bounder to field, which was successfully accomplished. John Collins ducked Sallee's first shoot, but got a foul strike as the ball hit his bat. He got another foul strike, and then made a sharp drive into left field, which was just outside safe territory. Then he rolled to Holke, who made the put out unassisted.

Sixth Inning.

GIANTS—Benny Kauff was visibly weary of playing a minor part when he strode to the plate to open the sixth session. He struck at the first ball viciously. He struck at the second savagely. He struck at the third frantically. He retired to the bench. Zimmerman fouled off two strikes and then tilted a high one, which fell between first and second base into the hands of Gandil. Eagerly signalling hands of Eddie Collins were awaiting the sphere, but Gandil would not be deterred by a mere field captain. Fletcher struck vainly at the first two offerings, and then flied to Jackson in left field.

WHITE SOX—McMullin, after a strike had been called, rolled a fast grass clipper, which Herzog took almost back of first base and shot at Holke for the putout. Eddie Collins was the victim of Sallee's first strike-out of the game. It took only three pitched balls to turn the trick. One was called, another was enough, and the doughty second baseman topiashed at the third. Jackson drove the first offering to Holke, who made the putout without help.

Seventh Inning.

GIANTS—Dave Robertson headed the Giants's list in the sometimes lucky seventh. After a called ball he struck at the next without perceptible results, and then went out at first by means of a grounder to McMullin. Holke made the first Giant effort of the game in the bunting line, and got a foul strike thereby. On the next delivery he singled inside of first base, Gandil just failing to reach the ball. Cicotte pitched out to McCarty in the effort to combat the hit and run game. The Giants's catcher reached for the second ball, however, and slashed a sharp drive to left. It looked perfectly safe, but Jackson, tearing in at high speed, reached the ball as it landed and held it. His momentum rolled him over, but he popped up with the precious horsehide still clutched. Sallee took one ball and then popped up a fly to Felsch.

WHITE SOX—Salee gave Felsch a bad one outside, and the guardian of centre field for the White Sox essayed a bunt on the next. It rolled foul. Happy then gave Sallee a chance to field a high bounder, which the pitcher did. Gandil drove the first ball pitched to Zimmerman. It was too hot for Heinie to hold, and went as a single, while the throng manifested its gentle content by booing the third baseman. Weaver struck out on three pitched balls, two of which he essayed to hit, while the third was fouled off. Gandil stole second, and went to third when McCarty's throw to Herzog went wild. Schalk grounded out by way of Fletcher and Holke.

Eighth Inning.

GIANTS—George Burns took a ball and a foul strike, and then lined to Felsch. Herzog, with two balls and a called strike on record, flied out to Jackson in left centre. Kauff laid one down to Weaver, who gave the centre fielder a life by throwing awry to Gandil. Cicotte, averse to having a hit and run played on him at this stage, gave Heinie Zimmerman two wide ones, and then caught Benny trying to steal. A throw from Gandil and another from that worthy to Eddie Collins sealed the doom of Kauff.

WHITE SOX—Cicotte acquired three balls and two strikes and then slashed a fast grounder to Fletcher, who made a clean, neat play on it for the out at first. With a ball and a strike called the ever dangerous John Collins crashed a double down the third-base line. That is, Rigler, officiating as arbiter at second, said it was a double. Herzog disagreed, asserting that Collins had been nailed at second. Rigler won. McMullin hit a little grounder to Sallee, who threw to Zimmerman, and Collins was run down between second and third, Herzog getting the put out. Eddie Collins essayed to bat, but after one ball had been called on him McMullin tried to steal, and was out on a beautiful throw by McCarty to Herzog.

Ninth Inning.

GIANTS—It was speedy, merciful death for the Giants in the closing period. Zimmerman sent a bounder to Cicotte, who lined it to Gandil for the out. Fletcher flied to Weaver in short left and Dave Robertson, after a called strike and a real strike had gone on the chronicles, flied out to John Collins.

FANS HERE ARE NOT GLUM OVER DEFEAT

Crowds at Bulletin Boards and in Theatres Get News of White Sox Triumph.

When Happy Felsch hammered a home run into the far confines of Comiskey Park yesterday in an early inning of the first world's series game he knocked all the happiness out of New York's gigantic ticker crowd. However, it was not until Davy Robertson filed out to Joe Jackson for the last out of the game that the thousands of local fans were satisfied that Chicago had achieved a running start in the world's baseball classic.

New York's homeward-bound army of toilers last night was unusually quiet, but apparently not hopeless of a Giant success. One straphanger suggested that it takes four victories to win a world's series, and that John McGraw's club has been fighting uphill battles in so many series during the championship race that the team will be better fit for a harder struggle after the defeat.

Optimism prevailed. New York still is confident that Ferdinand Schupp can bespoil the record of the White Sox and bring the Giants back home Tuesday at least with an even break for the series up to that time.

For the first time in many years there was an entire lack of large street gatherings of fans intent on watching bulletin boards telling of the progress of the games. The war necessitated a police order forbidding the collecting of large crowds, and the torn-up condition of Times Square made it impossible to erect a bulletin board such as the fans have been accustomed to see in past years.

However, hotels, amusement places, and several of the larger halls of the city were utilized for the display of the details of the first Giant defeat, and in each place fans crowded the spaces to capacity. At Madison Square Garden and the Seventy-first Regiment Armory there were several thousand fans watching the electric scoreboards bulletin the actions of the players at Comiskey Park.

There were any number of street corner managers who questioned the wisdom of McGraw in selecting Slim Sallee to carry the brunt of the opening game. Yet wiser heads insisted that McGraw was the manager of five world's series teams and probably knew what he was doing.

In the Bronx, home of the redoubtable Heinie Zimmerman, the gloom was thicker than the dusk shortly after 5 o'clock last night. Heinie had not done anything of importance in the opening game and the idol of the Bronx had disappointed his fellow-constituents. "Eddie Cicotte has the Indian sign on Zim," explained one ardent supporter of the Giant third baseman.

At most of the theatres announcements were made from time to time as to the progress of the game. When McCarty hit a triple and Sallee supplied he needed single which chased the catcher over the plate and gave New York its only run, several exciting dramatic narratives were hailed forthwith while the audiences cheered for the Giants.

At the New York offices of the Giants, where Harry N. Hempstead, President of the club, is spending his time completing arrangements for the coming games in New York, it was said Mr. Hempstead, of course, was disappointed at the outcome of the first game, but hoped that the tables would be changed after the affair of today. Financially the outcome of the game makes no difference to the owners of the contesting clubs, as their share of the receipts are the same, win or lose. It is only the players who are concerned with victory since it means a difference of 20 per cent. in their income for the first four games.

When the announcement came over the ticker that Harry Sallee had been selected by McGraw to oppose Cicotte in the opening game, fans who like to back up their opinions with wagers hurried to change their bets. Evidently Sallee was not as much in favor here as Schupp, notwithstanding that the White Sox had publicly admitted that they feared Sallee more than Schupp.

IRVIN COBB FINDS BASEBALL ENTHUSIASM TEMPERED BY SERIOUS THOUGHTS OF THE WAR

Humorist Sees Numerous High Lights at Opening of Series Besides a Comic Mayor

By IRVIN S. COBB.

Special to The New York Times.

SOMEWHERE IN COOK COUNTY, ILL., WITH THE NEW YORK EXPEDITIONARY FORCES, Oct. 6.—This town of Chicago may have a comic Mayor, but among its most treasured possessions it numbers a baseball club that is sincere to the point of being downright serious. The local sun, descending behind its customary soft-coal screen and touching with its filtered beams the mezzotint bosom of the brunette Chicago River, shone this afternoon upon a stricken field out in Mr. Comiskey's ballyard; score, 2 to 1 in favor of the home team.

Irvin Cobb on the Job.

Having in these few words broken the news to Broadway and adjacent thoroughfares, I shall be content to speak of such scenes and incidents as particularly impressed themselves upon me during the progress of this lamentable affair; that is to say, lamentable from the standpoint of the Eastern Seaboard, for, so far as I could tell, the Middle West had no reason to feel other than happy over the outcome of the first game. Anyhow, it has always seemed to me that the most interesting thing itself, for that, when all is said and done, is only a cross section of frost-bitten baseball coming to pass at a season when by rights baseball should be in the cellar under the straw, but that the most interesting thing about it is the preliminary spectacle.

World's Biggest Crowd of Fans.

The populace came to the park today, fifty thousand of them at a conservative estimate, and a trifle more than thirty thousand succeeded in getting inside the turnstiles, which clicked their cheery little tune of dollars and cents for upward of two hours without abatement. The rest were left to mourn outside—mourn and call Mr. Charles Comiskey hard names, forgetting in their disappointment that his stadium, being built of the same material of which left-handed pitchers' domes are constructed—to wit, enduring concrete—could not be stretched to encompass twice its best capacity. Not since Father Chadwick first discovered Sam Crane playing baseball has there been on this hemisphere a bigger crowd willing to give money for seating accommodations. People who should know tell me that had there been room enough, or tickets enough, at least one hundred and fifty thousand persons would have witnessed today's set-to.

Even so, with no more than a fifth of that number actually present, the sight as viewed from the attic of the grand stand was one worth traveling a long distance to see. All the way round the green meadow the mounting tiers of seats were stippled with close-packed human atoms. In the stand the bright tints of women's Fall finery, seen here in patches and there in wide stretches, gave the inner sides of the structure the semblance of vast gay terraces in a still vaster flower garden, but the slanting banks of bleacher space were all white and black, where only men sat. There was wind enough to ripple the flags and the dancing pennons, sunshine enough to give brilliancy to the hues of feminine furbelows and to make a great fawn-colored patch where fifteen hundred men from the army training camp out at Fort Sheridan massed their khaki-clad ranks.

Some Take It Seriously.

All the preliminary incidentals which mark the start-off of every world's series were offered for the delectation of the assemblage—offered with slight variations. The professional base ball writers, experts all, who take this annual revival seriously, entered the press stand burdened with responsibility and dope sheets, but the humorists, who has been especially retained to trifle with this solemn event, came each accompanied by two telegraph operators—one operator to laugh at his stuff and the other to send it.

Mr. Comiskey's boys emerged from their dressing rooms in costumes which bade defiance to the native atmosphere—suits of white, only slightly speckled with soot, and white stockings, ringed about the calves with bands of the colors favored by a vaudeville actor when he is wearing half mourning—namely, red, white, and blue. But the Giants were tastefully attired in the conventional gray, with lavender stripes upon their lower limbs. The selection of this contrasting color design was pathetically prophetic, as it turned out, for does not lavender among civilized races signify chastened grief?

I do not recall at any world's series which I have had the good fortune to attend having seen so many photographer gents congulated in one place as were in evidence during the half hour immediately preceding the beginning of actual hostilities. Mr. McGraw and Mr. Rowland had their pictures taken so many times that the checkers lost count. Up until now the record for being numerously photographed has been held by Mary Garden. John and Clarence certainly took the honor away from the lady this afternoon.

Real Patriotic Touches.

The times being what they are, there was a pronouncedly patriotic tinge to the opening stages. The band—it was a large, full brass band, replete with slide trombones and horns resembling exposed plumbing fixtures—played at one stage "The Star-Spangled Banner" amid unbridled enthusiasm. All of us stood up, but only a few misguided ones among us made the mistake of trying to sing. Nobody knows the words of this song except the lineal descendants of Francis Scott Key, and nobody can carry the tune except a boy whose voice is changing. I trust that before we play another world's series somebody will have furnished us with a real national anthem, but I guess that is expecting too much. We'll have to hoch the Kaiser to the air of this one, thereby adding materially to the horrors of war.

Likewise, there was a flag presentation of some sort, the exact purport of which no one seemed to be able to fathom. At least, up in my section we were all in deep ignorance of the motive behind the proceedings. A gentleman with a silvery head of hair and a fine oratorical manner came out on the diamond and the players and the umpires all gathered about him in strained attitudes, and through a megaphone he made certain mysterious orations in such a confidential tone of voice that all over the place persons began paging Harry Lauder, calling that popular Scotch comedian by his last name. Then a youth with red hair unfuried one by one small copies of all the battleflags that the troops of our country have followed since we had a country. When he unshucked the Pine Tree banner of Colonial days, Kid Gleason, who is the Sarah Bernhardt of his sex, was so overcome by a flood of boyhood memories that he dropped his snowy old head upon the venerable shoulder of Germany Schaefer, who is the William Dean Howells of organized baseball and who batted over .300 the year of the Big Wind in Ireland, and these two survivors of another age communed there together.

Sees Lack of Old-time Spirit.

Shortly after this affecting scene the game began. For the harrowing details I respectfully refer you to the box score printed elsewhere in this issue.

Not How He Wrote, But How He Felt.

I was struck by one thing more than by any other thing. For all that 31,000 persons were present and for all the inspiration of fair weather, fast ball playing and crowd influence—mob psychology if you choose to call it that—it seemed to me that the old-time spirit of baseball enthusiasm was strangely absent or at least strangely diminished. Occasionally the real Chicago Stock Yards roar went up, but the rooting was intermittent and forced, I judged, rather than sustained. The cause for this apathy, for that really, was what it was—could not lie in lack of local pride, for everybody knows Chicago excels in local pride and Chicago's favorite team was winning in handy fashion all the way.

I think perhaps the cause might be found in the fact that right now our people have a bigger thing than baseball to think about—a thing which was typified and personified by those 1,500 fine young Americans in khaki sitting in the grandstand.

GIANTS MAKE CICOTTE WORK

Sallee Only Pitches 86 Times to 101 Deliveries for Opponent.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Analysis of the balls pitched indicated that the Giants kept Cicotte working harder than the latter's teammates did Sallee. The tendency of the White Sox to hit anything that looked good instead of waiting out the opposing pitcher was illustrated by the fact that Sallee threw only 86 balls in eight innings. Cicotte's total for nine innings was 101.

Each pitcher was a bit off in the third inning. Cicotte threw 20 times in that session, 9 of his offerings being balls, 7 clean strikes, 3 foul strikes, 2 fouls, 1 hit safely, and 3 hit to fielders. In the same inning Sallee sent up 5 balls, 5 clean strikes, was found for 3 hits, and had 2 pitches hit to fielders.

In the sixth inning neither pitcher had a ball called, and Cicotte repeated this feat in the ninth. In the whole game the totals of the various kinds of pitches were as follows: Balls—Sallee, 24; Cicotte, 30. Strikes—Sallee, 19; Cicotte, 22. Foul strikes—Sallee, 12; Cicotte, 15. Fouls—Sallee, 4; Cicotte, 4. Safe hits—Sallee, 7; Cicotte, 7. Hit to fielders—Sallee, 20; Cicotte, 23.

SCALPERS HERE SUPPLIED.

Curb Speculators Offer Pasteboards at Fabulous Prices.

Chicago speculators of world's series tickets do not hope to reap any greater harvest than the scalpers who infest Times Square and the big hotels around New York, judging from the host of tickets and the fabulous sums quoted. One Curb broker, or rather a speculator, whose office is wherever he may be at the particular moment he is called upon to do business, exhibited a bunch of tickets estimated at 200, all for reserved seats in the upper grand stand at the Polo Grounds.

"How much?" was answered by "Thirty dollars each," which is only a little more than 300 per cent. increase over the stipulated price, marked on each ticket.

"How much for boxes?" brought the information that $300 was needed to secure a box seating four persons for the series, which usually costs $75. The percentage is even greater when it is considered that the third game in New York may not be played and that the refund for the coupons of that game will be only $25. "And you better speak quick," cautioned the Curb business man, "'cause the price goes up every day."

Every one of the ticket agencies along Broadway are advertising tickets for sale at prices well advanced over the usual. Officials of the New York Giants declared several days ago that every reserved seat was sold and to responsible friends of the parties concerned. It was also announced that there would be no public sale of reserved seats, and that local fans who cared to see the series must line up and take a chance on unreserved seats. Yet reliable ticket agencies as well as Curb brokers of the above type seem well equipped with the pasteboards.

"This is our chance for a harvest and we are going to clean up," admitted the Curb broker when he learned he was only talking to one seeking information and not a possible purchaser.

SCHOOL TEAMS ARE BUSY.

Manual and St. Paul's in 6 to 6 Tie —Results of Other Games.

The local scholastic football season was in full sway yesterday when all of the teams were battling on various gridirons situated in and near New York. The day's football produced some decidedly interesting and keenly contested games, and many of the teams displayed good form for the early part of the season.

The biggest local game was held at Washington Park, the home of the old Brooklyn Federal League baseball team in Brooklyn, and brought together Manual Training High School and St. Paul's School of Garden City, although the Manual Training representatives displayed the better brand of football, they were held to a 6 to 6 tie by the visiting eleven. Manual's offensive playing was good in that they made effective rushes for first downs, but lack of concentrated team work spoiled many chances to score.

For the first half of the game neither side scored, but in the third quarter the St. Paul eleven, with a well-worked offensive and timely use of the forward pass, managed to get through the Manual line for a touchdown. Cole, recovering the pigskin after a fumble, engineered a forward pass, Strang to Vanderbilt, and the latter made a spirited run of twenty-five yards for a touchdown. At the attempt at goal, however, Cole failed. After four first downs in the fourth quarter, Manual managed to get the ball on her rival's 20-yard line, and from this point, after two plays, Sparks went through for a touchdown. The attempt at goal in this case also failed.

High School of Commerce's football eleven journeyed to Pawling, N. Y., yesterday to play the Pawling School eleven in the latter's opening game of the season, and were downed by the up-State players by 45 to 0. The Pawling victory seemed so assured that in the third quarter the management lifted this entire first string eleven and sent in the second team, which held the Commerce lads scoreless for the period, and in the final quarter the first team was back on the gridiron. E. Babcock, Spates and R. Babcock were the big cogs in the Pawling victory, each getting two touchdowns, while E. Babcock scored three goals from touchdown.

Brooklyn Prep's football eleven triumphed over the Adelphi Academy team in convincing fashion yesterday on the latter's gridiron at Adelphi Field, Brooklyn, by the score of 44 to 0.

Excellent playing in support of long runs and accurate kicks by Louis Hallock, the team right half back, gave the Flushing High School eleven a victory over the representatives of St. John's Prep at the former's field yesterday by the score of 42 to 0. Hallock tallied four touchdowns and the same number of goals from touchdown, one of his touchdowns coming after a hard eighty-yard run in the third quarter. Pratt and Captain Alford also figured prominently in the victory for Flushing.

A score of 7 to 0 gave the Plainfield High School football eleven the spoils of their opening game of the season, with the Morris High School eleven, at Plainfield, N. J., yesterday. Mills made the touchdown for Plainfield and Snyder kicked the goal, the tally coming in the first quarter.

Commercial High School's gridiron representatives eked out a close victory over the Stuyvesant High School aggregation on the former's field in Brooklyn by a score of 6 to 0.

TO DEVELOP HARRIERS.

A Four-Mile Cross-Country Race for Novices on Oct. 28.

Officials of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union yesterday announced that plans had been completed for a novice cross-country race to be held at Van Cortlandt Park on Oct. 28. This step has been taken as a means of creating interest in the cross-country sport, and to develop new competitors to fill the gap caused by the enlistment for war service of many of the district's star harriers.

The race will take the starters once over the national championship cross-country course, with the finish on the track being laid out at the new Van Cortlandt Park Stadium, now in the final stages of construction. This course will give the runners a total of about four miles, and at this distance it is expected that a considerable number of athletes will answer the call for starters. Gold, silver, and bronze medals will be distributed among the first, second, and third runners to finish the race, with a loving cup as a team prize.

President Frederick W. Rubien of the Metropolitan Association has appointed the following committee to conduct the event: Lou Mertz, Mohawk A. C., Chairman; James McInerney, Bronx Athletic League; James F. O'Connor, Yorkville Athletic League; George D. Creed, Harlem Athletic League; Frank Casanova, Long Island Athletic League; Harry Hyman, Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A.; William Chambers, Jersey Harriers' A. A.; James Lee, Mercury A. C.; A. Aro, Brooklyn A. A.; Frank Forgn, Ozanam Association, and Paul H. Pilgrim, New York A. C.

Commodore Dyers's Boat Wins.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Oct. 6.—Commodore Leonard H. Dyers's Jack o' Lantern, sailed by Abbott Brush, won the races among Arrow class yachts this afternoon over the Indian Harbor Yacht Club's five-mile course. She finished four seconds ahead of the Bubble, owned by Walter H. Bowes. A stiff wind from the northwest made the weather ideal for sailing.

PENN IS CONQUERED BY GEORGIA ELEVEN

QUAKER DEFENSE WEAK

Opposing Backs Puncture Line at Will—Strupper Runs 70 Yards for a Touchdown.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Oct. 6.—The Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets overwhelmed the University of Pennsylvania eleven this afternoon, 41 to 0, with two touchdowns in the first and third quarters and one each in the second and fourth.

Strupper, Guyon, and Hill smashed through the Pennsylvania line at will, the first named reeling off a 70-yard run in the first three minutes of play for the initial touchdown of the game. These three backs carried the brunt of the Georgia attack.

Derry, Dell, Miller, and the other Penn stars could not consistently penetrate the Tech line, the sturdiness of the defense being in keeping with the brilliancy and speed of the offense. There was little question as to which team would win after the first few minutes of the game, only the multiple of points being the doubtful issue.

The Pennsylvania eleven was greatly surprised by the quality of the play by Georgia Tech. The Quakers began the game looking on it as a practice match, and when swept off their feet in the first few minutes of play were never able to get into form. The game was witnessed by the greatest football crowd that has ever attended a contest in this section, it being estimated that the spectators numbered between 20,000 to 25,000. Some 3,000 soldiers and many reserve officers from nearby training camps were in the gathering.

DARTMOUTH WINS HANDILY.

Two Goals from Forward Passes Defeat Springfield College.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 6.—Dartmouth failed to show any first-class football today on a muddy field when they won from Springfield Y. M. C. A. College by the score of 14 to 0. Fumbling at critical moments caused the failure of many of the Greens' chances to score, while the team as a whole showed a lack of practice.

In the first half the visiting team had the better of the contest in ground gaining, as the Dartmouth line did not hold the heavy Springfield backs at all, but in the second part they seemed to find themselves. Very few gains were made by Springfield after the first half and the Dartmouth back field was worn out by the heavy work of the first half, they relying on Holbrook's ability to outkick the visitors.

Both Dartmouth's goals were made on forward passes, the first from McDonough to Eastman and the last from Holbrook to Myers.

The lineup:

| Dartmouth, (14.) | Position. | Springfield (0.) |
|---|---|---|

ROBB PENN STATE STAR.

Makes Six Touchdowns in Smashing Victory Over Gettysburg.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Penn., Oct. 6.—Penn State's football eleven smothered the Gettysburg College team on New Beaver Field this afternoon by the lopsided score of 80 to 0. The battlefield boys were overwhelmed by the fierceness of the State's attack, which was directed chiefly at their tackles and ends. Harry Robb, the Pittsburgh boy, who is the only veteran in the Blue and White backfield, had a big day. He ran through Gettysburg for six touchdowns. Pond and Wolfe were other brilliant satellites in State's offense. Each of them tallied twice on long runs through broken fields.

Against State's stanch forwards Gettysburg failed to register a single first down. The only first down credited to the visitors resulted from a forward pass, which netted them ten yards. This was their largest gain.

The line-up:

| Penn State. (80.) | Position. | Gettysburg. (0.) |
|---|---|---|
| Rauch | L. E. | Brown |
| Tavener | L. T. | Fisher |
| Hills | L. G. | Neely |

OLD STAR AT HOLY CROSS.

Billy Joy Preparing Team for Contest with Fordham.

Rather more interest than usual will be felt in the game to be played by Holy Cross here on Oct 20 against the Fordham College eleven by reason of the fact that Billy Joy is handling the backfield. Joy is a graduate of Holy Cross, and was captain of its crack team in 1911, playing then as quarter back, as the Fordham boys will well remember.

Joy played for four years on the Holy Cross team, as offensive half back and defensive end in his first three years, and running the team from quarter in his fourth year. He is one of the few men who won three letters in his freshman year, and repeated in his sophomore year, getting his honors in basketball, football, and on the track. In his junior year he again won letters in football and track, basketball having been abolished as a varsity sport.

Good coach as he was, a wizard in training men for the line, Luke Kelly, who has coached the Purple eleven for the last three years, never was able to build up a strong backfield as he had played in the line when he made his record at Notre Dame. So when Frank Cavanaugh obtained his release from Dartmouth he was signed to coach Holy Cross. But the army service got him, and Joy was persuaded to come to the help of his alma mater, Kelly being continued as line coach. Joy has put pep into the backfield already. Much is expected of him this season, as he has Higgins, quarter back; Fitzpatrick and Foley, half backs, and Bradley, full back, of last year's team as a basis to build a smart backfield out of. Holy Cross has five of its old linemen back in this year's squad.

SURPRISES AT LAUREL.

Hendrie and Startling Defeat Favorites in Handicap Features.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 6.—Surprises marked the running of the Baltimore Handicap and Liberty Loan Handicap, two features that attracted one of the best crowds of the meeting to the track of the Maryland Fair Association this afternoon. In the Baltimore Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth the western jockey, C. Peak, handled F. D. Weir's Hendrie so cleverly that at the finish he ran over A. K. Macomber's good three-year-old filly, Sunbonnet Dunes was a good third and this forced H. P. Whitney's old campaigner Borrow out of the money.

RESULTS OF PLAY ON NEARBY LINKS

C. V. Benton Captures Two Cups in Competitions of Hudson River Country Club.

C. V. Benton had a successful day at golf yesterday on the links of the Hudson River Country Club, coming through with flying colors in two separate events. In the final competition for the Waldo C. Morse Cup, Benton won the trophy by beating S. P. Emerick, by 4 up and 2 to play, and in the first round play for the Carroll Moore Memorial Cup Emerick again fell before the superior golf of Benton, this time by 5 up and 3 to play. Other results in the latter competition were:

H. A. Lockwood defeated C. P. Newbery, 2 up and 1 to play; Dr. E. A. Sheets defeated Emerson Barnes, 5 up and 4 to play; A. H. Bunker defeated Garrett Mott, 6 up and 5 to play; D. A. An eighteen holes medal play handicap event for a Liberty Bond of the second issue was the attraction that caught the eye of some twenty-four golfers who played over the links of the Ridgewood Country Club yesterday, and at the conclusion of the day's playing three of the field were tied for first honors with nets of 76. They were: G. L. Green, 91, 15—76; W. G. Phillips, 83, 7—76, and M. B. Kaesche, 84, 8—76. The play-off of the tie will be held next Saturday. In a team competition in which lineups representing a President's and Captain's teams were opponents, the President's team was victorious by 16 to 14. Thirty golfers took part.

A best ball competition occupied the attention of the golfers at the Siwanoy Country Club yesterday, and the event resulted in a victory for the combination of J. J. Thompson and Al Hedley. This team finished with a card of 80, 10—70. A. M. Tibben and S. Bossard, with a card of 91, 17—74, finished second and third honors went to C. C. Johnson and A. F. Knoepke, with 108, 16—92.

Play for the club championship at the Dunwoodie Country Club passed the second round yesterday, when seven matches were decided. The results were:

Darrow, 6 up and 5 to play.

Frank Presbrey carried off the individual honors on the links of the Apawamis Club yesterday, winning in one event and earning a tie for first place in another. In the regular eighteen holes medal play event Presbrey led home a large field with a card of 88, 9—79. Cards showing net scores of 81 for four golfers tied for second honors were: N. Squire, 88, 7—81; W. H. Browning, 99, 18—81; W. J. Tingue, 94, 13—81, and H. E. Catty, 99, 18—81. In the sweepstakes event Presbrey's card for the eighteen holes medal play competition earned him a tie with E. C. M. Kemp, who finished the course with the same card—88, 9—79. The honors of a special eighteen holes medal play event went to W. H. Browning, with a card of 90, 28—71.

Finishing the course 5 up and 4 to play on his rival, John W. Allen yesterday scored a victory over C. H. Christie in the final play for the September tournament honors at the Montclair Golf Club. In a women's putting competition Mrs. J. B. Kremmer won, with Mrs. W. H. Loftus the runner-up. A large field competed in a sweepstakes event held in two classes, A. L. Pearson, Jr., showing the best in the Class A division with a card of 79, 5—74. Other scores for this class were: F. C. Hall, 84, 9—75; J. C. Simons, 84, 5—79; Mark Andrews, 95, 15—80, and A. R. Allen, 88, 7—81. In Class B the best score was that of L. W. Batten, 98, 20—78, while C. G. Bartlett was second with 102, 21—81.

The final play for the club championship, at thirty-six holes medal play, was held yesterday at the Baltusrol Golf Club and resulted in a triumph for Stephen P. Nash, whose net score for the round was 160. The event was a scratch affair, open to golfers handicapped at ten strokes or under. The runner-up was W. H. Phillips, with a net score of 164.

P. W. Kendall yesterday annexed the club championship of the Deal Country Club when he defeated J. S. Griffin in the final play for the title by 2 up and 1 to play over thirty-six holes. In the final for the September handicap cup F. Pring scored a victory over E. J. Orme by 1 up in thirty-six holes. Mrs. W. P. Plum demonstrated a superior brand of golf in the final for the ladies' season tournament cup, over Mrs. Jacob Siegel, and was returned the victor by 4 up and 3 to play. An eighteen holes medal play handicap attracted a field of fifteen golfers. The best score was returned by R. H. Higgins, whose card showed 97, 21—76. M. Kellogg, with 90, 13—77, was tied with William E. Krueger, 98, 21—77, for second, and the next best scores were J. E. McQuail, 96, 18—78, and H. Rosenfeld, 98, 18—80.

Golfers of the Plainfield Country Club swarmed over the links yesterday on the occasion of the qualifying round for the club championship, and some keen competition resulted. The sixteen who qualified for the title play, which will begin next week, are Dudley H. Barrows, 86; S. D. Lounsbery, 86; H. E. Butler, 87; Charles A. Reed, 87; W. Lester Glenny, 87; H. ## DUNDEE AND CLINE MATCHED

Local Lightweights to Meet Tuesday—Other Boxing News.

Two of the most prominent local contenders for Benny Leonard's lightweight championship title will face each other Tuesday night at the Manhattan A. C., where Johnny Dundee, the Italian lightweight, and Irish Patsy Cline of Harlem will be opponents. Cline, a clever and fairly smart boxer, will be pitted against the aggressive Dundee, whose style, peculiarly his own, borders on the sensational. Dundee has an advantage in the matter of experience and knowledge of ring tactics, but otherwise the boxers are evenly matched. With the bout being held on the night of the opening of the world's series at the Polo Grounds, the officials of the Manhattan A. C. are making arrangements for a record crowd.

Jim Coffey, the Irish heavyweight, and Knockout Bill Brennan of Chicago have been matched for a ten-round bout, which will take place at the Harlem Sporting Club, Oct 12. This announcement was made yesterday, when final arrangements for the affair were completed by Billy Gibson. The contest has been in the making for many months, and is expected to attract more than the usual amount of interest given to heavyweight bouts at local clubs. Coffey, in his most recent bouts, has been showing marked improvement. Brennan has appeared in New York several times.

Billy Miske, the St. Paul lightheavyweight, will enter his third bout in slightly more than two weeks, at the Broadway Sporting Club of Brooklyn, Tuesday night, when he meets Battling Levinsky. Miske has been showing excellent form lately, and in his last two bouts, held within a few days of each other, he has gained popular decisions successively over Carl Morris, the Oklahoma heavyweight, and Charles Weinert of Newark. The St. Paul boxer and Levinsky have been opponents on several occasions, and all of their bouts have resulted in interesting exhibitions.
